What Name for Hoover?
Lolordo's Last Drink.
A Modern Rich Man.
Mrs. Causekas' Bare Legs.
—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

IF AMERICANS call President Coolidge "The Silent President," what will they call Mr. Hoover? He has been elected President of the United States, will begin his work in less than two months, and has been in Washington several days at work. How much has he talked? Not at all.

Eight years more of business without conversation will suit this country very well. We have had, at various times, considerable periods of conversation without business.

CHICAGO gunmen might learn from the Lord Mayor in London.

At the Lord Mayor's dinner a loving cup passes around. When you bury your face in the big tankard, and drink spiced wine, the man at your left rises and stands behind you. That custom comes from old days. The man standing was supposed to prevent your being stabbed in the back as you drank.

PASQUALINO LOLORDO hadn't heard of this. Three smiling friends offered to drink his health. He lifted his glass and the three smiling ones sent 11 bullets into his head, neck and shoulders. Lolordo succeeded Tony Lombardo, murdered not long ago, as a gang ruler.

VISCOUNT ENNISMORE, 22, heir of the Earl of Listowell, renounces title and his riches, calls himself a Socialist, and founds a company, "Neighbors, Ltd.," to enable wealthy Socialists to give their money to the poor.

SUCH an organization was suggested 1900 years ago, but the idea has not been generally adopted.

Viscount Ennismore, who now calls himself William Francis Hare, when older, will realize that men want to do something while they live. For most of them, money is necessary, first to provide freedom of action, and second, to make action possible.

MRS. MARY CAUSEKAS thought it unnecessary to wear stockings, tried bare legs in public, and spent three months in jail, in virtuous Pottsville, Pa.

The lady should have chosen Palm Beach or the light opera stage. Pottsville was a mistake. The judge, when he reached her case, let her go, on the ground that a washwoman's bare legs are no worse than those of a Palm Beach beauty, or glorified girl.

THE New York Academy of Medicine, with the free-will co-operation of distinguished doctors all over the country, prepares information on all medical questions, and issued recently a statement of medical progress in the year past.

MOST important is discovery of a cure for pernicious anaemia, hitherto deadly.

In dissecting bodies of those dead of anaemia, scientists discovered that the liver always lacked a certain substance. That substance is now supplied, in the form of an extract from normal liver, and the anaemia is cured.

ANOTHER important discovery shows, in cancer, power in certain cells to reproduce and grow abnormally, creating a cancerous tumor. Whence that power comes science does not know. It originates in irritation of the tissues.

THIS is the richest country in the world, but everything is comparative and real money is scarce. All money circulating in the United States amounts to less than five thousand millions of dollars, about $41.77 for each American.

OUR great wealth, of course, is not in dollars, but in values not yet changed into dollars; mines, mills, oil wells, power. There are two or three men in the country whose property, rightly appraised, would probably show a value not far from five billions.

AMERICAN farmers have their troubles, farmers in Japan have worse ones.

When our farmers complain, government at least MAKES PROMISES.

Yesterday when thousands of Japanese peasants marched to express dissatisfaction, 40 were shot dead and many wounded.

AN AMERICAN may become head of the Salvation Army forces throughout the world in place of Gen. Booth, who has ruled from London. Supporters of Gen. Booth see the power of "American gold."

The Salvation Army in America has $43,000,000 worth of property. And where money is, power is.

THOSE that have contributed to Salvation Army funds are delighted to know that the Army is doing so well. Some may wonder whether wisdom was shown in not devoting more of the $43,000,000 to the poor, and less to property.

Boy, 14, on Trial in "Hex" Case

CURRY AIDS SELECTION OF JURY

YORK, Pa., aJn. 10.—(AP.)—John Blymyer's 14-year-old pupil in witchcraft, John Curry, went on trial for his life today.

Curry was the second of the three excused slayers of Nelson D. Rehmeyer to be called to trial. A jury last night after short deliberation found Blymyer guilty of murder in the first degree and recommended life imprisonment. The third of the trio, Wilbert G. Hess, 18, will not be placed before the bar of justice until Curry's case is disposed of.

The state, represented by District Attorney Amos W. Herrmann, was asking for a verdict of first degree murder. Herrmann again hoped to prove that the slaying of Rehmeyer was motivated more by robbery other than to break a spell he was supposed to have cast over the Blymyer and Hess families.

YOUTH AID COUNSEL

The boy who ran away from home and school to join the Army and passed an 18-year-old youth in examination tests sat beside the lawyer who was appointed to defend him by the court. Curry, like Blymyer, showed little emotion in any of the proceedings. Unlike his reputed master, however, the boy took a part in the proceedings and even helped his counsel, W. W. Van Baman, in selecting the jury.

Immediately behind the boy sat his mother, Mrs. Anna Curry McLain. She sobbed quietly into a handkerchief during most of the proceedings. Her attitude was stolid.

The defense indicated in questions directed at the commonwealth's witnesses in cross-examination would be based on three factors: First, that Curry was under the absolute control of Blymyer, and secondly, that he was too young to go to the chair or spend the rest of his life in prison and that Blymyer directed the whole crime and its preparation.

Herrmann, in his opening address, warned the juror against letting the youth's age or "station in life" influence their judgement in returning a verdict. "This is not a court of sentiment," he said.

USE SAME WITNESSES

The same witnesses and articles of evidence used to prosecute Blymyer were brought into the case against Curry. One of the witnesses, Clayton G. Hess, brother of Wilbert, testified again to taking Curry and Blymyer to a wood near the Rehmeyer home on Nov. 26, the night preceding the slaying, and all three on the following night.

On cross-examination, Van Baman brought out that Blymyer had said, while in Hess' automobile:

"I want to work on a man's mind and get him under my control. Then I will get a lock of hair and break the spell over your parents."

Hess also said, "Blymyer told me after the murder was discovered and before he was arrested, 'If they get me, I hope they don't get the other fellows. I'm to blame for everything.'"

The trial moved even more rapidly than that of Blymyer, which required only three days. The jury was selected in less than 40 minutes, and the commonwealth had introduced most of its testimony by noon.

Blymyer was brought into the courtroom shackled to a deputy sheriff as court opened at 1:30 p. m.

District Attorney Hermann said he would use the convicted "witch doctor" as a rebuttal witness if necessary to refute some of the defense testimony. Yesterday during his own trial, Blymyer denied the statement attributed to him by Clayton Hess that Blymyer alone was responsible. Hess said the same thing today.

JOHN CURRY

John Curry, 14, on trial today at York in the witchcraft case in which he is accused of the murder of a farmer-recluse, whose counsel is expected to contend that he was influenced by the "pow-wow" teachings of John Blymyer, found guilty of the same murder, because of his mental development and immaturity.

LOS ANGELES SAFE IN PORT

PORT ST. JOE, Fla., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Completing a voyage from Lakehurst, N. J., during which she was delayed nearly 12 hours by adverse winds and fog over Western Florida, the Los Angeles, giant Navy dirigible, was moored to the tender Patoka in St. Joseph's Bay shortly after noon today.

Meanwhile, Miami, to which the dirigible started on a 2,000-mile cruise, held up welcoming ceremonies, pending definite word from the craft. Up to late afternoon no word of the commander's plans had been received at Miami.

The Los Angeles left its hangar at Lakehurst, N. J., at 8:15 p. m., Tuesday, and expected to proceed directly for Miami, for an air meet there, but was delayed by headwinds. The change in its course to the Patoka was made yesterday afternoon after the dirigible had cruised down the Atlantic seaboard.

SIX RESCUED IN SQUIRREL HILL $35,000 FIRE

Six persons, dazed and choking, were led to safety through smoke-filled hallways early today when fire broke out in the Forbes-Murray Building, Forbes street and Murray avenue.

One fireman was injured.

Three alarms were sounded.

$35,000 DAMAGE

The damage was estimated at $15,000 by Fire Chief Richard Smith and at $35,000 by Fire Marshal Thomas L. Pfarr, when the fire had been checked after a three-hour battle.

Hoseman William Dougherty was cut on the left foot by falling glass. He was taken to Mercy Hospital after his wounds had been dressed by Dr. Daniel E. Sable, chief city surgeon.

INJURED IN FALL

Ross Ortoleva, his wife and their two children, Peter, 2, and Mary 3, who occupy one of the two second floor apartments were most seriously affected by smoke. Ortleva suffered an injury to the left leg when he stumbled and fell in a hallway as police and firemen were steering his family and Michael Paterni, and his wife, the other ocupants of the second floor, to safety.

The fire originated in the basement of the Forbes-Murray Bowling Alleys and spread to the alleys on the first floor of the two-story brick building. Several other business houses on the first floor were slightly damaged by smoke and water.

New York Educator Ends Life Under Bus

G.M.C. HERE GROUPS OFFICES

The General Motors Corporation today closed negotiations for space in the new Grant Building, which is declared to be the first step toward housing the executive and clerical offices of all of the Pittsburgh district activities of the General Motors Corporation under one roof.

The deal announced today is for the lease of three suites of offices on the sixth floor of the Grant Building to the Motor Accounting Company, a newly formed subsidiary of General Motors for the handling of the accounts and auditing of automobile branches and dealers throughout this district. R. A. Dickinson, of Detroit, has taken charge as zone manager.

OPENS JANUARY 16

The territory of the Pittsburgh zone includes Pennsylvania counties west of the Susquehanna River, all of West Virginia and a portion of Eastern Ohio.

The zone is one of eight into which the country has been divided for the control of automobile accounts. Possession will be taken of the Grant Building offices January 16. Preliminary work in organizing the staff is now going on in temporary quarters set up by Dickinson in the Pittsburgher Hotel.

EIGHT ACCOUNTS GROUPED

Accounts to be handled by the Motor Accounting Company are those of Cadillac, LaSalle, Buick, Oakland, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Yellow Cab and Chevrolet.

Movements toward co-ordinating the different district motor car branches, it was stated by local dealers, would be speeded by establishment of the new subsidiary here.

FRANK & SEDER SEEK GRAND

Officials of the Frank & Seder Company late today said they were negotiating to purchase the Grand Theater Building.

Consummation of the deal would mean razing of the theater and the enlargement of the Frank & Seder store. No details of the probable purchase price or the probable date of the completion of the deal were available.

Straton Bolters Form New Church

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—The Rev. Frank R. Young announced yesterday that a new church had been formed in Brooklyn by himself and 20 members of Calvary Baptist church who had resigned because of dissatisfaction with the activities of the Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton, particularly his participation in political debates and "his neglect of the spiritual welfare of the church."

Dr. Straton characterized Mr. Young's statements as "ridiculous," and denied that 20 of his members had resigned.

ROME, Jan. 9.—In those sad days I had an intuition of only a part of the truth. It was only later when I was able to read the first foreign newspapers that I had a completely clear idea of the abject speculation made on the accident to Lundborg.

Nobile had abandoned his companions! In front of the infamous accusation I withdrew within myself. I disdained to explain. The others would have defended me, if they wished, if they thought it necessary. In regard to myself the calumny was too vile for me to lower myself to defend myself.

Also a great bitterness filled me. Of what avail, therefore, to have flown 171 hours from Rome to the North Pole, to Teller, Alaska, facing a thousand unmeasurable risks, many of which were not even foreseen, and overcoming a thousand adversities, to have faced the unknown for the first time, to have wished to face it again a second time even knowing the risks!

Of what avail to have broken every tie with the world, with my own family; of what avail to have started for new flights with the soul of one who admits the great probability of never returning!

Of what avail to have flown for 250 hours from Rome to King's Bay, from King's Bay to Nicholas II Land, to Greenland, to the Pole; of what avail to have faced and braved a hundred times the danger of a catastrophe without raising an eyebrow; of what avail, therefore, to have

$2,000,000 Gift Sent Baptists in Rockefeller Name

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Receipt of a gift of $2,000,000, perpetuating the name of Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Sr., was announced today by the Northern Baptist convention.

The gift, by the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial, was the largest contribution to the denomination's missionary funds in years and will be divided equally by the Woman's American Baptist Foreign Mission Society and the Woman's Home Mission Society.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has given the denomination $250,000 and has agreed to give another $250,000 if receipts from the usual donation sources for the fiscal year show an increase of that amount over the year before. If there is a gain of less than $250,000, Rockefeller has offered to give dollar for dollar with the denomination when it passes last year's records.

BRAMWELL BOOTH

General Bramwell Booth, international head of the Salvation Army, asked today by the organization's High Council, meeting in London, to resign.

SALVATION ARMY ASKS BOOTH TO RETIRE

International News Service.

SUNBURY-ON-THAMES, England, Jan. 10.—Decisive action was taken by the "reform" faction of the Salvation Army today in the high council meeting to depose 72-year-old Gen. Bramwell Booth, supreme head of the army.

The high council resolved to ask Gen. Booth to retire, but he would be allowed to retain his title of "General."

It was learned from an official source that the president, vice president and five members of the council would be appointed to a commission to see Gen. Booth and suggest to him that he retire.

It had previously been thought the British members of the council would contest efforts to remove the general in order to prevent the possibility of encroachment by the American branch of the army.

Army officials refused to divulge whether arrangements have been completed for the general's successor.

12 Men Picked for Northcott Jury

COURT ROOM, RIVERSIDE, Cal., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—A jury of 12 men was accepted by both defense and prosecution yesterday to decide the guilt or innocence of Gordon Stewart Northcott, charged with torturing and murdering three boys on his Wineville ranch. His mother recently was sentenced to life in the state prison at San Quentin upon confessing she was guilty of the murders.

Steel Orders Show Gain for December

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(INS.)—The United States Steel Corporation announced today forward orders increased 303,712 tons in December. Unfilled tonnage was 3,976,712 tons on December 31, 1928, the company reported, against 3,673,000 tons on November 30 and 3,731,030 tons on October 31.

Snow to Precede 10-Degree Drop In Mercury

Snow flurries were due in Pittsburgh late today on the heels of a light rainstorm and the thermometer will fall 10 degrees to near the 20-degree mark, according to Meteorologist W. S. Brotzman, of the United States Weather Bureau.

The rain and snow will not bring a repetition of the fog from which the city suffered during the last rainy spell. High winds will prevent that, Brotzman said.

PARALLEL TO SNYDER CASE IN DETROIT

Special Dispatch to The Sun-Telegraph.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 10.—As the outcome of an alleged plot by Mrs. Grace Wood, middle-aged business woman, to have her estranged young husband, Ralph Wood, rich real estate broker, assassinated for the sake of $100,000 life insurance, Ambrose I. Haggerty, hired gunman, was killed by Wood and William Dunnigan, deputy sheriff, was wounded by another of the would-be assassins.

Mrs. Wood and her mother, Dr. Mary Smith, a physician, are under arrest.

The gun battle was one of the strangest ever fought, with reporters and photographers posted nearby taking it all in.

The conspiracy of which Mrs. Wood is accused is in some respects similar to the case of Ruth Snyder and Judd Gray, who killed her husband for his insurance.

DIVORCE SUIT STARTED

Wood and his wife, a University of Michigan graduate, were married in 1924. He is 15 years her junior. They did not get along well, separating last September. He gave her $50,000 worth of property and started suit for divorce.

Not satisfied, she planned to have him killed for the insurance, according to Assistant Prosecutor Paul O. Buckley.

Four men, it is charged, joined her in the plot. One of them, Cecil Holt, 25, an accountant, told his wife about it, and she persuaded him to betray the conspirators to the police.

The gunmen had arranged to assassinate Wood at his real estate office in Wyandotte last night. The police, forewarned, were in waiting—a score of them, hidden in buildings in the vicinity.

All unsuspicious the conspirators

Poincare Foe Hurt In Auto Accident

CHARTIERS, Dept. of Eure-Et-Loir, France, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Joseph Caillaux, former premier of France, was injured in an automobile accident today while he was enroute to Paris to take in the Senate and lead the fight against the Poincare cabinet. He was taken to a local clinic where his condition was reported as not dangerous.

Joseph Caillaux has been a member of the French Senate, representing the Department of Sarth since he obtained amnesty in 1924 after being deprived of political rights for five years for imprudent conversation in the early years of the World War.

King Continues Steady Progress

LONDON, Jan. 10.—(INS.)—King George continued to maintain his slow but steady progress towards recovery today.

Buckingham Palace officials informed International News Service that no change in His Majesty's condition had been noted during the night. The King had several hours of sleep and a quiet night, they also indicated.

Hides His Money in Coffee Bin—"Sells It"

BRIDGEPORT, O., Jan. 10.—Someone got a pound of coffee and $120 for 48 cents at a chain store here. George Sayres, manager, hid the money, a day's receipts, in the coffee bin and then forgot it until after several coffee sales had been made. The money was gone.

SCHOOL TO REDUCE SMOKE FROM HOME FIRES PLANNED

A school for home furnace firemen, at which housewives, maids and others will be taught how to stoke a furnace, is proposed by the Civic Club of Allegheny County as the remedy for Pittsburgh's smoke nuisance.

Plans for the school were discussed at a special meeting of the organization's smoke committee today. It is proposed tentatively to give the lessons at the Carnegie Institute of Technology. Before definite action is taken, it was stated, arrangements will have to be made to finance the undertaking.

Maurice R. Scharff, president of the Civic Club, is looking into the matter.

The smoke committee is composed of Willibald Trinks, chairman; John O'Connor, Jr., E. R. Weidlein, Fred Barry, John C. Reed and W. J. Dibble.

INFORMER SAYS WIFE PLOTTED MILLIONAIRE'S DEATH

CONFESSION REVEALS SCHEME

International News Service.

DETROIT, Jan. 10.—Following are the confessions, as given to police, of Mrs. Grace Wood's alleged plot to kill her husband, Ralph Wood, 33, millionaire real estate operator.

By CECIL HOLT,
(Who Revealed Plot.)

"I've known the Woods about three months but never knew anything about their domestic troubles. I bought my home from Wood, which I am paying for on a contract. My home was deeded to Mrs. Wood when the Woods separated.

"On November 10, while walking on the Eureka road a little ways from the Wood office, I was hit by something and knocked out.

(Wood informed police that Holt had been hit by an auto and that a report of the accident, made by the driver of the car which hit Holt, is on record with the Wyandotte police.)

"I revived later in the Wyandotte Hospital and there was a big bunch of flowers by my bed. They had been sent to me by Mrs. Wood. While there, although I had never known her very much before, Mrs. Wood visited me three times. Twice I failed to recognize her due to my condition, but once I knew her. Later after I left the hospital, December 11, she visited me several times.

Accuses Husband

"After I was discharged from the hospital, she told me when visiting my home that my injuries were caused by a blackjack and that her husband, Ralph, had either hit me himself or had me hit.

"At that time she hinted that something should be done to take care of Ralph. A week before Christmas I met her in her office one night. She introduced me to Ambrose Haggerty and William Thompson and said to them: 'This guy is all right. You can talk in front of him.' Then the three of them opened up and told me the scheme.

Death Plot Hatched

"I was to get deed to my home, worth $8,000, and title to another home. The plan was to kill both Sullivan and Wood. Later we decided only on Wood.

"This thing preyed on my mind and I told my wife. She told me to go to the police. Instead I went and told Earl, bookkeeper for Wood, and he told Wood and Sullivan.

"Sullivan went to Roy Smith, Riverview police chief, and we framed it so the police would be there when these men came.

"Mrs. Wood's plan was that I was to drive Haggerty and Thompson to Wood's office. I was to go in and speak to him, come out and tell them if any one else was there. Wood was to be blackjacked, thrown into his own car.

"We were then going to wreck the car and plant some dope on him. Wednesday of this week I met Haggerty and Mrs. Wood and had lunch with them in a restaurant. The plans were gone over while we ate."

She Drank, He Says

"At 5:30, after work, I went to Mrs. Wood's office. She had been drinking. Haggerty was there at the same time. We ate again and went out and had some drinks. Then we went and rented a car while Mrs. Wood sat on a bench.

"About 8 o'clock we set out for Thompson's home. When we got there Haggerty went in to get Thompson.

"Then a man named Taylor Pierce, dressed in a special police uniform, came to the car. He said: 'Hey, what's this all about?' Mrs. Wood said: 'You'd better get in on this and come along with us.' Apparently Mrs. Wood knew him but I didn't.

"Pierce went back to the house and came back in a few minutes in civilian clothes. He got into the car and we all started for Wyandotte.

Told Wood of Plot

"On the way I was scared to death, thinking of my wife and baby. I was particularly nervous because of this third party. Before we got to Wyandotte, Mrs. Wood was so drunk that, although she first said she wanted to come with us, we had to take her home.

"She left us, saying: 'Remember, tonight I am staying with my mother.' We got to Wyandotte and drove to the office. I went in and spoke to Wood. I told him we were all going back down to Wyandotte for a little while to get a few drinks because I needed them myself to steel my nerves.

"When I came back again I was to go to one side of the door. I told Wood all this.

"Then we went back to get some more drinks. Then we came back and Haggerty and I went to the door.

"When Wood came out as was our prearranged signal, Haggerty pulled his blackjack which he and Mrs. Wood had bought yesterday. He was about to slug Wood when the shooting commenced. You know the rest."

Taylor Pierce, one of the alleged conspirators, in his statement today to Assistant Prosecutor Paul Buckley, said:

"I didn't intend to kill Mr. Wood. I was impressed by Mrs. Wood's promise of easy money."

William Thompsonfi former member of the merchant police, related a corrborative story, police said.

"She said we could plant dope and whisky on him and the police would believe him to be a runner who had been hi-jacked," Thompson said. "When I first met Holt I was suspicious of him and remarked to Mrs. Wood that Holt didn't look all right. Mrs. Wood replied he was all right and could be trusted."

RICH WIFE HELD IN DEATH PLOT

swept up in their car and alighted. Softly they crept toward the building, trailed by scores of unseen eyes.

Wood stepped out on the porch of the office at the signal that the attackers were ready.

Under the original plan the attackers had planned to blackjack Wood when he stepped out of his office, and Wood had agreed with police to go through with his walk upon the porch.

As he emerged one of the thugs raised his blackjack. Wood leaped aside. Five times he fired.

GUNMAN SLAIN

At the same moment his partner, Herbert L. Sullivan, opened fire and the officers concealed in other parts of the office ran out shooting. One man dropped. It was Ambrose Haggerty, one of the hired gunmen. He was dead, slain by the man he had hoped to murder.

The two other gunmen started for their car for a getaway, abandoning their companion.

They ran a gauntlet of fire from both sides of the street for 150 yards. As they fled they shot William Dunnigan, deputy sheriff, who tried to stop them. The two who fled were arrested later in the house where they had plotted the killing.

Mrs. Wood was arrested in her home, dragged from her bed, although she protested she was ill with influenza. Police said she was drunk. At police headquarters later she composed herself, smiled enigmatically and refused to talk.

WIFE'S MOTHER HELD

Her mother was arrested too. She is Dr. Mary Smith, a physician. Police hold her as a witness after she tried to escape from her daughter's house, running in her night dress barefoot in the snow.

Five persons were in the conspiracy, according to Assistant Prosecutor Paul O. Buckley. One is dead. Mrs. Woods refuses to talk. Two others under arrest have confessed. Holt who exposed the plot, is not held.

Taylor Pierce, 28, of 5449 Fourteenth street, a special police officer and William Thompson are the men held as Mrs. Wood's co-conspirators.

J. D., JR., MOVES TO DEPOSE STEWART

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has sent letters to stockholders of the Standard Oil Comapny of Indiana, seeking their proxies for the annual meeting of the company in March to oppose the re-election of Col. Robert W. Stewart as chairman of the company, it was learned today.

Mr. Rockefeller requested the resignation of Mr. Stewart after he was charged with perjury in connection with the Senate Teapot Dome investigation. Mr. Stewart declined to resign and was acquitted of the charge on November 20.

In his letter to stockholders, Mr. Rockefeller, who is a large stockholder in the Standard of Indiana, states:

"Definite assurances have already been given me by stockholders representing a substantial amount of stock of the company that they are opposed to Col. Stewart's re-election."

It was asked that proxies be sent to John D. Rockefeller, Jr., R. S. Aldrich or William Roberts.

DURANT YIELDS CO. CONTROL

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—W. C. Durant, head of the Durant Motors, Inc, today announced he was relinquishing "complete management" of the corporation to a new group of executives who have become "heavily interested financially with us"

The announcement was made during an address before Durant dealers at the Roosevelt Hotel. Durant did not disclose the names of the new leadrs, but said "they stand head and shoulders above any group of executives in the industry." He announced the appointment of R. T. Hodgkins as general sales manager.

"I have realized that the highly competitive condition of our industry demands the unvidided attention and closest application of those who direct the destinies of our business," said Durant, adding that he is "not retiring from business, but delegating to the ablest group of men I could find the entire management of Durant Motors, Inc."

Girl Flier Feared Lost, Is Found Safe

Baths Protested, Wife Right in Quitting Home

When a mother-in-law complains her daughter-in-law is using too much water to wash her baby's clothes, the latter is justified in leaving, Judge James R. Macfarlane ruled today.

He heeld that Mrs. Carmella Angelotti, of 320 State street, Wilmerding, was justified in quitting the home of her mother-in-law with whom she went to live after her marriage. She sued her husband James, a "practical electrical engineer," of 403 Patton street, Wilmerding, for divorce, and he filed a cross suit. Each charged the other with desertion.

The testimony disclosed Mrs. Angelotti declined to live with her husband after he had set up a separate home in Wilkinsburg. For this, the court held she was guilty of "malicious and wilful desertion."

Judge Macfarlane said the couple's troubles were too unimportant to justify their separation and urged efforts toward reconciliation be made before the court hands down a final decree. The two were married June 30, 1924.

NEW INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC FEARED

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—A warning that the present epidemic of influenza may be followed by a more severe type with a higher mortality rate was given the public today at the national influenza conference in a statement by Surgeon General Hugh S. Cummin.

It was ironic that on the day of the conference the surgeon general—the highest government medical officer—was taken ill with influenza and confined to his bed. Cummin caught cold while in Chicago some time ago and last night was forced to bed with a high temperature.

Physicians and health officers were gathered here to devise methods of definite control for influenza.

SIXTL ATTEND

It met at a time when an outbreak of the disease had extended practically all over the United States, this outbreak being a factor in the calling of the conference by Surgeon General Cumming. Approximately 60 were in attendance when the call to order came.

Conference members made it clear that they did not expect to find at this time a specific for influenza, but they hoped that before the meeting ended Saturday progress would be made toward the discovery of the cause and cure of the disease.

Reports made to the Census Bureau for the week ending, January 5 showed an incerase in the death rate from influenza and pneumonia. In 67 cities, 1,316 persons died from influenza during the week as compared with 968 in the same cities during the previous week. The death rate from pneumonia in the cities reporting was 2,282 for the week as compared to 1,817 the week before.

PITTSBURGHERS THERE

Dr. Charles B. Maits, new head of the City Health Department, and Dr. Philip E. Marks, superintendent of the Bureau of Infectious Diseases, were in Washington today to attend a national conference of health officers.

The physicians will discuss the influenza epidemic.

Dr. Maits said before leaving that while he felt that the peak of the epidemic had passed, there was no telling what the next few days might bring forth because of the changeable weather.

Scores Forced Out By Uniontown Fire

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Jan. 10.—Cloaked by smoke in their apartments in West Main street, above the Dixie shoe store, two families narrowly escaped early today and scores of persons were forced to flee. Mrs. Lucy Driscoll, her son, William, and daughter, Dorothea, were trapped by smoke and flames on the front stairway but battled their way down rear steps to safety. A. F. Lanniker also was nearly suffocated.

Ten families in an adjoining building and guests in the Brunswick Hotel were forced to flee. Loss was undetermined.

Paris Bourse Shaken By Radicals' Drive

PARIS, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—The Radical party's announcement of a political offensive today against the Poincare cabinet after the chamber is organized had caused more apprehension in financial than in political circles. The Bourse has shown considerable hesitation since the attack on the government was announced, but political experts refused to admit that there was grave danger for the Poincare government.

Heat of 106 Degrees Afflicts Australia

SYDNEY, New South Wales, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Terrific heat of 106 degrees Fahrenheit has been responsible for numerous bush fires in the outer suburbs and further inland. A dozen homes and a quantity of livestock, orchards and crops have been destroyed.

BUREAU CHIEF AT 25

JAMES B. BAILEY

Yesterday, James B. Bailey was only a stenographer in the office of Supt. of Police Peter P. Walsh. Today, at the age of 25, he is chief of the City's Bureau of Weights and Measures. Mayor Charles H. Kline appointed him to succeed Murray G. Livingston.

BAILEY HEADS BUREAU AT 25

For three hours after James B. Bailey, personal stenographer to Supt. of Police Peter P. Walsh, was sworn in as chief of the Bureau of Weights and Measures of the City of Pittsburgh yesterday, he was kept busy accepting the felicitations of his fellow workers and scores of city employes. Then he went home with an aching right hand and a hoarse voice, to receive the congratulations of the woman he married only four months ago and of his proud parents, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Bailey, of 5257 Carnegie avenue.

They have reason to be proud of their son, for, at the age of 25, he is a full-fledged city official, the head of a bureau and the "boss" of nine men. Mayor Charles H. Kline appointed him yesterday as the successor to Murray G. Livingston, who was dismissed recently "for the good of the service." He was sworn in shortly afterwards and took office immediately.

'Don't Let Tongue Wag,' Coolidge Told by Lucey

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—The philosophy of life which President Coolidge has said was imparted to him by Tom Lucey, a humble New England cobbler, was the "shoemaker's philosophy," Fred M. Snyder, a native of Massachusetts, told a meeting of retail shoe dealers here.

Lucey told the President to "keep his shoes laced tight and never let his tongue wag," Snyder said.

DRIVE ON RUM RUNNERS OPEN

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Announcement was made last night that a force of 80 coast guardsmen was being assembled here to prevent the smuggling of contraband across the Niagara River during the remainder of the winter.

The recent stormy weather and the ice accumulating in Lake Erie have forced many rum runers to abandon the lake and take to the river, which forms the most direct route to the American shore.

Extra details also will be made for patrol duty between Youngstown and Charlotte, since Lake Ontario is easily navigable.

JAIL CHIEF LAUDS DOPE FARM BILL

By DR. JOHN M. O'CONNOR,
Chief Medical Officer of New York Prisons and President of the Narcotic Rehabilitation Association.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Passage of the Porter bill by the Senate is one of the most significant steps forward in the fight against narcotic drug addiction.

The measure will establish two federal institutions for the isolation and treatment of criminal addicts which now constitute one-third of the prison population of federal institutions at Leavenworth, McNeil Island and Atlanta. It is expected the President will approve the bill.

REFLECTS PUBLIC OPINION

The institution of this program by Congress reflects an awakened public conscience and is most gratifying and encouraging to those who are actively engaged out in the field of prevention and rehabilitation where society is being mobilized for its own defense and its own salvation from this menace.

Congressman Porter is to be commended for his vision in having conceived the establishment of these federal farms and for his persistent effort in carrying through the measure. The Narcotic Rehabilitation Association went on record favoring the bill at its recent conference in New York and collaborated in securing its passage.

URGES STATE FARMS

The time is now ripe for petitioning the state governments to follow this lead and the Narcotic Rehabilitation Association will proceed at once with an energetic program looking to the establishment of a state farm in each of the states.

It is a logical reflection that it is of equal importance that the states have such an institution. The testimony of many experts bears out this statement.

The association earnestly invokes the co-operation of all state and national agencies, and especially does it solicit the sympathetic co-operation of the press, which can undoubtedly render the greatest effective service in attaining this practical reform in the interest of humanity.

Meeting of Township Commissions Called

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—The fourth annual convention of the Association of Pennsylvania First Class Township Commissioners will be held here in the South Office Building at the capitol Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, it was announced by M. B. Black, of Annville, secretary-treasurer of the association.

There are 58 first-class townships in Pennsylvania, 24 being located in Allegheny county.

WOMAN TELLS HOW SHE TRAPPED KILLER

NEW CASTLE, Jan. 10.—It's no easy task bustling about getting dinner ready for a husband expected home most any minute with a murder in the house, declared Mrs. Gertrude Kennedy Festoso, whose "tip" led to the capture of Edward Kaltenbaugh, alleged self-confessed slayer of Mr. and Mrs. John Oser on their farm near Canal Fulton, O.

Mrs. Festoso, slim and rather attractive, told for the first time today how she came to suspect the young stranger who stopped at her home Monday night to inquire about street cars to Ellwood City. She told her story calmly and with determination, expressing meanwhile her intention to claim the $1,000 reward offered for the slayer's capture.

"I became suspicious while he was talking to someone over the telephone," Mrs. Festoso said. "He asked the person he was talking to if he had read about 'that Ohio affair' and a little later told the party on the other end he had been 'out of town.'

"He also asked if the other party could get a message to Gladys Espy and I remembered this name which I am told led police to the man's home where they found him hiding."

Mrs. Festoso's little four-year-old daughter, Evelyn, was with her mother while the stranger was at the house. Mrs. Festoso said the child was not frightened, but Evelyn insisted "I didn't like him—he had big teeth."

New Castle Woman Whose Tip Led to Capture of Ohio Dual-Slayer Tells Story and Seeks $1,000 Reward

MRS. GERTRUDE FESTOSO

For her tip resulting in the arrest of Edward Kaltenbaugh, Grove City, confessed slayer of the Osers at Canal Fulton, O., Mrs. Gertrude Festoso, New Castle, today seeks the reward of $1,000 offered for his capture.

FESTOSO HOME IN WHICH WIFE BECAME SUSPICIOUS OF STRANGER WHO USED TELEPHONE

Just before dinner, when Mrs. Festoso and her little daughter were alone, a stranger, Kaltenbaugh (inset), appeared at her home and asked about the trolley schedule. Informed, he asked to use the telephone. Mrs. Festoso's suspicions were aroused by mention over the 'phone of that "Ohio affair" and when the man left by the rear of the house she phoned and told police, who arrested him at his home, tracing him through Gladys Espy, New Castle, whose name Mrs. Festoso overheard.

MAYOR "FIRES" LIVINGSTON AGAIN

Murray G. Livingston today again was "fired" by Mayor Charles H. Kline as chief inspector of weights and measures.

The discharge notice was in a letter from the Mayor, as follows:

"The Civil Service Commission, having placed the position of chief inspector in the division of weights and measures in the exempt class, I again inform you that your services as chief inspector are hereby discontinued."

The letter is said to be a move on the part of the Mayor made because since he first fired Livingston the job he held has been put in the exempt class, which removes it from civil service regulation.

The second discharge, it is declared at the Mayor's office, therefore probably would stand even though the Civil Service Commission should later determine that Livingston's first discharge was unjustified.

Charles B. Prichard, attorney for Livingston, said today he would renew his formal demand upon the Civil Service Commission to grant his client a hearing.

Mitchell Made Head Of West Penn Power

Harry L. Mitchell, president of the West Penn Railways Company, has been elected president of the West Penn Power Company, it was announced here today. He succeeds G. M. Gadsby, who resigned recently. Mr. Mitchell has been identified with West Penn operations for more than 25 years. He will continue as president of the West Penn Railways Company.

Greene County Man, 99, Dies

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 10.—Jacob Isminger, of Deep Valley, Greene county, who had reached the age of 99, is dead at his home of infirmities. He had been a lifelong resident of Greene county.

Angry Motorist Pays for Brick Tossing Job

Just a case of mistaken identity was the excuse given by Joseph Schmittlein, 23, of 2112 Vine street, to Magistrate E. M. Hough in North Side Police Station today for having tossed a brick through the window of an automobile owned by Charles Schaefer, 393 Spring Garden road, Reserve Township.

Schmittlein had parked his car in Lowrie street, last night, while attending a movie. Leaving, he went to a car similar in every respect to his own and tried to open the door. His key wouldn't fit.

Schmittlein said he became angry and broke a window of the car with a brick.

Schaefer then appeared and Schmittlein discovered he was trying to drive the wrong machine. His stood nearby.

In breaking the window Schmittlein cut both hands. He was arrested at Allegheny General Hospital where he had gone for treatment charged with disorderly conduct. Today, after he agreed to pay for the damage, he was discharged.

TRAFFIC LIGHT WORK STARTS

Safety Director James M. Clark today was to sign a contract with the General Electric Company for equipment for the downtown synchronized electric traffic control system. Clark awarded the contract yesterday on a bid of $68,300. Installation of underground cable to carry current to the equipment has been begun by the Duquesne Light Company.

Boston Heiress Asks Divorce from Count

PARIS, Jan. 10.—Countess Pierre de Jumilhac, the former Constance Coolidge, Boston heiress, has applied for a divorce.

TRI-CORNERED BUS BATTLE RESUMED

The three-cornered fight for permission to operate buses to Oakmont and New Kensington was resumed today at a hearing before the Public Service Commission on the application of the Pennsylvania General Transit Company, a subsidiary of the Pennsylvania Railroad, for permission to give the disputed district service.

The railroad at previous hearings on the applications of the Allegheny Valley Motor Coach Company, an independent, and the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company testified that the rail service was adequate and that there was no necessity for bus service. The railroad's application for the right to operate buses was not filed until after the Allegheny line had completed its case before the commission and submitted briefs.

Both the Allegheny Valley Motor Coach Company and the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company appeared to protest the railroad's application. They also protested each other's application at previous hearings.

Jewish Federation To Have Celebration

Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson of Rodef Shalom Congregation will deliver the principal address at the seventeenth annual celebration of Federation Day Sunday night in the Y. M. and W. H. A. building, Bellefield avenue. The celebration is being held under the auspices of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies. Rabbi Goodman A. Rose and officers of the Federation also will speak. The program includes entertainment by children of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement.

Life Termer Leaps 50 Feet to Death

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Jan. 10.—James R. Hicks, 37, life termer, sentenced from Kanawha County, committed suicide today by jumping from the third tier of cells to the concrete pavement below, a distance of 50 feet. Three hundred convicts witnessed the jump of Hicks.

"IRON HORSE" ACQUIRES FAMOUS EQUINE SENSE

Science has added "horse sense" to the equipment of the "iron horse," calling it "automatic train control," and today it was announced that the Pennsylvania Railroad contemplates installation of that control on its mountain or Pittsburgh division, between Pittsburgh and Altoona.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has recommended the installation and praised the Pennsylvania for its leadership in application of the automatic control and cab signal system to its locomotives. The system already has been installed on the Panhandle division of the road, and daily guards the lives of thousands of Pittsburgh commuters and other travelers.

The cab signals bring into the cab of the locomotive an exact story, of what the engineer must be prepared to deal with as his train goes forward. Five feet from his eyes, too near to be obscured by weather conditions, a row of lights supplies a reliable record of track conditions ahead. On the fireman's side of the cab are duplicate lights.

For its operation, the wayside equipment depends upon an electric current, a current that is literally a voice of safety and speaks a code language. The relays which regulate the "voice" are called coders.

"ROBOT" GETS MESSAGES

The coder talks to the engine equipment in the language of frequency. When the track ahead is clear, a 100-cycle alternating current flows in the rails, and the coder interrupts it 180 times a minute. As track conditions change, the number of interruptions per minute drops. If the rails have been broken, no current flows.

As the coder sends its message over the rails, a "robot" on the engine picks them up through electrical ears—two induction coils, one on each side under the pilot, a few inches from the rails.

The current flowing in the rails induces a current in the coils and the number of interruptions in the track current—the coder's voice—is reproduced in the induced current.

Through vacuum tubes this current is amplified, and a selective relay directs the amplified current to one of three switches, picking the one which will carry out the command the coder is issuing at the time.

WHISTLE BLOWS WARNING

Meanwhile, in the cab of the engine the lights have changed, and a small pneumatic whistle has blown. Above the engineer's head is a switch—the forestalling lever. When the whistle blows, it is a warning to the engineer that within six to nine seconds he must throw that switch or have his train temporarily taken out of his control. The action of throwing the switch is called the "acknowledgement."

But if the engineer is ill or incapacitated in any way and the fireman cannot act in his place, the automatic controls will bring the train to a dead stop the moment track conditions ahead change.

FOSTER MUSIC ON CHIMES

Services will be held at the grave of Stephen Collins Foster Sunday afternoon in commemoration of the sixty-fifth anniversary of his death. The program will be held under the auspices of the Stephen Collins Foster memorial committee of the Civic Club of Allegheny county. The speaker will be the Rev. Dr. Albert E. Day of Christ Methodist Episcopal Church.

Songs of the famous composer will be played on the chimes at Calvary Church as well as on the chimes at Trinity Cathedral. The local radio broadcasting stations also have announced programs of Foster music. Dr. Charles Heinroth and Dr. Caspar P. Koch, organists, also will play Foster music as part of their Sunday organ recitals.

5th Ave. Man Fined For Annoying Girls

Accused of having annoyed girls on their way to work in downtown stores, Harry George, 32, of 615 Fifth avenue, was fined $100 by Magistrate John Orie in Morals Court today. More than 50 complaints had been made against George, police say.

SISTER ENTERS PLEA TO SAVE JAWORSKI

Formal application to have the sentence of Paul Jaworski, Flathead mob murderer, reduced from death to life imprisonment, was filed in Criminal Court late yesterday by Jaworski's sister, Mrs. Catherine Lucile Logan, of Detroit, through Attorney M. Barney Cohen.

Application for a reprieve has already been granted by Gov. John S. Fisher and Jaworski's death date advanced from last December 31 to January 21. A hearing is to be held before the State Pardon Board in Harrisburg January 15 to determine whether a lunacy commission shall be appointed to examine Jaworski.

In the application for commutation to life imprisonment the reason set up is that when Jaworski was recaptured in Cleveland September 13, after his break from the Allegheny county jail, he was shot in the head, the bullet rendering him insane.

The hearing will be held at the same time the Pardon Board hears the application for the lunacy commission. Attorney Cohen will argue the case for Jaworski and First Assistant District Attorney Andrew T. Park will argue for the Commonwealth. He will be backed by evidence from Dr. Edward E. Mayer, who this week made an examination of Jaworski in the jail.

Mother-in-Law on Girl's Side in Divorce Suit

A mother testified against her own son today in Common Pleas Court to help her daughter-in-law win a divorce.

The mother, Mrs. M. McCabe, of 202 Hawkins avenue, North Braddock, testified that her son, Ferdinand, had preferred the company of other women to that of his wife, Viola McCabe, and that he had treated his wife brutally.

The McCabes eloped in 1917, when the wife was not yet 15. They have two children.

Fagan Calls Turn On Vacation —And Wins

"Too bad we're not in Florida away from all this cold."

So said Horace F. Baker, former president of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation, as he chatted with Patrick T. Fagan, president of District No. 5, United Mine Workers of America, as they sat in court.

"That's where I'll go when I win this suit from you," Fagan answered.

Today Fagan stands in a fair way to take his Southern vacation, for he yesterday was awarded a $5,000 verdict in his suit against the coal corporation for false arrest. The company may delay his departure by appealing the case, its counsel indicated today.

The suit followed Fagan's arrest for an alleged attempt to incite a riot among non-union miners entering a coal corporation truck in front of the Wabash Building, Liberty avenue.

FIVE HELD UP BY ROBBERS

L. A. Woods, 221 Atwood street, and Sam Moodie, 3314 Butler street, reported to police early today that while sitting in a parked automobile in Schenley Park they were held up by two Negroes.

Woods says he lost $75 and a watch valued at $100 and Moodie says he lost $53.

W. A. Maroney, 46 Harwood street, reported to police that about midnight he was held up by two men at Forbes and Boyd streets and robbed of his watch and tie pin.

J. P. Bockwisp, Ardary street, was held up and robbed at Friendship avenue and Pearl street about 11 o'clock last night. The bandits got 60 cents and a scarf valued at $18.

Y. Bogdes, 3012 Spruce way, reported that two Negroes held him up and robbed him about 10 o'clock last night at Thirty-second street and Mulberry way. They took $18.

ELECTRIC "EYE" WILL GUIDE TRAFFIC

The first installation of the electrical "traffic eye," which "sees" traffic needs and switches signals to meet changes in traffic flow, will probably be made here within a few days, it was announced today by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company.

The device is the invention of Dr. Philips Thomas, Westinghouse research engineer, who demonstrated it last night before the New York Electrical Society. The city is cooperating in the experiment here.

DOES OWN OPERATING

The eye is the keystone of a new system which would give motorists on a major street the green or "go" signal continuously until a car on the side street came within a short distance of the intersection. Then the lights would go on a prearranged or set program of operation, flashing green and red at set periods. After the cross street traffic had passed, the lights would return to green on the main street and stay that way until another car appeared on the side avenue.

SHADOW STARTS SIGNALS

The electric eye is placed in a mushroom covering in the street, with white lines marking its position, and comes into action when a car or other vehicle passes over it, casting a shadow on the eye. Only when a vehicle actually passes over the "eye" will it function. A beam of light directed from an overhead lamp assures a sufficiently dense shadow and tests have proven that only the deep shadow such as is cast by a vehicle directly over the eye will put it in operation.

If the apparatus should go wrong for any reason the traffic lights would revert to a set program.

Dr. Thomas believes his invention would speed up traffic, especially at night, when cars on a main artery of travel are held up for a definite period, even though there be no cars using the cross street.

WAR VET MOTHERS' BILL ACTION URGED IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Senator Royal D. Copeland, of New York, has opened a drive to get action on the gold star mothers bill which has been reposing in the military affairs committee since last session.

From the floor of the Senate yesterday, Copeland called upon Senator Bingham, of Connecticut, in charge of the sub-committee considering the measure, to explain the situation.

Bingham declared the committee had asked Senator Wagner, of New York, for an opinion as to the constitutionality of the bill and was awaiting his reply.

The bill passed the House last session. It provides for a pilgrimage to the war cemeteries of France of gold star mothers and others. The government would pay the expenses of the pilgrimage of the mothers and widows.

Store Employe Held, One Fined in Theft

City Detectives Robert Best and William Cryster early today arrested Lawrence Lewis, 42, 2208 Webster avenue, and Robert Jones, 43, 114 Auburn street, Negroes, as they were leaving a downtown department store, the detectives say, with a quantity of stolen merchandise. A search of Jones' home disclosed jewelry and other merchandise which, detectives say, was stolen from the store where Jones and Lewis are night porters. At a police court hearing Jones was held for court by Magistrate John Orrie, under $1,000 bail, on a larceny charge, and Lewis was fined $10 with the option of spending 30 days in jail.

SEARCH FOR KIDNAPED OHIO BOY SWINGS WEST

By WILLIAM PFARR,
Staff Correspondent.

ORRVILLE, O., Jan. 10.—The search for 4-year-old Melvin Horst, who disappeared two weeks ago, turned to the little farming town of Shelby, 50 miles west of here today.

Shelby's chief of police, R. V. Tucker, brought to Detective Ora Slater a report that a motorist stopped in Shelby last Friday night with a boy bundled in robes in the back seat of his auto. The man stopped his car, halted a pedestrian and offered him $10 to provide a bed for the boy over night.

ARRAIGNMENTS FRIDAY

The car was said to be of the same type as the one parked near the Arnold home at the time Melvin vanished. The Arnold family—father, two sons, daughter and son-in-law—all indicted yesterday on charge of child stealing, were to be arraigned today in Common Pleas Court. They are expected to plead not guilty.

Special Prosecutor Walter Mougey was quoted, after the Arnolds were indicted, as saying the state had enough evidence on which to expect a conviction.

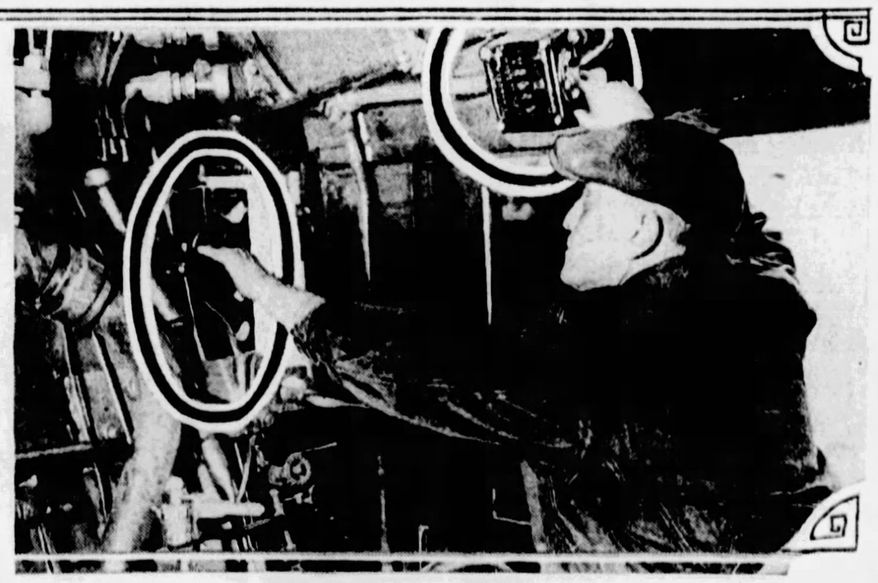
Mougey admitted the prosecution will have to reach others before the case is cleared up and the child is returned, dead or alive, to his parents. He was confident both these goals will be attained soon and the theory that the motive is revenge will hold. The Arnolds have been arrested several times on liquor charges by Melvin's uncle, Marshal Roy Horst.

The indictments were obtained against the Arnolds without the testimony of young Junior Hanna, playmate of the missing boy and a nephew of Elias Arnold, one of the five indicted.

Safety Signals Flashed to Enginemen in Cab, Require "Answer"

SIGNALS IN CAB FOR FIREMAN

No longer need this fireman lean out of the cab window to peer through smoke, rain, fog or snow to see signal lights. The cab signal lights (in oval) tell him what track conditions are miles ahead. This is part of Pennsylvania Railroad's new signal system.



ENGINEER "ANSWERS" EACH SIGNAL

The engineer also has these lights. But if he does not "answer" them the train is removed from his control. Each time signals (in oval) change, he must throw the switch (in circle) to retain control of his locomotive. If he doesn't, his train stops.

SCHILPP KEEPS CONTROLLER DEPUTYSHIP

John Schilpp, Jr., 1215 Pemberton street, Twenty-seventh Ward, deputy city controller for nearly three years, was reappointed today by Controller Henry Oliver Evans. The position pays $4,800 a year.

Schilpp began his public service in August, 1906, as bookkeeper for James Brown, city controller of old Allegheny. When Allegheny was annexed to Pittsburgh in 1908, Schilpp was transferred to the office of the late Controller Eustace S. Morrow. He continued as bookkeeper under the late Controller John R. Henderson until March, 1926, when he was promoted to deputy controller after the death of Charles F. Weible.

Evans promoted Miss Marie A. Floyd from stenographer to controller's secretary. The controller announced he would make no further changes for the present as the office is in a period of transition as a result of installing a system for centralizing all the city's accounts in the controller's office as a substitute for the present system of having various departments keeping their own books.

Success Lecture Well Attended

Memorial Hall was thronged last night by men and women anxious to acquire the formula of success from G. E. Marchand in his first of six free lectures on "How You Can Win in Business and in Life." The second lecture will be given at 8:15 o'clock tonight.

Mace Speaks at "Y" On "Missing Mark"

James C. Mace will speak on "Missing the Mark" tomorrow at 12:30 o'clock in the auditorium of the Downtown Y. M. C. A., Third avenue and Wood street. Men are invited. The address will be broadcasted by station KDKA.

Re-Appointed

JOHN SCHILPP, JR.

John Schilpp, Jr., was reappointed deputy controller yesterday by Controller Henry Oliver Evans. He has served in that capacity for more than three years.

Identify Will By Soot-Made Fingerprints

Fingerprints, apparently impressed by means of soot, and his mark identified the will of Ephraim Ziff, of this city, filed for probate today.

The testator left a $6,000 estate to his niece, Rebecca Lazier, of 6313 Waldron street, with the provision that she is to pay each of her four daughters $500 when they are married. He also bequeaths $100 to the Jewish Home for Babies. His niece is named executor.

BANK RECORDS CALLED INTO RUM RAID PROBE

Federal Judge Schoonmaker today issued subpenas directing Edward A. Young, secretary-treasurer of the Real Estate Trust Company, North Side, to furnish the federal grand jury with a record of the bank's transactions with the Union Fishing Club from November 1, 1928. A record also is to be furnished showing the number of visits of club officers to safe deposit boxes in the bank.

The club was raided Tuesday.

James Edmister, Curwensville, one of the grand jurors, ill for several days, today was excused from service and sent home. He is suffering from a severe cold.

Representatives of 10 other banks on the North Side and other parts of the city are under subpena to appear before the federal grand jury with bank records of certain individuals, including seven defendants in the former indictment charging the existence of a conspiracy on the North Side to violate the prohibition law. They are Herman R. Bloedel, E. Joseph d'Angelo, Edward L. Horigan, Daniel McLaughlin, Otto Heck, Frederick A. Stratman and Ben Wagner.

The bankers also were instructed to bring in bank records of Police Magistrate John Orie, Stanley Orie, Joseph Boye and Martin J. Brady.

MARKET STREET SAFE ROBBED

Using axes and knives found in the place, robbers pried open a cabinet safe in the Army and Navy store, 404 Market street, it was discovered today, and escaped with $242 taken from the safe and a cash register. Detectives believe the robbers entered through a skylight.

Man Killed in Fall

Elman Langille, 38, of Wampum, Pa., was killed this morning in the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad yards in Stowe Township. Langille, carpenter foreman, fell from a railroad shed on which he was working.

War Vet, Lighting Cigaret, Killed In Gas Blast

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 10.—John J. Kurtz, 36, World War veteran, died yesterday from injuries received when gas exploded in his room as he lighted a cigaret.

ZONING CHANGE VOTED DOWN

An ordinance providing for a change in the zoning classification which would permit the erection of a large apartment house at Fifth and Morewood avenues, was voted down yesterday by Council. Sitting as a committee of the whole, the nine members voted adversely on the proposed ordinance and the effect will be to pigeonhole the project indefinitely.

Many written protests had been received by Council prior to the special hearing yesterday, and when the hearing began there were more than 100 interested parties present in the Council chamber. Protests had been received from the City Planning Commission, the Pittsburgh Housing Association, the Allegheny County League of Women Voters, the East Liberty Chamber of Commerce and others.

The neighborhood, now restricted to one-family dwellings standing far back from the street, would be spoiled by the proposed new building, the planning commission report on the proposal declared.

R. J. JONES, ONCE STEEL MAN HERE, DIES

NORTHPORT, N. Y., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Richard J. Jones, son-in-law of the late Adam W. Wagnalls, of Funk & Wagnalls, publishers, died yesterday at his home here. He was 54.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones in 1927 endowed at Lithopolis, O., a school library and community house.

Mr. Jones was born in Pittsburgh, Pa. He was a graduate of St. Charles College, Maryland, and Georgetown University, Washington, D. C. Admitted to the bar in 1910, he practiced law in Ohio for several years. Later he went to Pittsburgh and attained considerable success in the steel industry, holding an executive post with the Pittsburgh Steel Corporation for several years. He retired in 1920, when he moved to Northport.

Mr. Jones had appeared many times before civic bodies all over the world to plead for Esperanto, the proposed universal language sponsored by his father-in-law, and in 1916 attended the international Esperanto congress at Edinburgh, Scotland.

He is survived by his widow, a sister, Mrs. Adam Worcester, of Halliwell, Me., and a half brother, Cornelius Mullins, of Newton, Conn. The body will be sent to Lithopolis for burial.

Pneumonia Kills 13th In Penitentiary Here

John W. Glunt, 40, a prisoner in the Western Penitentiary, died there at 1:20 o'clock this morning of pneumonia. This makes the thirteenth pneumonia death at the penitentiary within the last few weeks. Glunt was serving a 6-to-12-year sentence for burglary and larceny, having been convicted in Huntingdon County, Pa., May 31, 1927.

"Pass me a Lucky - I pass up the sweets." Johnny Farrell

Johnny Farrell, National Open Golf Champion, 1928

Reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet.

Johnny Farrell, National Open Golf Champion, 1928

When fattening sweets tempt and you dread extra weight, light a Lucky instead. No discomfort, no trouble—just a common sense method of retaining a slender figure.

The finest tobaccos are skilfully blended to make Lucky Strike. Then, "It's Toasted." This secret process brings out every essence in the tobaccos and produces a flavor which makes Lucky Strike a delightful alternative when you crave fattening sweets—there is no interference with a natural appetite for healthful foods. That's why folks say: "It's good to smoke Luckies."

At the same time toasting removes impurities. That's why 20,679 physicians are on record that Lucky Strike is less irritating than other cigarettes. That's why prominent athletes have testified that Luckies steady their nerves and do not impair their physical condition. No wonder that this was discovered long ago by many men, who pride themselves on keeping trim and fit, who love the "pep" that comes with health and vigor.

A reasonable proportion of sugar in the diet is recommended, but the authorities are overwhelming that too many fattening sweets are harmful and that too many such are eaten by the American people. So, for moderation's sake we say:—

"REACH FOR A LUCKY INSTEAD OF A SWEET."

Do you cross your fingers when you step on the starter... on cold, frosty mornings?

WHEN the mercury's been almost out of sight all night--and you open the garage on a bitter, cold morning--are your fingers crossed when you step on the starter?

Or, like tens of thousands of motorists using AMOCO-GAS, are you confident of results?

With AMOCO-GAS in your tank, one touch on the starter will be answered by a smooth-running hum. Snap through traffic on the coldest morning without stalling and with nary a splutter. Let AMOCO-GAS save strain on your battery, reduce the use of choke and consequent crank case dilution, make motoring as much of a pleasure in January as it was in July.

Uncross your fingers and snap them at Jack Frost. Get AMOCO-GAS today.

DECEPTION ISLAND (Antarctica), Jan. 9.—Wednesday—(Via Whaler Hektoria and Kup, San Francisco Examiner Wireless Station.)—The weather here is turning colder, which is well for our purposes. It will make the snow surface harder and, we hope, permit us to take off in our plane and land by means of skis.

Atmospheric conditions, however, are unfavorable for exploration purposes. Low clouds obscure the mountains, and the fog is so thick that it seriously interferes with whaling operations. The fog hangs low over the water, making visibility very poor.

We tried for three hours last night to hear Com. Byrd's station and get in touch with him, but without success. We shall try again tonight, with better luck, we hope.

"Con" Shea, Chicago Labor Leader, Ill

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Cornelius P. (Con) Shea, one of the country's most colorful labor leaders, is critically ill in a Chicago hospital. Physicians hold little hope for his recovery. Shea's career as a labor leader is spotted with bombings and sluggings. He was the center of the sensational conspiracy trial following the teamsters' strike in 1905, which resulted in a "hung" jury and his acquittal.

INQUIRY MADE IN SHOP FIRE

Fire Marshal Thomas L. Pfarr is investigating the finding of an oil-soaked box and papers in the rear of the Cuda Jewelry Palace, 213 Diamond street, early today after firemen had extinguished a fire in the establishment.

The box and papers, along with the oil-soaked head of a mop were taken to the Central Police Station by firemen. Damage was estimated at $1,000 by District Chief Frank Jones.

The jewelry store occupies the first floor of a three-story brick structure. The upper floors are vacant. The blaze originated in the rear of the first floor and firemen had a hard fight to keep the flames confined to the first floor. Lindy's restaurant at 211 Diamond street was filled with smoke.

Chief Jones and firemen searched the premises after the flames had been extinguished and reported finding the articles.

Father: don't take "flu" home to the baby

Dr. David says: "Take these two precautions daily"

"Fathers who are out in the crowds, contacting many people every day, are the very ones who should guard most against influenza germs.

"It is not yet clear how such germs are spread or passed on from one to another, but the man who keeps well himself is actually protecting his family too.

"I'm going to prescribe two daily precautions. If you follow them, the chances are you'll be safe.

"First keep a bottle of Mistol handy and use it freely. It is quite harmless but it does protect against influenza germs.

"Mistol is easy to use in the office because of the handy dropper for applying that comes in the package. Tilt the head far back and let the soothing Mistol run down the back of the nose and throat. You'll feel the cleansing effect at once. And if you have a sore throat or touch of a cold, gargle Mistol freely too.

"The second safety measure is as easy as the first. Take a dose of Nujol every night. Nujol keeps the system in good condition.

"Physicians agree that, particularly in times of epidemic, purging by laxatives and cathartics is not advisable. Many doctors are therefore prescribing Nujol, as in no case does it cause exhaustion or weakening of the system in any way.

"Nujol is as harmless as water. Just a pure natural substance that keeps the system functioning as nature intends it to."

$31,000 AWARDS FOR SPIRIT MESSAGES

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(INS)—Mediums, Spiritualists and explorers of "the great unknown" today can still contend for $31,000 in awards for producing spiritualistic manifestations which cannot be reproduced by scientific or natural means.

This was the announcement of the magazine through which the prizes are offered despite that Arthur Ford, minister of the First Spiritualist Church, says he received and decoded the secret message of the late Harry Houdini to his wife from the world of spirits.

Officials of the magazine pointed out that the message in code had been published in a book, "Harry Houdini, His Life Story," by Harry Kellogg, and that since its publication someone may have been successful in decoding the message.

Joseph Dunninger, head of the psychical research committee of the magazine, held that third person, possibly the nurse in the sickroom in which Houdini was confined, may have overheard the message both in code and decoded when Houdini and his wife discussed it shortly before the magician's death.

Mrs. Houdini is now seriously ill and at times has been delirious and she may have revealed the message, Dunninger said.

Officials of the magazine said Mrs. Houdini claimed to have withdrawn her $10,000 award several weeks ago without notifying the magazine. The magazine, however, will continue its $31,000 offer for true Spiritualism. Ford has expressed no intention of claiming any of the prizes.

Houdini before his death promised to reveal a code message to his wife from the spirit world, if possible. The message consisted of 10 words each standing for a letter which when decoded produced the word "believe."

"HEX" CASE NO SURPRISE TO NOTED SPOOK HUNTER

So long as man remains credulous and highly emotional, there will bebelivers in witchcraft and voodooism, and crafty individuals—"pow-wow doctors," paplois and mediums—will continue to befuddle the minds of gullible people, in the opinion of J. Malcolm Bird, formerly associate editor of the Scientific American, and research officer for the American Society of Psychical Research.

Hunts Spooks

J. MALCOLM BIRD

The business of J. Malcolm Bird, visiting in Pittsburgh, is hunting "spooks" — exposing mediumistic frauds.

Mr. Bird, who lectured at the Young Men's and Women's Hebrew Association, is known as the official "spook hunter" for this half of the world and as such has exposed mediumistic frauds all over the country.

Bird was asked what he thought of the York "hexing" case.

"There is nothing new or startling in this case," he said. "Witchcraft is being practiced, more or less, all over the country. It can never be stamped out as long as people persist in being credulous and highly emotional and, by their credulity, encourage "hexers" to practice their craft."

HOSPITALS GET SEIZED RUM

Liquor seized at Erie last summer, when an effort was being made to smuggle it into the United States, was today ordered distributed among a number of hospitals.

Judge W. H. S. Thomson signed the order of distribution. The liquor had been condemned and forfeited to the government.

The liquor was ordered distributed as follows: Mercy Hospital, 56 gallons; St. Francis, 54 gallons; St. Johns, 50 gallons; Kittanning, 30 gallons; West Penn, 30 gallons; City Tuberculosis Hospital, 25 gallons, Allegheny General, 20 gallons; St. Josephs, 20 gallons; Presbyterian, 15 gallons; Ohio Valley, 9 gallons; Homeopathic, 7 gallons; Magee, 6 gallons; Suburban, 5 gallons; Childrens' 3 gallons, and Columbia, 2 gallons.

City Protests Order To Move Sewer Site

City officials will leave tonight for Washington to confer with the War Department in an effort to have it rescind an order to change the location of the outlet for the 13-foot sewer on Thirty-third street. The change involving a question of harbor lines would cost $25,000.

The party will include Director Edward G. Lang and Chief Engineer Charles M. Reppert, of the Department of Public Works.

Maj. Jarvis J. Bain, local district engineer of the War Department, has ordered the outlet changed.

Ice Men Denied New "Dry" Trial

Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker today denied a motion for a new trial on behalf of the Standard Ice Company, North Side, Albert Miller and George D. Lyons, company officials. All were convicted at the November term of unlawful possession of high-test beer and the two men of conspiracy to violate the dry laws. The court set January 26 for imposing sentence. The prosecution followed seizures of beer by federal prohibition agents.

Weather Conditions.

The southwestern disturbance moved rapidly northeastward. It is now centered over Eastern Ontario; lowest barometer, 29.14 inches, at Parry Sound. The disturbance produced precipitation over all the states east of the Rocky Mountains, snow over the more northerly states and rain southward. The rains were light to moderately heavy in a few localities. Another disturbance appears over North Dakota this morning. It is producing mild weather over all the northwestern states, but so far little precipitation. It is separated from the eastern disturbance by a narrow ridge of relative high pressure, which extends from Western Ontario southward over Minnesota and Iowa to a crest over the Texas Panhandle, thence northwestward to a more pronounced high over the plateau section. This high pressure is causing only moderately cold weather over the eastern plains and the upper Mississippi Valley states.

River Conditions.

Light rains over the river basins will produce slight rises, especially over the Monongahela, where the rains amounted to about .60 inch on the average. Stage at Pittsburgh is 11.9 feet; Dam No. 2, 5.1, and Dam No. 8, 8.7. The dams are up.

GIRL'S STORIES MYSTIFY POLICE

Found living on an aged man's houseboat in the Monongahela River, near Homestead, Suzanne Hoffman, 17, was committed to the Juvenile Detention rooms late yesterday while county detectives began a search for her relatives or friends.

The girl tells many different stories, detectives say. First she said she had come here from California, after her father, a motorcycle policeman, had been killed; then she had been kidnaped downtown by four masked men and robbed of a large sum of money, and finally that she had come to this city from the West in a transcontinental plane.

Sufferers From Neuritis, Rheumatics, Swollen Joints—Amazing New German Remedy can be had without Risking Penny.

IMPORTANT NOTICE!—By special arrangement we can now extend to any person in Pittsburgh who suffers from the terrible racking pains of Rheumatism, Neuritis, or joint trouble the opportunity of trying an amazing new German discovery which is guaranteed to give quick relief from the agony and suffering caused by these ailments.

The terrible pains of Rheumatism, Neuritis, Sciatica or Swollen Joints are always due to an infection which can often be traced to toxic poisons, such as a blind pus pocket in a tooth, diseased tonsils or the poisons set free by constipation. These poisons are carried in the blood, setting up infections which result in agonizing rheumatic joint and nerve ailments. Rheunesia Tablets, as this amazing treatment is called, helps the blood throw off these violent poisons and neutralizes the toxic acids in much the same way as Milk of Magnesia neutralizes an acid stomach, thus giving instant relief from pain.

Even in the most advanced and stubborn cases the use of this remarkable preparation has shown astonishing improvement at once in many cases. Tired muscles regain life, creaking joints with the pain all gone become supple and annoying Rheumatic twinges cease almost instantly.

Scientists now know that none of the old methods of treating rheumatism really got to the cause of the trouble. We claim that Rheunesia will prove to you in a few minutes time that it does get right at the cause of your trouble because you yourself will see what instant relief it gives you. You take no risk at all. Use it for a week and note the improvement in your case. Since it costs nothing for any person that is not benefited it would seem that anyone who suffers from pain should give it a trial at once.

Trial Coupon

Fill in this coupon with your name and address and bring it right to May's. Deposit with us $1.95, which is our special price for the regular $2.50 package of Rheunesia. This is not a payment, but a deposit only. If you are not more than delighted with the results obtained by a week's use of Rheunesia simply return the package and we will promptly refund your money without argument.

WESTINGHOUSE TAKES OVER NUTTALL CO.

The Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company has taken over the assets of the R. D. Nuttall Company as of January 1, it was announced by President E. M. Herr. The operations of the Nuttall Company will be carried on as a branch of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company.

The Nuttall plant in Butler street will be known as the Nuttall works of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company and the product will be called Westinghouse-Nuttall.

The plant has been in existence since 1896 and now employs about 500 men. It manufactures gears and pinions both for the Westinghouse company and for the general trade. It has been under Westinghouse control since the early years of its operation.

The merger of physical properties and the dissolution of the R. D. Nuttall Company will not result in any change in policy or management.

The Sun-Telegraph Fifteen Cent Pattern

A CHIC TWO-PIECE MODEL.

This is an excellent style for tweed, jersey or cashmir. As pictured tweed in tan and brown tones was selected with facings of tan crepe. The blouse is trimmed with a shaped inserted facing. The sleeve is a comfortable model gathered above a deep cuff, at the wrist. A plaited insert set into the skirt front on diagonal lines supplies graceful fulness. The skirt is mounted on an underbody.

This pattern is cut in 5 sizes: 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. To make the dress for a 38 inch size will require 4¾ yards of 39 inch material. The underbody requires ⅞ yard of 32 inch lining. To face the blouse insert, belt and cuffs with contrasting material requires ⅝ yard 39 inches wide. The width of the dress at the lower edge with plait fulness extended is 1¾ yards.

COUPON.

This pattern will be sent on receipt of 15 cents (silver or 2c and 1c stamps). Make number, name, address, etc., plain. Send to Pattern Department, The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

High Praise for "PLANTABBS"

All over this city people are telling how fine their plants are looking since they started using Plantabbs. One lady says: "I've used lots of dirty, smelly fertilizers on my ferns, palms and potted flowers, but nothing did them as much good as Plantabbs. The Plantabbs are so clean and easy to handle I often put them in the pots on Sunday after I have dressed for the day."

Plantabbs are FOOD for your plants. They contain all the nourishment needed by a fern, begonia, geranium, palm or any other indoor plant or flower. Yet they are absolutely odorless, and being in compressed tablet form, are so clean and easy to handle it's a real pleasure to use them.

25c, 50c and $1.00 packages are on sale at all florists, seed dealers and druggists in this city. Out-of-town customers may order direct from the Plant Products Company, Baltimore, Md.

Exhibition of Fine Hand-Woven Tapestries

A collection of beautiful hand-woven tapestries is being shown this week in the Decorative Studios. These tapestries, designed by Lorenz Kleiser, internationally famous designer, are true works of art, as well as decorative wall pieces. Lorenz Kleiser, the designer, is the guest of this store, this week, in connection with the exhibition.

The Significance of Tapestry

A fine tapestry is more than an art object and a beautiful decoration. For it turns the tapestry lover to history, art and literature, and opens for him a new world of interest.

Tapestry weaving is an art that flourished during the Gothic and Renaissance periods of history, and declined under nineteenth century industrialism.

Today, however, it is being revived, and modern hand-woven pieces, such as those in the exhibition, carry forward the old traditions, and make of tapestry again a great art.

Radiator Enclosures

Keep Walls and Curtains Clean

What woman doesn't recognize the problem presented by the dirty curtains above a radiator, or a smudged wall behind it? Enclosing the radiator in an attractive looking cover is the modern and scientific way to solve this problem. And you improve the appearance of a room, and utilize the space efficiently. These particular radiator enclosures, which come in different styles and finishes, have also a water pan under the cover. This removes dust from the heated air, and humidifies the air, making it more healthful.

DOUBLED LIGHT FOR STORES, ALSO BILLS

Max Boico, 35, local representative of the Commercial Illuminating Company, New York, offices in the Lyceum Building, according to testimony given before Magistrate John Orrie this morning, sought to give small store merchants better and cheaper light.

Boico's agents, it was testified, on entering a store would size up its electric lighting facilities, suggest that they were poor and that by paying $16 for one of their double lights, the store would have more light with no increase in light bill.

Buyers were asked to sign a contract, a dollar down and a dollar a week. The new lights, it was testified, gave twice as much light, but the light bill was also doubled.

Investigation showed that more light was obtained by the simple expedient of placing a 200-watt bulb where only a 100-watt one had beamed before.

Boico was fined $50 or 30 days for violating a city ordinance in that he had no license. Among those who testified were Israel Handelman, 18 Wabash avenue; Frank Wattman, 1750 West Carson street; Thomas Taxay, 1339 Sheffield street, and Sam Kurley, 421 Main street.

Autoist Who Killed Boy Pleads Guilty

Morris Levy, 17, of Webster avenue, pleaded guilty to involuntary manslaughter in Criminal Court before Judge C. D. Copeland, of Westmoreland county, late yesterday, after he had been placed on trial for the death of Charles E. Bradshaw, 6, Negro, of 2936 Webster avenue, who was killed by an automobile driven by Levy August 26. Levy contended the boy darted in front of his car. Sentence was suspended for six months to give Levy time to pay $300 doctor bills to the dead boy's parents, after which final disposition of the case will be made.

POPE, BUSINESS LEADER HERE, SUCCUMBS

Charles E. Pope, 69, founder and president of the Impervious Varnish Company, died yesterday in Mercy Hospital following a long illness. Mr. Pope was a prominent business man here and in addition to heading his own company, was associated with a number of other local concerns. His home was at 202 Darragh street.

Mr. Pope was a lifelong resident of Pittsburgh, having been born in old Allegheny City. For some years he was connected with the Pennsylvania Railroad and then entered the steel business. He retired from this industry and became head of the Pope Tin Plate Company. When this concern was taken over by the Weir interests, he organized the varnish company.

He was a director of the Farmers Deposit National Bank; the Farmers Deposit Trust Company and the Reliance Life Insurance Company. He was a member of the Duquesne Club and the Longue Vue Country Club. He leaves three brothers and a sister.

Carpenters Arrested In Union Hall Freed

Not wishing to cause any shortage of carpenters in the city, Magistrate John Orrie this morning discharged the 56 members of the Carpenters' Union arrested yesterday afternoon at union headquarters, 241 Fourth avenue. George Siefert, 1219 Madison avenue, North Side, business agent for the union, testified that the men were waiting to go out on jobs. The men had been arrested in the union's recreation room on the third floor on disorderly conduct charges following complaint of business people.

Pudding He Forgot To Buy Costs $25

A plum pudding was the cause of James Hammond, 68, 112 Scott way, being fined $25 with the option of serving 30 days in the workhouse this morning by Magistrate John Orrie. Hammond, it was said, went into a downtown store yesterday afternoon, picked up the plum pudding and started out without paying for it. He was arrested, charged with being a suspicious person.

POLICE SEEKING GIRL THOUGHT KIDNAPED

Department of Justice agents, police of Steubenville, Massillon, East Liverpool and Youngstown, O., and city detectives are searching for Bertha Herbert, 16, of 911 Sandusky street, who disappeared from her home Sunday night.

Mrs. Edith Herbert, mother of the girl, believes her daughter has been kidnaped and taken to an Ohio city. She told police Tuesday that she believed her son-in-law, Edward Humphreys, 32, of 911 Sandusky street, was responsible for the girl's disappearance.

Humphreys was arrested Monday night on complaint of his mother-in-law. He was arraigned in Morals Court Tuesday and remanded to jail for an investigation.

Federal authorities say they have learned that a man answering Humphreys' description was seen in Steubenville last week in company with a young girl. According to Department of Justice agents, the man obtained a room at a cheap rooming house.

Tuesday Humphreys denied that he was responsible for the girl's disappearance.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

CREOMULSION

FOR THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

666 VS. INFLUENZA

To combat the flu, take 666 every three hours till it acts well on the bowels, then three times a day. As a preventive, take it two or three times a day. 666 was found to be one of the most effective remedies during the last flu epidemic.

Held in Search

EDWARD HUMPHREYS

Charged by his mother-in-law with kidnaping her 16-year-old daughter, Bertha Herbert, last Sunday night, Edward Humphreys, 32, 911 Sandusky street, is held today in Central Police Station for investigation while Department of Justice agents, city detectives and police of four Ohio towns search for the girl.

YOU FOLKS WITH ACHES AND PAINS CAN GET QUICK RELIEF

Nationally Known Baseball Trainer Says It Does Not Matter Whether It Is Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuralgia or Neuritis

LINIMENT HE USES ON BIG LEAGUE BALL PLAYERS STOPS PAIN QUICK

Tells How To Stop Pains, Aches, Lame Back Quickly.

READ WHAT THIS EXPERT HAS TO SAY

For over twenty-five years I have studied how to keep men in perfect physical condition and my experience makes me certain I can take a person, no matter how much they ache and hurt, from rheumatism, lame back, neuritis, lumbago, neuralgia or over-exercise, and quickly have them feeling like running a foot race or a home run.

Ball players after getting up a sweat often play an inning or two in the rain and then damp, cold and chilled to the bone, catch trains, with result that next day they show up at the ball park so crippled with rheumatism, lameness and stiff joints that they can hardly walk. An ordinary liniment would never fix them up quickly, but the liniment we use does the trick, declares Mike Martin, genial trainer of the Washington American League Baseball Club.

FANS KNOW MIKE

So many people with rheumatism, lame backs, neuritis and neuralgia have wanted this liniment which we use at the ball park that bottles are mailed all over the country and now it can be obtained at any good drug store, in small bottles for a few cents. Just ask for Mike Martin's Liniment. It is guaranteed to be the finest, speediest liniment made and will bring complete relief to user or money refunded. Mike Martin has had a folder printed telling how to use this liniment and one is enclosed with each bottle. If people out of town annot get Mike Martin's Liniment they should send a dollar for large size bottle to Mike Martin, Trainer, Washington Ball Club, Washington, D. C. It is a wonderful liniment. No man or woman with aches or pains should do without it.

DEAF MUTES FOUND SAFEST AUTOISTS

Deaf mutes are probably the safest automobile drivers in Pennsylvania, according to data obtained by the Pittsburgh Motor Club from the Department of Highways, C. H. Roth, secretary of the motor club, said yesterday.

"Drivers with one arm, one leg, one eye or handicapped by some other physical defect also hold high place in the state's safety records.

"There are 177 deaf mutes holding operators' licenses in Pennsylvania, and there is no record of them having been involved in accidents. Depending entirely on sight, they make proper use of their rear-view mirrors for avoiding danger from the rear, while they use their brakes instead of their horns when approaching intersections. Besides the deaf mutes, there are 1,980 drivers in the state classified as deaf. The total coming under the classification of 'incapacitated' numbers 7,656, and from this group accidents are a rarity.

"Some disabled drivers require special appliances for their cars. In such cases, their license permit them to operate only the car so equipped. In the event they buy new cars, simular appliances must be installed and the operators are obliged to submit to re-examination to determine their fitness."

CHANGE IT MADE WAS WONDERFUL

Says Mt. Oliver Man, After Ten Herbs Ended Stomach, Liver and Bowel Trouble

"I think the change Ten Herbs has made in me is nothing short of wonderful," was the statement of Mr. Bruno Sigwart, 130 Penn Avenue, Mt. Oliver, Pa. (near Pittsburgh), to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this great natural medicine to crowds of men and women.

MR. BRUNO SIGWART

"My trouble was due to disordered stomach and bowels," continued Mr. Sigwart, who is a machinist. "Finally I had all the ailments that usually go with such conditions. I had an appetite, but it seemed as though the first few bites I ate turned into gas in my stomach and made me feel full and bloated. Indigestion caused terrible pains. Constipation troubled me all the time. My liver was not working right, and this caused attacks of biliousness. Rheumatic pains would shoot through my back. I was nervous and could not sleep soundly. I always felt tired and worn out upon arising in the morning and simply had to force myself to work.

"After reading in the papers the statements of persons who had been benefited by Ten Herbs, I started using your medicine. It surely made a great change in me. I have a splendid appetite, and can eat anything I want without being distressed with gas, bloating or pains. Constipation has disappeared, and I never have any more bilious attacks. Rheumatism is gone. My nerves are stronger, and I sleep soundly right through the night. I feel refreshed and ready for the day's work when morning comes. I feel better in every way. Ten Herbs has helped me so much that I feel it is my duty publicly to recommend your wonderful medicine."

Ten Herbs not only relieves disorders of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, but seems to have a cleansing, soothing, correcting action on the whole system.

Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine.

Impressions of the Theater Combined With Stage and Screen News

SWEET YOUNG THINGS BESIEGE CLAIBORNE FOSTER FOR ADVICE ON ACTING

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

CLAIBORNE FOSTER has been very busy during this week at the Nixon Theater, talking over with Maxwell Anderson, author of "Gypsy," the final readjustments of that vital piece of drama, but not too busy to give advice to some young girls who want to go on the stage.

The girls have seen Miss Foster play, and they think it must be easy. Here's a young girl who has got on the stage. She's a star, isn't she? Why can't we go and do likewise?

"No reason why they can't," Miss Foster says. "I never discourage anybody. I may be killing off some Sarah Bernhardt of tomorrow. But I never encourage anybody. I may be destroying the hopes of a happy home."

Miss Foster is a wonder in diplomacy as she follows out her system or policy. For one so young she has a very old head on her shoulders. She turned to one of the young things craving advice:

"If I told you to go to New York and try to break into the game, and you went, you'd hate me inside of six months. Unless you have loads of money, you may be eating at the Automat—if you eat at all. You have heard how many actors are out of work at this moment. If they can't get jobs, how can a newcomer?"

Either Way They Hate You

The sweet young thing murmured something about a hard fight and uphill work, trying to look heroic.

"That's the other side of the proposition," said Miss Foster. "You'll hate me for telling you to stay away from Broadway, won't you? You'll always feel that you had it in you, and I was your wet blanket. And if you had it in you, then you'd be justified in hating me. But nobody knows—nobody knows."

"Then how am I to find it out?"

"We never find out until it's too late. Life is like that—a gamble in ever so many ways. Some are light enough to float; others are strong enough to swim; hundreds, perhaps thousands, just sink. Those who aspire to a stage career face difficulties others know nothing about. It is a profession that is overcrowded, it is a business that is in transition, and it is a strange country to most of those who have their hearts set on it. The girl who goes from Pittsburgh or Akron to New York, hoping to get on the stage, is facing almost as hard a fight as if she went to Paris to open a millinery shop."

Hard Fight for a Tinsel Crown

"Do you think it's hopeless?" was the next timid inquiry.

"Certainly not," shot back Miss Foster. "Just a desperate fight—maybe a long fight—and almost certainly a fight for a tinsel crown. Clara Morris called it that, I think. And she was one of our greatest actresses."

Maxwell Anderson came into the dressing-room, a portfolio under his arm.

"Do you know any harder work than getting on the stage?" Miss Foster asked him. "These girls want to try it."

"Some people find it harder work to keep off," answered the dramatist. "By that I mean that the urge to act is so powerful that every other impulse is lost sight of."

"Well," mused Miss Foster, "let it go at that. If you can't help yourself, girls, if the impulse to act is stronger than any other ambition or hope, if you don't mind starving in an attic, if you have the constitution of a horse and the patience of an angel, if you have a fat purse and a stiff spine, if you have intelligence and character, go ahead and try your luck. But don't blame me for having told you to try it. And don't blame me for having warned you against trying it."

The girls went their way. "That's life," said Miss Foster. "Maybe that's Sarah Bernhardt going back to the kitchen sink. Maybe it's a happy mother headed for the fatal flame. It's life to want what's around the corner."

Fire Truck to Carry Volunteer to Grave

Volunteer firemen from all parts of the county will attend the funeral of Carl Moyer, a Stowe township volunteer, who died Monday night in the Ohio Valley Hospital. He died from injuries suffered December 28, when the Stowe township fire truck plunged off Windgap road while en route to a fire in Heidelberg. His was the third death resulting from the accident.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the First Christian Church, Island avenue. The body will be taken from the church to the cemetery on a fire truck, with several other trucks and many firemen in Line.

Raps Party Leader For Attack on Smith

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—One of the newcomers in the Democratic House membership, Representative McCormack, of Massachusetts, has taken sharp issue with views recently expressed by one of his party's leaders in that body, Representative Box, of Texas, over ridding the party of the "organization and forces" which nominated Alfred E. Smith.

McCormack in his letter to Box praised the record of Gov. Smith and declared him to be "stronger, nationally, than his party."

THEY PORTRAY PARTS :-: IN BILLS :-: OF COMING WEEK

Rowena Scott will be seen in "Echoes of 1929" in the Nixon.

Mae West comes to the Alvin in "Diamond Lil," comedy-drama.

Jane Thurston and Thurston pere remain in Pitt with magic.

Gus Van and his teammate, Joe Schenck, are Davis booking.

Clive Brook will play in "Interference," on the Stanley screen.

Vilma Banky is the star of "The Awakening," Penn film booking.

Jailing of 'Sheiks' Aim of Bachelor Legislator

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—A bill which provides for imprisonment of a variety of persons it classes as "sheiks" is being prepared for reintroduction in the Legislature by State Senator J. W. Cooper, of Omaha, a bachelor.

Senator Cooper introduced the measure in the 1925 and 1927 sessions and as drawn then it would make persons guilty of breach of promise and alienation of affections, liable to imprisonment. The new bill, Senator Cooper said, would include a number of additional "sheiks."

WINNER

Fay Ehlert, of Chicago, student of Northwestern University, wrote a one-act play, "Undercurrent," which college literary sharps told her was "terrible," despite which she entered it in a Little Theater contest in her home city last June. It won first prize for Northwestern. Tried in vaudeville in that city it has played five return engagements there. It is now touring the Keith-Albee-Orpheum circuit. Mrs. Ehlert is in Pittsburgh in connection with the appearance of the playlet next week in the Davis.

PRIZE PLAY IN STAGE BILLS

Among the acts supporting Van and Schenck on the vaudeville program in the Davis next week will be "The Undercurrent," by Fay Ehlert, the prize winning playlet of the Chicago Little Theater tournament. A cast of six takes part in this offering.

A musical comedy, the "Echoes of 1929," starring Tommy "Bozo" Snyder, comes for an engagement of one week only, opening next Monday, January 14, at the Nixon Theater. Seats are on sale. There will be Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

Seats are on sale in the box office of the Alvin for the one-week engagement, opening next Monday night, of Mae West in "Diamond Lil," coming to Pittsburgh direct from a year on Broadway, with the New York cast and production intact. The engagement is limited to one week and matinees will be given Wednesday and Saturday.

Each new generation brings to the top of the ladder a magician who is so skilled that no one can deny his mastery in that particular field. Not since Herrmann the Great has America boasted of an artist so outstanding in his profession as Howard Thurston, who is appearing in the Pitt. There will be matinee performances this afternoon and Saturday.

BANKY, WOLHEIM IN CAST

The screen attraction in the Penn, beginning January 14, will be Vilma Banky in "The Awakening." The cast includes Louis Wolheim, Walter Byron and others. "The Magic Rug," with Teddy Joyce and the Penn Stage Band, will be the stage attraction.

Four popular film players are featured in the all-talking Paramount version of the stage play, "Interference," which comes to the Stanley next week. They are William Powell, Evelyn Brent, Clive Brook and Doris Kenyon.

War buddies on a rampage find adventure in Gay Paree in "Plastered in Paris," next week's synchronized screen feature in Loew's Aldine. Sammy Cohen, who played the comedy doughboy in "What Price Glory," is featured.

Adolphe Menjou will be seen on the screen of the Grand next week in "His Private Life." His leading woman is Kathryn Carver, in private life, Mrs. Menjou.

ARLEN, CARROLL CO-STARS

Richard Arlen is co-starred with Nancy Carroll in "Manhattan Cocktail," a story of New York backstage life, which will hold the screen in the Enright, East Liberty, next week. The Marian Morgan dancers play an important part in the picture.

Lena Daley, in "Step Along," will be the attraction next week at the Academy. Lew Lewis, Flo Trotman and Lauretta Lee are in the cast.

Charles (Buddy) Rogers was given his first starring role in "Varsity," a college picture, which opens in the Regent, East Liberty, Saturday.

Stage vaudeville in the Harris for Thursday, Friday and Saturday will be headed by Dick Coy and his Racketeers. The Photophone feature will be "Marked Money."

Joe Howard will be featured in the Sheridan Square vaudeville the last half of this week. The Vitaphone feature is "Dry Martini," with Mary Astor in the stellar role.

Philharmonic Here Friday Evening

The New York Philharmonic Orchestra, with William Mengelberg, conductor, will give concerts in Syria Mosque tomorrow night and Saturday afternoon. Strauss' "Ein Heldenleben" will be given tomorrow night, when the orchestra of 104 players will be augmented by 17 extra players brought from New York especially for this work. Three Wagnerian numbers also will be given tomorrow night. On Saturday afternoon the major work will be Beethoven's Seventh Symphony.

Geraldine Farrar Here on Wednesday

Geraldine Farrar will return to Pittsburgh for a concert in Carnegie Music Hall next Wednesday night. Miss Farrar will give songs by Schubert, Schumann, Scarlatti, Mozart, Rubinstein, Grieg, Jensen, Lie and Strauss.

PIANIST

Lucie Stern, pianist, 15 years of age, who won a music scholarship in Berlin when she was six, will give a concert in Carnegie Music Hall this evening. She gave recitals in Paris, Berlin, Riga, Libau and London last season and she also played in New York.

TELL EASY WAY TO FIGHT FLU

Health Authorities Say "Foolish to Take Needless Risks"...Urge Simple Precautions

Important to Remove Germs From Hands Often

WITH city after city throughout the country, reporting more cases of flu every day—as many as a million new ones in a week—health authorities are urging people to take every precaution against this dread ailment.

Always remember that hands may spread influenza, just as they carry and spread the germs of other serious diseases. No one can escape contact with germs, authorities say. Every time we handle money, use a public telephone, touch a car strap or doorknob, we are likely to pick up germs which some one's soiled hands have left for us. For this reason, health officials advise every one to take the simplest of precautions and remove germs from hands frequently.

Greater safety in an antiseptic toilet soap

Since the outbreak of the flu, countless new thousands of people have turned to the famous Lifebuoy Health Soap. As is well known, this popular toilet soap possesses an antiseptic, germ-removing lather.

It is not enough to wash hands once or twice daily. Lifebuoy should be used many times during the day, especially before eating, for, as pathologists point out, germs get into our systems principally by direct conveyance from hand to mouth. It is important, too, that this habit of frequently removing germs from hands be practiced not only now, but at all times—just as doctors themselves do to protect themselves and their patients.

Teachers in over 63,000 schools have taught children the Lifebuoy way to guard health. Now countless thousands of mothers are being urged to follow this splendid example.

Lifebuoy is obtainable in practically every store. Its cost is no greater than other toilet soaps, so you secure its extra protection free.

Other precautions urged are as follows: Keep out of crowds. Get plenty of sleep, fresh air, and nourishing food. Take plenty of exercise. Avoid exposure. And lastly, if you have the real flu, don't take "home remedies"—call a doctor.

NOBILE CLAIMS CREDIT FOR RESCUE OF HIS MEN

down for 431 hours, to support the responsibility, fatigue, and the burden of an arduous command for the search of the secret of those deserted wildernesses of ice!

Fall of Hopes

Of what avail to have seen the dirigible fall—one's own creature—and with the dirigible all one's own hopes, all one's past, all one's future without the slightest contraction of a muscle; of what avail to have found the strength to smile, to encourage one's own companions even in the solemn instant when death seemed imminent!

Of what avail to have found in those supreme moments in which it is not possible to lie, in which man is nude before God, in which all at the depth of the soul is revealed, and masks fall, to have in that moment but one passion and one cry to express it:

"Viva L' Italia."

Of what avail to have for 30 unending days kept up the spirits of my companions, to have smiled on the moments of greatest desperation, to have comforted them, to have even encouraged them to go and leave me alone down there in the midst of the frozen desert, at the mercy of the ice, along with my wounded companions.

Of what avail to have consecrated all the energies of one's own spirit to one's companions; of what avail all this if, now profiting by Lundborg's (his Swedish aviator rescuer) accident, some one who waited in ambush as with a pointed gun for a good moment to fire, dared to launch such an infamous accusation against me!

What villainy! And to say that to remain here was so simple and easy for me.

It was easy to stay there waiting for some one to come and get me!

Duty to Leave

I said one day to someone that at that moment when I decided to leave two hours before by companions, never for an instant did I think that any one could criticise my action, but even if I had had such a suspicion I should have left all the same, deeming it my duty.

I confess, however, that in one case only would I have categorically refused to give in to sentiment rather than obey my conscience, that is, if I had foreseen the probability of an accident happening to Lundborg on his return. I should then have lacked the courage to leave. Too grave was the sacrifice to remain separated from my companions so that I would have decided spontaneously to face it.

Some even tried to compare me with the captain of a wrecked ship who abandons his post of command only at the last, after having done all that was possible to save the crew. Naturally, during the wreck of the Italia I took the most dangerous place, which was the cause of my being the most seriously wounded. But, alas, after the fall, the airship was no more, because it had flown away leaving us isolated on the ice.

Suppose that in some strange case a ship struck a rock, throwing out the captain and some officers. Suppose still that afterwards the tempest dispersed the ship so that its fate was unknown, as well as that of the remaining crew. Suppose, to continue the unlikely case, that the captain is gravely wounded; he has a broken leg; he is unable to move. Even with his calm, with his faith, with his serenity of comfort and moral support for his companions, nevertheless he can only be a very grave preoccupation for them.

Fortunately, in this wounded commander his intelligene is clear; his brain works even if his body is invalided. He percieves, or at least he thinks, that those who are directing the operations of rescue from afar, do not take the situation into account, do not act as he would like, do not do, according to his opinion, all that could be done to search for the other lost companions on the ship, and he better than any other knows how it should be done, better than any other he would be able to devote himself with all the strength of his nature to the search.

Defends Course

Though his wounds render him incapable of moving and acting himself, he can, however, examine, advise, direct; he knows all this well. And on the day in which a boat succeeds in finding and approaching the rock to take the shipwrecked men to safety one by one, the captain indicates another wounded man to be taken away first, but the rescuing captain refuses on account of the lead and insists that he should go, because he is useful, he is necessary, for the search of his companions.

Later the boat will return lighter and will take the other wounded man and the rest. The wounded commander understands the necessity, the duty of consenting and leaving before his companions, who would in a very short time rejoin him.

Be it said once and for all: As head, my post of command was here, on board the Citta di Milano, to direct the operations of succor, and not on the ice where my wounds not only prevented my assisting my companions in any way whatever, but constituted a burden and a danger for them.

After all, my having consented to be taken first by Lundborg—who asserted having received this order—and who, moreover, having the precise order of taking the wounded first, could not begin with Cecioni—was a thing which concerned only my own conscience and feelings.

The spectators, those who, without running any of the mortal risks of Lundborg, read about it in the newspapers, could find the decision of Lundborg and mine more or less sympathetic, more or less beautiful from a theatrical point of view, but they had no right to demand explanations.

Down there on the ice were six men, two wounded and four well, waiting to be rescued. The rescuer, who ran the greatest risk, was real arbiter of the choice of the order in which they should be rescued. He did well to take Nobile first, if the life of Nobile was the most important, if it were true that Nobile, though badly wounded, could give valuable advice for the carrying on of the rescue of the other shipwrecked men.

Claims Credit

And be it said, once for all—that that decision was providential for my companions. It was a great fortune for them that I was on the Citta di Milano after Lundborg's accident. Divine providence, who wished by that accident to prolong their martyrdom, calling the valorous Swede to participate in the hard trials, on the other hand had wished that in order to repair the consequences of the accident I should be found here. An ignoble tempest of calumny broke over me at the very moment when they should have thanked God that I was here.

Because after all, if on the 13th of July the Krassin could reach and save the companions, in a certain way it was through my insistence in inciting the chief of the Russian expedition, Prof. Samoilowsky, to advance, just when—depending on the damages sustained by the ice-breaker and the scarcity of combustible supply—everyone aboard the Citta di Milano gave up hope that she could advance beyond Cape North.

Everyone aboard was already giving all hope and all activities to the preparation of other means that the experience had to demonstrate as insufficient.

The Almighty, deciding that out of all my companions I alone should be taken in flight from the place where we had fallen when flying, had His designs. This was perhaps understood by my companions, when—by means of the wireless—before leaving the pack, at the very moment of embarking on the Krassin, they sent their affectionate greetings to "their beloved general." This was perhaps what they wished to express when, having returned to Italy, in saying farewell, they embraced me, greatly moved, and thanked me for having chosen them to take part in the expedition.

For them I was not the head who had abandoned them, but the beloved head, the head who always precedes, even when to precede might be considered coward by the cowards, while it is the demonstration of willing to accomplish his duty till the last and at any rate.

RESCUER BACKS NOBILE STORY

ROME, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Capt. Einar Lundborg, the Swedish aviator who rescued Gen. Umberto Nobile from the Arctic ice after the disaster to the latter's polar expedition, said yesterday that he had told the Italian commission of inquiry only what had been published already in the captain's articles and books and in his official reports to the Swedish aviation department. He had his first hearing before the commission of inquiry, headed by Admiral Cagni, yesterday.

"In this affair I am a neutral and a soldier, telling only what I saw and what I did," he said.

"I acted under orders from my superiors, who insisted that I rescue Gen. Nobile before trying to take any of the members of his crew off the ice floe on which they were stranded. That fact, however, is treated fully in my report to the Swedish aviation department."

Amundsen Plane's Life Buoy Washed Up

OSLO, Norway, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—A life buoy marked "Latham Paris" was washed ashore yesterday on the western side of North Cape in the province of Finmarken.

Roald Amundsen and five companions last June 18 began a flight in a French Latham plane to Spitzbergen, from where they were to search for the missing members of the Nobile expedition. Near the end of August, and at intervals since, pieces of wreckage have been picked up at sea off the coast of Norway.

Beats Quinine For Colds

RELIEF IN 30 MINUTES

Quinine causes roaring head, pimples, nausea. And it ISN'T the best treatment for colds or grippe. If you want to lose that achey, draggy feeling in a hurry, if you want your cold to fade overnight, try Laxa-Pirin. It contains aspirin, laxatives and other valuable elements. No quinine. Thousands now use it. Pleasant, safe, and there is positively nothing like it for quick results. Just as wonderful for headache, neuralgia, lumbago, and general pains. Insist on genuine Laxa-Pirin. PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Augusta Leovy Becomes Bride at Afternoon Church Wedding

OUR society folks gathered in great numbers yesterday afternoon at Calvary Episcopal Church where, at 5:30 o'clock, the wedding of one of our most popular girls and an out-of-town man took place. The bride, Augusta Leovy, has always taken a prominent part in all the social and philanthropic activities of the younger group—she is president of the Junior League here now, you know, and formerly was president of the Federation of Girls' School Societies—and she has hosts of friends who came out yesterday to see her married to Clarence Stanley, son of Mrs. William Stanley, of Great Barrington, Mass.

The church had been decorated simply, but impressively. At the altar were masses of Ascension lilies with very tall cathedral candles and the aisle was marked with tall baskets of the Blue Mountain pine placed at the bases of the columns completed the decorations.

Augusta is the daughter of the Frank Adair Leovys, of Beechwood boulevard, and she was given away by Mr. Leovy. She wore a beautiful gown of white transparent velvet made with long tight sleeves and a skirt ending in circular flounces dipping almost to the floor. The court train of velvet was lined with flesh-tinted velvet and was covered with the long veil of duchesse and rose point lace. She carried an armful of Calla lilies tied with white satin ribbons.

The young women of the bridal party all wore frocks of green crepe, made with circular skirts, short in front and long in back, and their hats were of green felt. Mrs. Rees Townsend Scully, the former Mary Shaw, was the matron of honor and her dress was of quite pale green, and she carried Pernet, Kordes and Joanna Hill roses tied with rainbow moire ribbon. The other frocks were in a deeper shade of green and the bouquets were similar. Augusta's two sisters, Helen and Elizabeth, were the maids of honor and the bridesmaids were Mrs. John F. Walton, Jr., the former Rachel Mellon, and Nancy Osborne, of Stockbridge, Mass.

Gilbert Stanley, of New York, was his brother's best man and the ushers included James M. Bovard, William C. Coogan, of New York, David M. Gilmore, Ed C. B. Gould, Robert McClintic, Lawrence N. Murray, R. Lucian Patton, Hugh A. Ward, of Hampstead, Long Island, and Warren M. Wells, of Philadelphia.

After the services, which were performed by the Rev. Dr. Edwin J. Van Etten, rector of the church, assisted by Bishop Alexander Mann, there was a reception and dinner in the Pittsburgh Golf Club. Covers were laid for 52 at the bridal table, and, I believe, in all there were about 500 guests at the reception. Mrs. Leovy wore a gown of French blue transparent velvet with a felt hat to match, and her sister, Miss Emma Glenny, of New Orleans, who came on for the wedding, appeared in black velvet with a black satin hat. They wore shoulder corsages of orchids.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley have gone to Nassau, in the Bahamas, for their wedding trip and when they return they will be at home in Beechwood boulevard.

ANOTHER date has been chosen for a winter wedding. This is February 9, taken by Sally Taber Todd, daughter of the James Neales, of Pembroke place, for her marriage to Tyson Nimick, son of Mrs. William Howard Nimick, of Fifth avenue. The ceremony will be performed at 5 o'clock that afternoon in the Episcopal Church of the Ascension by the rector, the Rev. Dr. Boyd Edwards.

After the service, there will be a buffet supper for the families and the bridal party, but no reception has been planned.

Our Daily Short Story

THE GIFT OF MRS. DEEMING

By Louise P. Armstrong

"WHAT right has she to take me to task like this? She gave me the portrait, and I sold it because George needed money badly. And she writes me this letter!"

Minna Davison strode up and down the length of her drawing room, unconscious grace in every movement of her slim, sinuous body. Her hair flamed about her face a red-gold glory, but her dark-fringed eyes were lit with a dangerous light, and her classical features had hardened in anger.

Minna was very angry, because she had just received a letter from the grandmother of her son Ralph—old Mrs. Deeming. Mrs. Deeming had for years refused to have anything to do with her daughter-in-law, but after Ralph's father had died and Minna had married George Davison, the boy had brought them together. Young Ralph's love and loyalty to his mother had softened the grandmother, and she had asked for Minna's friendship—and received it.

"Why get so wrought up, Minna?" asked her friend, Dolly Winston. "After all, she's only written a letter—people often write impulsively. Old Mrs. Deeming cannot know your reasons for selling the Sully portrait. If you would write and explain how George had to have the money at once, and—"

"I'll do nothing of the kind," said Minna. "The picture was given me, and I certainly had a right to sell it. I'll simply ignore her letter."

Dolly's blue eyes were troubled as she left her friend. No, she wouldn't insist on giving advice. Tom had often criticised her for that!

"George Davison's not coming home this week-end," Tom Winston said that night as he and Dolly sat down to dinner. "He's trying to make Charleston this trip. You know, I think George works too hard. Minna ought to speak to him about it."

"I guess she thinks he knows best," Dolly observed as she poured coffee.

"George has set his heart on buying back that Sully portrait Minna sold the Whittakers last month," Tom observed. "I thought at the time it was rather a noble thing for her to do, to help George out of his financial straits. I know she thought a lot of the portrait. But when one makes such a gesture, one shouldn't turn about and bemoan the fact that it has been made. I gathered from what George told me that Minna has been moping over the loss of the portrait."

"He may be mistaken," Dolly said, "and she may be worried over something else."

"Why bother to make excuses for her?" Tom asked. "You know she's selfish."

For a moment Dolly had an impulse to tell Tom about the letter old Mrs. Deeming had written Minna, but his uncompromising censure of her friend irritated her. Let him think what he pleases, since he's so smart, she said to herself. After an interval of silence, she began talking of the fruit trees planted on the western slope of their lot. "They're not doing as well as they should," she said.

"Oh, they won't do much 'til spring," Tom replied. "Suppose you speak to Minna," he added. "Tell her not to urge George to buy back the portrait—"

"I'll do nothing of the sort," Dolly refused emphatically. "Plenty of times you've said I give too much advice to my neighbors." And she was so vexed at Tom's insistence that Minna nagged poor George about the portrait she resolved to have nothing more to say about the Davisons.

So within the next few days whenever Tom started discussing their neighbors Dolly pointedly changed the subject, until at length Tom was openly peeved. "I suppose you're trying to be smart—and superior," he said. "Not that the Davisons' affairs interest me at all—I'm just sorry for poor old George!"

So the matter stood, both husband and wife deliberately avoiding any reference to their closest friends in the little town. Dolly noted, however, that Tom was abstracted about something; once when they passed Minna on the road, driving her sedan from the Country Club, Tom started to stop and speak to her, but when Minna nodded curtly to him he drove on.

Dolly went over to call on Minna next morning. "You greeted Tom very coldly on yesterday, dear," she said. "Is anything the matter?"

Minna put her arms about Dolly and kissed her. "One has few real friends in the world," she said. "No, there's absolutely nothing the matter. I've nothing against your Tom."

She sat down on the divan with Dolly, her arm still affectionately around her. And at once she began talking of other things. Dolly gazed at the space over the drawing-room mantel where now a small Corot hung. "I don't wonder you miss the marvelous thing," she exclaimed suddenly. "I hear George is thinking of buying it back for you, Honey."

Minna laughed out bitterly. "He'll never do that now," she said. "Old Mrs. Deeming has bought it from the Whittakers. The purchase was made last week."

"And she's angry at you for selling it!" Dolly cried.

"She'll never let me have it back—she'll never permit George to buy it. That's the only thing that hurts—George had set his heart on my having it back!"

Dolly was silent for a moment, pondering. "Wonder Clara Whittaker could be persuaded to sell the portrait," she said suddenly. "She was crazy about it."

"Tom persuaded her to sell it." Minna explained in a forced casual air. "You see, your Tom represented old Mrs. Deeming. He told Clara how it had been for generations in the Deeming family, was, in fact, the portrait of one of their ancestors. And Clara can be rather generous sometimes."

Dolly sprang up, her blue eyes flashing. "Tom did that—when he knew how much you wanted the portrait back? I simply can't understand!"

The ringing of the telephone bell was a welcome relief to her. As soon as Minna answered it she would say she must go. She must go home immediately. She couldn't talk reasonably with anyone, couldn't think coherently until she had seen Tom and demanded an explanation. What Minna had just told her shook the very foundations of her life. Tom—double-crossing a friend!

Minna came back into the drawing room, a mystified expression on her face. "It was your Tom," she said. "He wants me to come home with you—says he has something to tell me at once. I—I hope nothing has happened, George—Ralph!"

"Nonsense," Dolly exclaimed. "Tom would have come here if he had had bad news."

They walked the short distance between the two suburban homes. Dolly unlocked the front door of their cottage and ushered in her friend. Opening the door of the living room, she wondered vaguely why Tom had turned on all the lights. A perfect glare. After the evening dusk she and Minna blinked like owls on the threshold for an instant.

But Minna suddenly gave a cry, sprang forward. "Ralph—Mother Deeming! And you have the Sully portrait here! What—does it all mean?"

Old Mrs. Deeming and Minna's tall son, Ralph Deeming, a college student now, had arisen from beside the glowing fire, and stood before the Sully portrait that leaned against the wall.

"I'm—I'm supposed to make a little speech, Mother," Ralph Deeming said as he kissed Minna affectionately. "A speech of presentation—only I've forgotten how I had it phrased. But all I have to tell you is that when I heard you had sold the Sully, I knew you had a good reason for doing so. And I wrote Mr. Winston and asked him about it. And Grandmother wants to tell you how sorry she is for the letter she wrote you several days ago—before she learned from Mr. Winston how you were forced to sell it—to help George. We both want you to know we admire your loyalty to him—you desire to help him and stand by him in his troubles. And Grandmother wants to give the picture back—to you and George."

Autocratic Mrs. Deeming tried to look humble as she took Minna's hand. Then seeing the tears in Minna's eyes, the hard expression in her own disappeared. "How can anyone blame a person of your unselfishness, my dear?" she said simply. "I can only say I wish I had been as wise as Ralph. When he learned you had sold the portrait he wrote at once to Mr. Winston, one of your best friends here, knowing that from him he could learn what your motives were."

Dolly smiled as Tom flushed guiltily and said: "I guess it would do us all good, Mrs. Deeming—to—to have the faith your grandson has in his mother!"

Explosion of Still Kills One, Hurts Two

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Jan. 10.—(A.P.)—An explosion of what was believed to have been a still in an old stone house yesterday caused the death of one man and the serious injury of two others. Lloyd C. Colleflower, 27, was killed, and Fred T. White and Thomas White, 16, were severely burned.

Kittanning Gorge Eight Miles Long

KITTANNING, Pa., Jan. 10.—Ice gorging in the Allegheny River between Kittanning and Templeton has swept over the road between the two places. Several river islands are buried under the pack, which has spread considerably during the last few days. The gorge stretches eight or nine miles.

To break a cold harmlessly and in a hurry try a Bayer Aspirin tablet. And for headache. The action of Aspirin is very efficient, too, in cases of neuralgia, neuritis, even rheumatism and lumbago! And there's no after effect; doctors give Aspirin to children—often infants. Whenever there's pain, think of Aspirin. The genuine Bayer Aspirin has Bayer on the box and on every tablet. All druggists, with proven directions.

Physicians prescribe Bayer Aspirin; it does NOT affect the heart

Lawrence Co. Road Supervisors Meet

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Jan. 10.—The fifteenth annual convention of the Lawrence County Road Supervisors' Association was held yesterday in the county court house. President R. R. McGeorge presided. Among the speakers were State Senator George T. Weingartner, State Assemblymen Burt Richards and M. A. Bickett and State President R. S. Blackwood.

Pseudo Doctors Swindle, Rob Ill Man, 74

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Jan. 10.—John W. Fox, 74, retired Grange Hill farmer, living alone, six miles west of here, reported yesterday to Sheriff Harry C. Smith, that one of the two pretended physicians who last Sat swindled him out of $150 on pretense of curing his infirmities, stole $460 besides from a trunk, while one pretended to be administering medicine to Fox.

innumerable new fashion details in advance spring ensembles

Every fashion authority indorses the ensemble for Spring and predicts the universal acceptance of smart women for the ensemble costume.

Among the newer arrivals, these interesting fashion details are noteworthy:

Cardigan, Finger Tips, Three-Fourth, Seven-Eighth and Full Length coats are all good.

There are Red Tweeds—Purple Tweeds and Blue Tweeds as well as the old-established Tans and Greys. Brown tones are especially recommended.

With the three-fourth and seven-eighth length coats, the skirt is invariably of the new tweed, matching the coat.

Some of the skirts come with the youthful new "tuck in" blouses as well as the over-blouse of silk or jersey.

MAN OF 79 GIVES LAVISH PRAISE TO KONJOLA'S POWERS

Modern Medicine Brings Quick Relief From Kidney and Bladder Troubles of Long Standing.

MR. O. M. BALLARD

The health that this new medicine Konjola brings is permanent and sure. In cases that have defied all medicine and treatments, Konjola works with a sureness and quickness that surprise the sufferer. It has become the talk of the drug and medical trades wherever introduced. Rightly, it is called "the medicine with over a million friends." Introduced in Pittsburgh for the first time, it has already received the praise of hundreds of local residents. Vast numbers are calling on the Konjola Man at the McCulloch Drug Store, Penn Ave. and Sixth St., this city, to hear his personal explanation of the merits of this medicine. Here you will hear of its accomplishments, what it will do in cases that have defied all treatments and what it is doing every day for others is graphically described in a statement received from Mr. O. M. Ballard, 652 West Third street, Erie, Pa., who said:

"My kidneys and bladder were so weak that I had to get up every night from six to ten times. The resultant loss of sleep weakened me generally, and soon my stomach failed to function as it should. My appetite disappeared, and what I forced myself to eat to keep alive was not digested. Pains, bloating and gas followed, and during such spells my backache increased in severity. I tried everything that my friends recommended, without finding the slightest relief. When I was feeling at my worst I happened to see the many testimonials Erie people, many of whom I know, were giving us to the wonders of Konjola, and I made up my mind to see if it would help me. Truly, I had little faith that it would, I thought it was like all the other remedies I had tried without success. But there was a big surprise in store for me. Within a week my kidneys were practically normal, and I had to rise only once each night. My stomach has been totally made over, it seems, for I have a fine appetite and can eat anything without indigestion. Naturally with splendid rest at night and deriving benefit from my food, I am gaining in strength. I am proud of my strength and vigor at the age of 79, and I do not hesitate to give Konjola credit for my new health. I am glad to make this statement, believing that it will be the means of bringing sufferers to Konjola and renewed health."

Konjola asks just one thing—the privilege of making all who suffer well again. There is no magic, no mystery about Konjola. It is a Nature-remedy that goes directly to the ailing organs, purifying, cleansing, invigorating them. Soon their natural functions are restored, and health comes back. There is every reason in the world to believe that Konjola will help you as it is helping thousands who had given up hope.

Konjola is a compound made from juices of twenty-two different plants of Nature that are combined with still other proven medical ingredients, all scientifically tested and blended into a single preparation that acts on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Konjola works with the sufferer's own food, assisting Nature to restore the inner organs to more healthy, normal action and to relieve the body of the agonizing aches and pains of rheumatism and neuritis. People throughout this entire section have reported such amazing relief from this remarkable remedy that is believed no sufferer person can afford not to try it.

THE KONJOLA MAN

is at the McCulloch Drug Store, Penn Ave. and Sixth St., Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, explaining the merits of this remedy with the astounding record. Free samples given.

Radio Soothes Unruly Horses Brought to Blacksmith by Pilot-Beast

JOHN KELLY

When horses about to be shod in the blacksmith shop of John W. Kelly, 47 Tunnel street, one of the few left in Pittsburgh, get unruly, the latter merely turns on the radio and the music makes them so docile that Ed Kelly has no trouble in putting on the horseshoe! Horses almost "bleat" then, says Mr. Ed.

ED KELLY

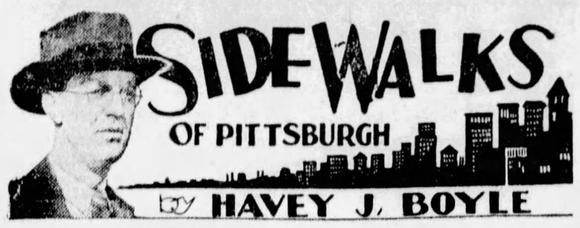
BILL'S HORSE-SENSE GETS CUSTOMERS

The blacksmith's shop's most faithful employe is old "Bill." He knows all the stables in the neighborhood and makes the rounds of the stables twice a day to collect "customers." Here he is bringing in two to be shod.

SIDE-WALKS OF PITTSBURGH



By HAVEY J. BOYLE

L. M. HARRINGTON, of McKees Rocks, wonders how many persons know what man the figure of the "Learned Blacksmith," in the Col. James Anderson Memorial at Ohio and Federal streets, North Side, represents. He estimates there are hundreds who pass the memorial every day who do not know the interesting story behind the "Learned Blacksmith."

* * *

The figure, which shows a blacksmith sitting on an anvil as he reads, Mr. Harrington says, represents Elihu Burritt, who was able to master Latin, Greek, French, Spanish and German at the age of 30. He could read in nearly 50 languages.

"I have often wondered," says Mr. Harrington, "why some columnist has never used this."

One reason, Mr. Harrington, why one certain columnist didn't use it was because up to this very moment he didn't knew about Mr. Burritt.

THE thermometer on this particular morning was hovering around zero. The downtown was bare. Traffic cops danced and waved their arms to promote warming circulation. People hurried on their way. The only two men in sight who seemed unperturbed by the wintry air were two sign-painters. True, they were well-wrapped and were painting with gloves on. But in view of the general scene what seemed just a little fantastic was the sign they were painting. While one was achieving a dish of ice cream, the other was coating it with what looked a great deal like fresh strawberries. Well, you could have knocked us over with the well-known feather.

When Henry Oliver Evans, the newly-elected city controller, made a brief talk introducing himself to City Council the other day, he mentioned some of his ancestors, and it was with some difficulty that Harry Little, the councilman from the North Side, refrained from making a short address, for Harry Little had a great-great-grandfather, Peter Klingensmith, who roamed this section when Queen Aliquippa ruled the local wigwam.

Peter Klingensmith was a hunter and trapper of some local reputation in those days, when as one reached down to bring in the morning milk one was apt to come up with an arrow in his koko instead of the milk bottle or whatever they delivered milk in during those hectic times.

Once, Mr. Klingensmith found a watch that ran for two years on the bed of the Youghiogheny and, according to Harry Little, it was Mr. Klingensmith's unpleasantness with an Indian that resulted in the naming of that local stream.

Every time the Indian, in the course of the duel, let go with his gun (this was a modern Indian) he would yell "Yough." Finally, when Harry's great-great-grandfather got a good pop at the Indian he shouted derisively at the fallen brave, "Yough, again." From which was but a step to Youghiogheny.

CRITICISM is made from time to time that flappers don't have much on their minds but their small hats, but now and then you run into a young lady who concerns herself with even civic matters. For instance, in connection with the new movement to reduce smoke in Pittsburgh, one young lady was overheard to remark: "It's something that everyone ought to take an interest in and to show I mean what I say I'm cutting down from two to one pack a day."

What cheers the column is that at last we Pittsburghers are beginning to admit we have smoke and now something intelligent may be done. For quite a while we pretended not to see the smoke and we pretended that we got great satisfaction out of the fact that two other cities (of the thousands) were smokier than we were. Perhaps that self-consciousness that stopped us from calling Pittsburgh "The Smoky City" was not such a good thing after all. Unfortunately, the fact that we ceased using the term "Smoky City" had little effect on the stubborn smoke. We have sensibly quit playing ostrich.

STREET RAISING ORDERED

Council today will instruct the Department of Public Works to prepare contracts for raising certain North Side streets above flood level. Estimated costs for the projects are $800,000 for physical work and $87,000 for changing water lines.

The thoroughfares are Corry, Cremo, Itasco, Reedsdale and Scotland streets. Ordinances authorizing the improvements were affirmed yesterday after considerable delay caused by obtaining waivers from owners of large buildings in the affected area.

Millvale to Buy 1,000 Feet of Hose

Millvale Borough Council last night authorized the purchase of 1,000 feet of hose for the borough fire department. Only routine business was brought before the councilmen last night. C. D. Schwemm presided.

John Aldisert, Carnegie, in the service of the Allegheny County coroner's office since 1923, has intervals of judicial responsibility all as part of his daily work. He is called upon to preside in Coroner's court.

CHANGES MADE IN ZONING

Council has approved two ordinances amending the zoning law by changing the classification of property, one affecting the East End and another in the West End.

One measure changes from a "B" residence to a commercial district; from a 35 to a 45-foot heighth district and from a first to a fourth area district, the property bounded by Margaretta street, Selma way, the line dividing the property of M. H. Pickering and the Board of Public Education and North Highland avenue.

The other ordinance changes from a "B" residence to a commercial district, property bounded by Middletown road, Justice street, Greenway drive, Fire way and the present commercial district.

Husband Says Wife Threatened Poison

Michael Bodnar, 202 Johnstown avenue, Hazelwood, says his wife threatened to put poison in his food and he wants a divorce from Mary Bodnar, who lives in North Braddock.

This was revealed in Common Pleas Court when Bodnar in answer for a request of a bill of particulars filed the document in the prothonotary's office. Because of his wife's treatment he says that his health broke and has brought suit for divorce on the grounds of indignities. The couple were married in 1925.

Drum Corps Teacher Given Wrist Watch

Members of Homewood Post, American Legion, have presented to "Al" Ferrucci a wrist watch in recognition of the time he has given as instructor of the drum and bugle corps. Com. R. E. Smith and M. C. Harris, drum major and drill sergeant of the Tarentum Post Drum and Bugle Corps, attended the last meeting and spoke on Legion work. A program of movies and refreshments completed the program.

Thrown from Truck, Man Dies of Injuries

Thrown from a truck when it hit a wall in California avenue near the Superior Avenue bridge, Ernest Anderson, 22, a Negro of 525 Brushton avenue suffered injuries which caused his death last night in the St. John's Hospital. The accident occurred December 29.

RADIO SOOTHES HORSES AT SMITHY

The day when blacksmiths perspired and used language unbecoming gentlemen while shoeing unruly horses is passe since the advent of the radio. At least John W. Kelly, blacksmith, of 47 Tunnel street, is one who thinks so. He and his brother, Ed, have shod many an unruly workhorse in the past, but now their work is a pleasure since they are using the radio to make their horses docile while being shod.

"Whereas in the past we had to tie a thick rope around a horse's neck and leg to keep it from kicking, all we do now is to turn on the radio and music makes the horse so tranquil that we can put a shoe on in a jiffy," said John Kelly. "The way our horses strain their ears to catch every note from the radio shows that they have a lot of 'horse sense.'"

Kelly's most faithful employe is "Bill," an old workhorse. He knows all the stables in the neighborhood. Twice a day he goes out, unmounted, and calls at the stables to collect horses in need of being shod. He brings them to the shop and returns them to their stable after they are shod.

TRUCK VICTIM WINS $8,000

A verdict for $8,000 against Armour & Co. was returned by a jury in Common Pleas Court in favor of John Bashirian and his son Jack, aged 10, for injuries received when a truck of the defendant company struck the lad two years ago. The boy, whose parents live in Irwin avenue, received a broken pelvic bone, a fracture of the collar bone, concussion of the brain and other hurts. The son was awarded $5,000 and the father $3,000. The case was on trial for several days before Judge Thomas J. Ford.

SECOND WOMAN IN CASE WIFE CHARGES

Her husabnd having another "sweetie" when he married her and left her 25 days after the wedding, Mildred Eleanor Dulitz, a nurse of 7104 Montecello street, has just asked Judge Richard W. Martin to divorce her from Rowland Carl Dulitz.

Mrs. Dulitz says that she pleaded with "the other woman" to give her husband up, but that she would not release him. She also pleaded with her husband to stay, Mrs. Dulitz testified, but he turned a deaf ear. The couple were married in September, 1924, and lived for a short time in Detroit. Mrs. Dulitz was formerly a Braddock girl.

Mrs. Dulitz says the last time she heard from her husband was more than two years ago when she received a letter from him wishing her "a Merry Christmas." She does not know his whereabouts.

DRYS ARREST 2 IN BRADDOCK

A 15-gallon still and a quantity of moonshine and mash were seized by prohibition agents and constables last night in a raid on a distillery in a two-story building at 908 Halkett street, Braddock. Mary Honicki was arrested.

At 517 Washington street, Braddock, four gallons of whisky and 48 pints of beer were seized. Michael Butcko was taken into custody. The man and woman were released on bail pending hearings before the United States commissioner.

The raiders visited East Liberty, where they raided the home of Ben Gazzo at 7 Mohler street. One hundred and seventy gallons of wine were seized along with a quantity of moonshine. Gazzo was arrested and Mrs. Antonette Gazzo also was taken into custody.

McConkey to Speak At East Liberty Y

A meeting under the auspices of the educational department of the East Liberty Y. M. C. A. will be held Friday evening, at which time James H. McConkey, author, teacher and Bible student, will give the first of two messages on "Spiritual Leadership." Co-operating with the secretary in promoting the meeting is a committee headed by D. E. Klingensmith and consisting of I. R. Jacques, F. R. Finkbeiner, Charles A. Hastings, Joseph Painter, William J. Campbell and R. W. Rutherford.

Oakland Street Work Approved by Council

An ordinance widening to 74 feet the section of the Boulevard of the Allies formerly called Emily street, from Halket street to Craft avenue, and the improvement of Niagara street from the Boulevard of the Allies to a point 100 feet southwardly, has been approved by Council. The two projects are estimated to cost $45,000.

Tuscarora Street Work Authorized

An ordinance authorizing the grading to a width of 33 feet and the paving and curbing of Tuscarora street, from Richland street to Braddock avenue, at an estimated cost of $8,700, has been affirmed by Council.

TEARS SHED AS 2 WOMEN CONTEST FOR 3-YR.-OLD TOT

Judge Richard W. Martin, of Common Pleas Court, will decide in a few days whether the mother, Mrs. Marie Krupp, of 6331½ Shakespeare street, shall get possession of litttle tow-headed Lawrence Krupp, Jr., aged 3, or if Mrs. Jennie Mitchell, 112 Anderson street, the child's protector, will continue to keep him.

Both women told their stories through their tears as they sat in Judge Martin's court. Mrs. Krupp had asked Mrs. Mitchell to care for the child when it was a baby, because she was working, her husband having left her and no one to care for it. Mrs. Mitchell moved several times and the mother lost track of her child until a picture appeared in the papers recently showing the boy as Lawrence Mitchell, trying to find a dog that had been lost.

An aunt of Mrs. Krupp, Mrs. Marie Frank, of 752 North Homewood avenue, said she was ready and willing to provide the child and her niece, Mrs. Krupp, a home. Mrs. Mitchell told the court she did not think the mother was a fit person to have the child, because she had not taken care of it in the first place. Mrs. Mitchell testified that she had found the baby in a badly kept condition, its mouth bleeding and cut.

MINISTER DIES, AID FILLS POST

The death last week of the Rev. Dr. L. Walter Mason, pastor of the First Unitarian Church, Ellsworth and Morewood avenues, has temporarily raised the Rev. Frank Edwin Smith, associate pastor, to the regular pastorship. Until the congregation selects a regular successor to Dr. Mason, Rev. Smith will perform all the duties of regular minister. He will fill the pulpit at that church and occasionally preach at the North Side Unitarian Church. Supply pastors will occasionally also preach at both churches.

Economics

DR. EDGAR S. FURNISS

Dr. Edgar S. Furniss, chairman, department of economics, sociology and government, Yale University, tonight will give the first of a series of two public lectures at Carnegie Institute of Technology on the general subject of international economics. The lecture is at 8:30 p. m. in the Carnegie Union.

BELLEVUE MAIL INCREASES

Revenues of the Bellevue postoffice which serves the North Boroughs, showed an 8 per cent increase in December over the same month in 1927 despite a reduction in certain parcel rates and souvenir postcards, according to Supt. Fred A. McCune.

Income last month was $22,455. In the rush week of December 17 to 24, the outgoing mail included 2,300 sacks of parcels of which 7,000 were insured packages. Incoming mail for delivery included 2,900 sacks. The office canceled 298,583 letters during the week.

Sixty-five extra men were employed to assist the 36 employes regularly on duty. Sickness hit the force during the Christmas rush, Mr. McCune said, but only one carrier is off at present on account of illness.

REVAMP PLANS FOR BLVD.

"We are working on a new proposition and are making substantial progress" said Louis P. Blum, borough engineer of Ben Avon today when asked as to the status of plans for the Ohio River boulevard route through Ben Avon.

Mr. Blum said he did not know whether the new plan would be ready for submission to council at its meeting next Monday night but indicated that a report would be made soon. Mr. Blum was asked by council to work out a new route as a result of protests by citizens to the routes proposed by the county engineers.

Board to Discuss Building at Dinner

The advisory committee of the Mt. Lebanon Baptist Church will hold a dinner meeting tonight at which campaign plans for the erection of a new church edifice will be discussed. A congregational meeting will be held Friday evening, January 18, at which the Rev. Dr. C. Wallace Petty, pastor of the First Baptist Church, will speak. The financial campaign for the erection of a new building with a seating capacity of 800 and to cost $200,000, will be launched Sunday, January 21. It is hoped to procure pledges for the entire amount within a week, ending the drive on Sunday, January 27.

Two Youths Held In Theft of Auto

Oakland police are holding Walter Butler, 16, of 4120 Haldane street and James Porter, 17, of 4115 Haldane street, in connection with the theft of an automobile yesterday from the Morrowfield Hotel, Squirrel Hill. Butler is said to have been arrested in the stolen machine at Center avenue and Melwood street, another youth fleeing at the time. Porter was arrested later. Butler had a loaded revolver in his possession, police say.

BEN AVON, 37, CELEBRATES EVENT

Ben Avon borough, and its oldest native resident, David Hastings, 6803 Perrysville avenue, celebrated their thirty-seventh anniversary yesterday.

Hastings was born, January 9, 1892, the day the borough charter was adopted by Council, he recounted. His father, the late Robert W. Hastings, a member of the first Council, asked, on the day previous, that acceptance of the charter be postponed for one day as he was expecting the stork to arrive with a son. The next day, the son was born and the village, which had been carved out of Kilbuck township, was christened Ben Avon, making operative the charter granted by the Legislature.

"The borough and I are sort of twins," said Hastings yesterday. "I have lived here all of my life and probably shall die here. I am now living in the house where I was born.

"When I was a boy Ben Avon had not more than 25 houses scattered through the district where scores of handsome residences now stand. There were no improved streets and the sidewalks were boards or cinders. Squirrels frisked around our back porches. Much of the borough was woods. A few of the oaks are still standing, but most of them have been cut down to provide building sites. People living here then traded at a general store in what is now Emsworth or went to Pittsburgh on the train."

Hastings said he thought there were several residents in Ben Avon who lived there when it was still part of the township, but he was the first child born in the borough and therefore the oldest native.

Building of New Sewers Authorized

Construction of sewers on Covode street, Fourteenth Ward, and on Welfer street, Fifteenth Ward, has been authorized in two ordinances affirmed by the Councilmanic Committee on Public Works.

COUNTY SCOUTS WILL ELECT DIRECTORS

Boy Scouts of Allegheny County will hold a meeting of general interest tonight at Kaufmann's, the occasion being the annual gathering of the council, at which time nine members of the board of directors are to be elected. The meeting will follow dinner to be attended by more than 500 leaders in the movement and Harmar D. Denny, Jr., vice president, will preside. The principal address will be delivered by Dr. Harry C. McKown, professor of secondary education at University of Pittsburgh.

One of the features of the program will be the presentation of a tableaux by Boy Scouts and scoutmasters, entitled "Pa Pitt's Son." The part of Pa Pitt will be taken by M. J. Conley, scoutmaster of Troop 170, and the other parts will be taken by different members of troops included in the council.

Allegheny Y Will Give Lobby Musical

A lobby musical will be given tonight at the Allegheny branch, Y. M. C. A., West North avenue and Monterey street. Entertainment will be provided by a trio composed of Ruth Gibson, violin; Alice Martin, cello, and Grace B. Martin, piano. Miss Helen Irwin will give readings. The committee in charge includes Dr. L. E. VanKirk, Dr. W. E. McCain, Ralph H. Smith, Clarence Grimm and John Benno.

Wife Gets Police To Raid Speakeasy

Police from the Frankstown Avenue Station raided an alleged speakeasy at 5803 Broad street last night after a woman had called the station and complained that her husband had purchased moonshine in the establishment. F. Caprona was arrested on a charge of keeping a disorderly house. Police reported that they found a quantity of moonshine hidden in a stairway.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Nancy Deane, golden haired, dark eyed, has lived all her life with the O'Days in Washington, Pa.; for two years she has worked in the station lunch room to help pay the rent. There she meets John Blair who invites her to go to the circus. Nancy loses her job and learns she is really the granddaughter of the rich Montgomery Deane in Pittsburgh and that her mother, Julie Abbott, a circus performer, is coming to town and wants to see her. Nancy goes to the show with John and sees Julie drop from a trapeze; she rushes wildly to the hospital where her mother dies, telling her she loved her father. Nancy suddenly decided to go to Pittsburgh and Blair, whom she has grown to admire, gives her a letter to a college friend who runs the "Wear-Ever Mills." On the train she meets Ginger Varden, a model, who takes her to her own boarding house and invites her to share her room. Nancy is shocked at its disorder and doesn't know quite what to think of her new companion. Two friends of Ginger, Jerry Durant and Vic Flemming, take the girls to a party in the studio of a woman artist.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

WHEN Nancy put her hand in his she could feel that it was a warm, moist hand, a little too soft and velvety. She remembered how she had observed John Blair's big, square fingered, brown hands at the circus.

"Well I AM glad to meet you," Vic was repeating.

His eyes were fastened on Nancy's mass of gold hair that tumbled over her head.

"Some blonde, I'll say."

He bent his head close over hers and ran his fingers through her hair as though she was a pretty little poodle that pleased him.

She smelled gin. She looked over at Jerry. He was just in the act of planting a kiss on Ginger's painted mouth. She knew both men had been drinking, and as Jerry leaned over Ginger, she saw a suspicious looking bulge in his right hip pocket.

Collette's party was well in progress when the four turned into the dark doorway on Penn avenue. As Nancy climbed the narrow wooden stairway, up to the first floor, down a dingy hallway, and then up to the third, down a dingier hallway and then to the fourth floor, she became more frightened with every step.

"What insane thing is this I'm doing?" she thought, yet it was thrilling. Her heart was pounding.

A door down at the end of the hallway was flung open just as the four reached the very last step, and in it, her extremely thin, black-gowned figure silhouetted against a panel of red fabric on the wall behind her, stood Collette, hostess, illustrator, free lance artist.

A wisp of blue smoke was circling around her sleek hair. Her cigaret was red, the long holder, black. As she stood there framed by the doorway, motionless, posing, she looked for all the world like an illustration herself. She knew line, color, effect.

"So glad to know you," she said to Nancy when Ginger introduced her saying:

"Look at her hair, Collette. Gorgeous?"

Collette closed the door. Nancy found herself half pushed, half pulled into a large room filled with men and women. The air was thick with smoke, everyone was talking. No one gave more than passing interest to the new arrival. Nancy breathed more easily. The sight of these standing sitting, lolling people, reassured her. The old saying "There's safety in numbers" flashed across her mind.

As her eyes became accustomed to her surroundings, she took inventory of the studio and the guests. For the first time since they left The Carmondy in Vic's racy yellow roadster, all four crowded into one seat, Vic Flemming had not let his attention wander from Nancy for a moment. Now a baby faced girl, whose gown of crimson velvet, a huge rhinestone buckle at the hip, coralled him, was looking into his eyes, patting his cheeks.

"Such a nice old Vickey boy" she cooed.

Nancy noticed that she was blonde, very blonde. Crisp, brittle looking hair, darker at the roots.

Peroxide, Nancy thought to herself, patting her own soft, fluffy hair into place.

It was the strangest gathering she had ever seen. The room, too, was odd. It looked like a setting in a motion picture. There were no chairs, no rugs. It was lighted by canadles in large blue and green crystal bowls. Some of the guests sat on the floor, some sprawled on two large couches at either end of the room. Everyone was smoking cigarets. Some of the girls held cigaret holders outlandishly long. Many had been drinking—were drinking.

Someone offered Nancy a cigaret. To avoid being conspicuous she accepted. Somebody else held out a lighted match. She took her first puff and choked. She was going to be game if it killed her. Her moist red lips, but pale in comparison to the painted mouths of the other girls in the room, were set in quite a straight line now—she decided she'd play the game. A tall youth, cigaret hanging out of his mouth, asked her to dance. He pulled her to him, rested his chin on her mass of soft hair, and sailed out into the middle of the floor.

Nancy knew that she was a good dancer. Music went right to her feet, she had often said, laughingly. The two went fox trotting in and out, and around other couples. Music was coming from somewhere. The candle flames, blown this way and that as the dancers swept by, sent their shadows dancing across the walls. As Nancy and her partner swung around the room a glass of something cool and tinkling was thrust into her hands.

"Oh, let me go. I'm spilling it," she told her partner.

"Don't spill it. Drink it, goose," he answered.

They stopped for a moment, and Nancy raised the glass to her lips. The cool of it was delicious. She took a long drink.

"Hey, stingy, leave some for me."

Her partner snatched it from her hands and had just raised it to his lips when someone knocked it from his hand. The crack of the glass, shattered into pieces, stopped the babble of talk as though someone had fired a shot.

Nancy whirled around to see Vic Fleming, his face scarlet.

Then he raised his hand and slapped Nancy's partner across the cheek. In a twinkling the two were in a fight and before other men in the room could pull them apart they had lunged against a Chinese lacquard table bearing a crystal bowl and lighted candles. It crashed and Collette screamed.

Ginger, of whom Nancy had lost track, elbowed her way into the center of the circle where Vic and his opponent were glowering at each other, both with their arms pinned behind them by men guests. All were half tipsy. All trying to talk at once.

"Holy cow, if the country kid ain't turned out to be the life of the party!"

Nancy wished the floor would open and swallow her. She turned to run, but she might as well have tried to beat her way through a stone wall. After that the guests began to get noisier, the liquor to flow more freely. The man whose face Vic had slapped faded away. Vic had taken Nancy into a little alcove off the studio. The air was fresher there and she was glad to be free from the crowd.

"Sh-ay, Goldie, what do you mean by leaving your Vicky like that?"

He grabbed Nancy to him, crushed her to him, and smothered her face and neck with kisses. She could feel his heart beating against her breast.

"Stop, please stop," she pleaded.

"Am' my little Goldie girl turned out to be the life of the party, eh?" Vic answered. He burst out into a loud laugh.

CHAPTER VII.

THE scene created by Vic Fleming was the one diversion needed to put "pep" into the party according to Ginger, who observed to Nancy that from that moment things began to pick up.

Drinks and more drinks passed freely; Nancy had heard of Bohemian parties but she had never attended one. She had seen affairs like this in the movies; now she began to feel more at home. The more she sipped from the tall glasses handed to her the gladder she was to be there.

She was beginning to grow dizzy, giddy. From across the room, where he had gone to dash another pint of gin into the punch bowl, Vic Fleming was coming toward her, the cherry colored liquid spilling over the glass.

For the first time that night Nancy felt friendly to everybody. She remembered her surprise and disgust at Vic when he came into Ginger's room. Recalling that, her memory traveled back to her meeting with Ginger on the train.

All her fears were gone now. She felt light, glowing. Vic was beside her again. He had his arm around her waist. Collette was at the door, a black door with panels painted red. She was letting someone in.

"Look who's here. There's Howard Wescott. How did he get in?" Vic said, thickly.

He let his arm fall from Nancy's waist. Entering was the man called Howard Westcott, and with him a tall, very pale woman in a squirrel coat. Her lips were very red. There were dabs of very red rouge on the lobes of her ears. She looked languid, detached.

A buxom woman, who seemed to know everything, gave Nancy a poke with a be-diamonded finger.

"Richest bachelor in town," she whispered, but so loudly she could be heard half across the room. All eyes were turned to the newcomers. Half a dozen of the girl guests surrounded Westcott and his partner, trying to grasp his hand, to win the woman's attention.

"Lookit that, just lookit that," Vic was saying. No one was listening, really.

"Disgustin', ain't it?"

He put a heavy hand on the large shoulder of the large lady and repeated:

"Disgustin', ain't it? Ain't it disgustin'?"

"It certainly is disgustin'," the woman answered.

"Yep, plain disgustin.' So disgustin' we'll have to have another drink."

Nancy took advantage of the "disgustin'" conversation between the two to slip out of the room back to the alcove. She opened the window wider and took long breaths of cool air. Her head was beginning to ache. Her whole body ached. She rested her head on the sill. The clippity, clippity clop of horses, and the rumble of a milk wagon were coming nearer. The rhythm of the hoof beats was soothing, she thought. It was a kind of monotonous music that kept time with the throbbing in her temples. She felt herself sinking, the clatter and chatter in the next room kept fading—fading.

She was sound asleep.

She awoke with a start, frightened. Vic Fleming was standing over her laughing.

"Hey, Jerry, Ginger," he called, his voice thick.

"Come in and see Goldie Locks. She's come right in and sat in the big bear's chair and went sound asleep. He laughed again, a loud exaggerated laugh and lurched out of the little room, shouting.

"Jerry, Ginger, everybody. Come in and see Goldie Locks, the life of the party. Hey, Collette, this is some party. The life of the party's gone dead asleep on you."

But the party was beginning to go stale by this time. Some of the frazzled guests had left, others were leaning against the walls, wilted, or sitting on the floor. Collette's bizarre cushions heaped around them.

Penn. Girl is Strong as Boy

"Nancy was very delicate and was nearly always fretful, nervous or feverish," says Mrs. John Stauffer, 257 So. 55th St., Philadelphia. "Her stomach and bowels wouldn't act right and she got so the little I could force her to eat wouldn't ever digest. She became bilious, sallow and weak.

"Then I decided to try California Fig Syrup, and the results surprised me. Her bowels started working immediately, and in little or no time she was eating heartily and digesting everything. Her weight increased, her color improved and she became bright and happy again. Now she's the picture of health, and strong as a boy."

Pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable California Fig Syrup acts surely and quickly to cleanse your child's stomach and bowels of the souring waste that is keeping her half-sick, bilious, sallow, feverish, listless, weak and puny. But it's more than a laxative. It tones and strengthens the stomach and bowels so these organs continue to act naturally, of their own accord.

Over four million bottles used a year shows its popularity. Ask for it by the full name, "California Fig Syrup," so you'll get the genuine, endorsed by physicians for 50 years.

Best Remedy for Obstinate Cough Made at Home

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough or chest cold can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in millions of homes, because it gives more prompt, positive relief than anything else. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to make a full pint. This saves two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough medicine, and gives you a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes good—children like it.

You can actually feel its penetrating, soothing action on the inflamed throat membranes. It also promptly loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and at the same time, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief even in severe bronchial coughs and "flu" coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

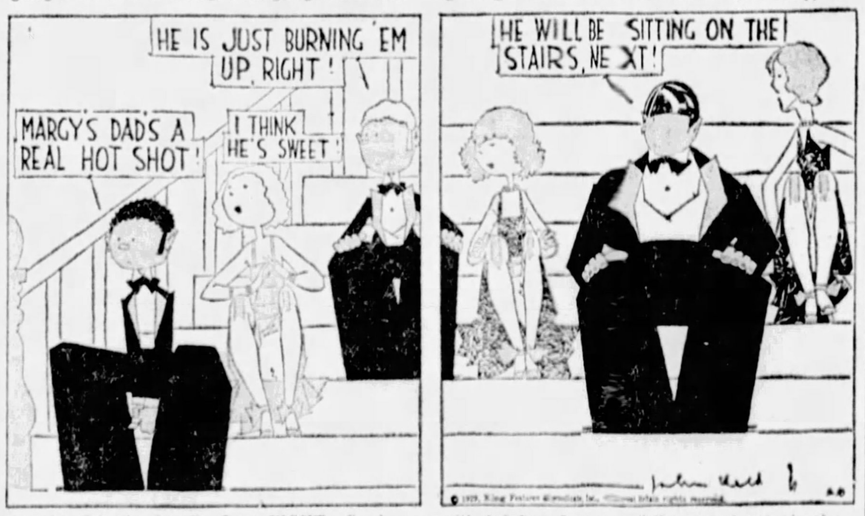
IF I DON'T HOLD YOU TIGHT WHAT'S TO KEEP ME ON MY FEET?



"My dear, I'm all-of-a-DOOdah at this point! I mean I'm comPLETEly BAFfled and nonPLUSSED, because JUST as Daddy's begun to make a PERfect ESCort for me Mother keeps dropping these luGUBrious HINTS about his PLEURisy being due and whatnot because I mean she's WORried STIFF he isn't going to be able to COPE with going the PACE thought I'd simply die last NIGHT, for instance, because he was STAG'ring round VAGUEly with this seductive bruNETTE he's been giving a WHIRL lately, when she SUDdenly announced in COY accents that he was HOLDing her too TIGHT, whereupon DADdy replied what ELSE could he do and still stay on his feet! ACtually, my dear, can you COPE but I mean he's ACtually the iDEAL PERson to go to PARties with, my dear, because I mean he just LANDS me there and dashes MADly off in purSUIT of some inTRIguing SHIMmy-fluffer so I can do lots of SEWing undisTURBED, do you know what I mean? GOSH, my dear, it's HEAVenly, because he's getting THAT broad-MINDed! HONestly, I with it? But I mean all the crowd are simply MAD about him at this point and BULL was too KILLing about it because I mean he said the FIRST thing you knew Daddy would be taking to SITTing on the STAIRS! Well, anyways, my dear, I've about come to the conCLUsion that what MOTHer doesn't KNOW won't HURT her, do you know what I mean?"

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

Men—And Their Women.

THERE is no use offering a woman a halo or a laurel wreath, as long as she is secretly longing for orange blossoms.

There always comes the "morning after" romance, when a woman wonders how on earth she ever got into it, and a man wonders how on earth he can ever get out of it.

* * *

HELEN ROWLAND

A man likes a woman who is like a perfect Indian summer day—glowing, tender, gay and warm—but NOT intense!

There have been women who had no time for sewing, no time to curl their hair and even no time for love and marriage; but there never yet lived a woman who had no time to stop and listen to a rich and racy piece of gossip.

* * *

Many a woman tries to hold love by closing all the exits, and thus hastens its death by suffocation.

A flapper is highly amused at a married woman's "narrow-minded" jealousy; but, somehow, after she has acquired one of her own, she loses all that broad-minded leniency toward the "community ownership" of husbands.

A man never realizes that he is no longer a boy, until he wakes up to discover that his college ideals and his college jokes are beginning to be as moth-eaten as his college pennants and pillows.

* * *

A woman's regret at the loss of a good umbrella or a stepping husband is always softened by the comforting reflection that she won't have to keep her eye on them, any longer.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Diet Important in Intestinal Troubles

ONE of the most obstinate troubles coming to the attention of the physician is the disease commonly known as mucous colitis. I was amused the other day in reading an article written by a physician in which he expressed the hope that the young doctor would not have a case of mucous colitis the first week of his experience in practice. The writer says that the disease is so difficult to treat that the young doctor would be utterly discouraged.

DR. COPELAND

In this ailment there is a pain in the bowels and this may be simply a feeling of discomfort or there may be severe cutting or griping pains. There is a tenderness over the abdomen, sickness at the stomach and almost constant discomfort.

The disease is really an inflammation of the lining membrane of the lower part of the bowel. Thick patches form. This membrane in appearance is not unlike the membrane that covers the tonsils in a case of diphtheria.

Of course, we very frequently meet cases of acute inflammation in the intestinal tract. The most common one is known as catarrhal colitis. It is very much the same as catarrhal inflammation of the mucous membranes anywhere else in the body. By this I mean that the tissues involved give the usual signs of catarrhal inflammation.

In mucous colitis, however, we have very much more marked changes in the tissues, and the symptoms are more pronounced. It is an obstinate ailment and, as I have suggested, is equally trying to physician and patient.

In any disturbance of the intestinal tract the symptoms are distressing. In mucous colitis, however, we have more than the local symptoms. We are very likely to have more or less disturbance of the nervous system.

It is difficult to think clearly. Severe headaches are common. Neuralgic pains in different parts of the body are found in this disease. Palpitation of the heart, inclination to weep, fainting spells and other nervous symptoms are observed.

The discharge from the bowels contains strings of mucus. There may also be streaks of blood and even small quantities of pus.

In mucous colitis loss of weight is invariable. The failure to sleep well, the pains and other accompaniments of the disease cause loss of vitality and undernourishment.

Probably the best way to relieve the distress in the abdomen is by irrigation of the colon. Enemas of several gallons of water as hot as can be borne will give relief. The family doctor will advise regarding this.

In all cases of disturbances in the intestinal tract, the diet is a matter of importance. It is necessary to sustain the patient by nourishing food, but that food must be given in a form which will be acceptable. All the food given should be strained. Even oatmeal contains husks and fibre, things which are irritating. This should be run through a sieve.

Raw fruits and vegetables are not good things to give because they contain so much indigestible material. If they are cooked thoroughly and then strained, so as to remove all irritating material, they may be safely taken.

In a trouble so obstinate as this, it is needless to say the patient should be under the care of the family doctor. He will recommend the remedies.

KEEP STOMACH YOUNG!

Eat What You Want

When the food you eat goes into your acid-soaked stomach, it sours and can't digest, makes foul gas and sour bile. The blood takes these poisonous acids and carries them through the body. Naturally it makes you miserable and despondent, because your system is not nourished—you lose weight.

Pape's Diapepsin dissolves the acids and sweetens the stomach; it digests the food, no more sour bile is taken up by the blood. Your appetite is like a youngster's again, and gradually you get back your health, flesh and energy.

Chew a tablet or two of Pape's Diapepsin after meals. It tastes good, and relieves the misery of indigestion in five minutes. It will keep your stomach young and vigorous so you can eat anything you want without being afraid of the consequences.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Friday, January 11

THE presage for this day, according to the mutual and lunar aspects, stresses recognition for labor, diligence and stability in employment and in other worthy application to duty and service. Although the rewards may be substantial, it would be well to safeguard them and not to resort to speculation or unwise investments or extravagances. With conservative management the future is assured of gratifying place and responsibility. Personal gratifications are likewise indicated.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of much gratification resulting from faithful service and attention to duty in employment and in other connections. There is promotion and a substantial reward, but these gains should not be jeopardized by extravagance, speculation or hazardous investments.

A child born on this day may win place and position as well as substantial recognition for industry, fidelity and application. It may attain worldly success as well as personal happiness.

WHO TO CAPTURE NEXT?

Drawn by Dorothy Flack

SOMETIMES Dan Cupid is at his wit's end! He looks over all his lovely applicants and wonders which one is to be captured next in Love's net.

They are all so lovely that it is hard to make a selection, and each lovely supplicant simply begs Dan to pick her.

Blonde and brunette—each is eager to be chosen. But he's a wise little rascal, for he waits until he feels sure they are ready to enter Love's bondage before he lets them know that he has chosen them.

Sometimes it seems as though he chooses nothing but blondes. Sometimes brunettes. And then there's panic! For each wonders, "If I were a blonde, would he choose me?" And the poor blondes think, "Oh, well, the brunettes certainly have the best of it!" But this is the wrong way to feel. It depends on the mood in which Dan happens to be. He does show partiality at times, I'll admit, but it's simply because he himself gets crushes on various types at certain times.

So, don't despair, for, even though it may seem that Dan is passing you by, it will only be for a little while, and your time will surely come.

Just be ever your own natural, lovely self, and wait until Dan comes along and sweeps you off your feet. For he will, you may rest assured of that, for he always waits until he feels you are absolutely ready and willing to suffer Love's fetters before he places the lock on your heart!

Madge Tells Lillian Why Dicky Delays Them

DICKY'S niece is a good actress, but though she made an admirable effort she could not conceal her anxiety over her missing bank book and check book. Her attempts to join the chatter of the rest of us were patently forced, and I was glad when Lillian and Dicky began one of their interminable half-jesting, half-serious arguments which effectually shut out any other attempts at talk. I suspected that they had staged their conversational monopoly for Mary's benefit, and Lillian confirmed my guess when, as the rush from the train to the Long Island waiting room separated us from the others, she whispered to me:

"Let Mary flock by herself for a few minutes until she pulls herself together. She's more upset over the loss of her note books than she wants to admit. I'm afraid you'll have to keep your eyes on that girl again."

There was disappointment as well as disapproval in her tone, and, not for the first time, I found myself fiercely resentful of her implied censure of the girl whom I have learned to love as well as if she were my own niece, instead of my husband's.

"I am watching her," I whispered back, but I knew from the quick glance Lillian gave me that she had fathomed my resentment. She slipped her hand through my arm and gripped my wrist lovingly.

"I'm not prejudiced, Madge, honestly," she whispered, "and it's ten to one we're stirring up the well-known nrare's nest. But you must be on the alert to safeguard the child from herself if she needs it."

"I know it," I returned, and then we were abreast of the others, listening to Dicky.

"If you women will stay in the waiting room," he said, "Harry and I have an errand which won't take but five minutes—ten at the outside."

"If you men will tend strictly to your starnt of knit two, purl two, while you're gone," Lillian mocked, "you may come within 15 minutes of that promise. But you'll find us here when you come back—four patient Griseldas, though we swoon with fatigue."

"Kill-joy!" Dicky exclaimed as he and Mr. Underwood turned away. "Marion, don't you believe a word of the slander your mother is uttering. Mary, I'll telephone Katie while we're gone—I can do that while I'm waiting on my other errand—and I'll tell you what she says when I get back."

"Thank you, Uncle Dicky," Mary said sweetly, but I guessed that she was disappointed not to interrogate Katie herself. She hid her annoyance bravely, however, and seemed as childishly pleased as Marion when Lillian put a dollar bill in her daughter's hand with the injunction to the two girls to "hurry up and satisfy that inevitable soda fountain thirst." They no sooner had disappeared than she burst with the irritated comment which she never would have voiced before them.

"The next time I plan a shopping trip, I'm going to lock Harry in the closet till I come back, and I hope you'll do the same with Dicky. I know they don't want to go shopping with us, but they might as well trail us to every store as to hold us up this way."

"It's on Mary's account that Dicky is delaying us," I told her, first being sure that the girls were well out of hearing.

Old Folks Say Doctor Caldwell was Right

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice, known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then, the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of senna and other mild laxative herbs, with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs?

A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will last a family several months, and all can use it. It is good for the baby because pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. In proper dose, given in the directions, it is equally effective at all ages. Elderly people will find it especially ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

Do give it a trial, to prove how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Let Her Do It!

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

We are giving a girl a shower and we would like to send thanks cards after it is over. How should they be worded?

RAY.

PLEASE don't do this. Cards of this kind are not in good taste or in good form. The girl for whom the shower is being planned writes a note of thanks to everyone at the party who thoughtfully brought her a present. The ones who give the party do not do this thanking.

Visiting Cards

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Please tell me which form is correct for a widow to use in having her visiting cards engraved: MRS. JOHN BARRY or MRS. EMMA BARRY?

2. Also, when a widow announces the marriage of her daughter, which form should she use?

MRS. JOHN BARRY is the correct form.

2. The formal name, too, is the only correct one in this case: MRS. JOHN BARRY HAS THE HONOR OF ANNOUNCING, etc.

Ask Your Conscience

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

You can and I trust you will help me to settle a matter in which a friend and I have different views.

1. Is it proper to hold hands with a man in a taxi?

2. Is it right, if there is one extra in a car, to sit on the lap of a man whom you know?

READER.

NOW, lady, what could you expect me to say except that "It is proper if you are engaged to the man"? Otherwise, your conscience, rather than an etiquette column, must be your guide!

2. See answer to first question.

TRAYNOR OLDEST BUC IN SERVICE

THOUGH the consummation of the deal whereby the Pittsburgh baseball club last night obtained Pitcher Steve Swetonic from Indianapolis in exchange for Outfielder Clyde Barnhart, a pitcher to be named after the season opens, and a cash consideration on the side, did not come as a surprise to local fans, as it had been understood for some time that the North Side boy was booked for a Buccaneer berth, Treasurer Sam Dreyfuss' announcement of the closing of the dicker was none the less pleasing to local fans.

Clyde Barnhart.

In Swetonic the Corsairs have landed one of the best pitching prospects in the country. True, it is a far cry from the minors to the majors, and it sometimes happens that a hurler who makes an impressive record in the smaller leagues is unable to make the grade in the big show. But Steve's success last year with Indianapolis, for which club he won 20 games against only eight defeats during the regular season and then pitched three victories in the post-season series against Rochester, was so clearly due to native ability that his chances of coming through in fast company are much better than those of the average recruit. It looks as if the Bucs have picked up a real pitcher.

PIRATE followers had realized that Barnhart's big league course was run, and had anticipated that he would be disposed of before the arrival of another season, yet his going caused not a little regret when the home fans look back beyond the period of his decline to the days when he was a force on the Pittsburgh club.

"Barney" was a considerable distance from being the most colorful player in the world, but hitting ability covers a multitude of baseball sins and there never was any question that he carried a wallop in his dependable bat. The fact that he clouted above .300 in four of his eight seasons as a Pirate—even last year he was as high as .296—showed that he could hit just about any pitcher in the league and there was no Pirate batsman more feared by opponents in the pinches. The Hagerstown citizen won many a ball game for the Rovers and he goes out with the best wishes of all local fandom.

BARNHART also was the oldest member of the Pittsburgh team in point of service. He was obtained from the Williamsport independent club in the fall of 1920, and after the spring trip in 1921 was sent to Birmingham in the Southern Association for seasoning, being recalled on September 22.

Clyde started here as a third baseman but was later shifted to the outfield. Last year he was sent to Indianapolis under option to replace Adam Comorosky there and was repurchased in the fall.

Pie Traynor.

WITH Barnhart gone, Capt. Pie Traynor becomes the oldest Pirate in the matter of continuous service. Traynor came to the Bucs first on September 15, 1920, was placed in Birmingham for development the following season and was brought back to the Corsair lineup on September 1, 1921. He has been a fixture ever since, outlasting all others who were members of the club at that time. Burleigh Grimes pitched here in 1916 and 1917, but was off the Buc roster from 1918 until last year. All those who were here when Traynor returned from Birmingham in 1921 and won a home for himself have since passed out.

IT MAY be out of season to talk hunting, but some figures on that subject compiled by the Pennsylvania Game Commission are interesting. They show, for instance, that 143,239 ring-neck pheasants were shot in this state last fall. This is the largest number of birds of that kind ever bagged in a single season in Pennsylvania and indicates how rapidly the ring-necks are increasing.

TY COBB is done as a player, and has demonstrated that he is not of the right temperament to be successful as a manager, but Dan Howley, pilot of the St. Louis American League club, is one baseball man who believes that the Georgian can still be of some service in the big show.

Howley has figured out a new role in which he thinks Cobb will be useful. He has announced the appointment of Tyrus as batting coach of the Browns and will take him to the training camp in the spring to give the Mound City players a course of instructions in the art of hitting.

Dan Howley.

THE Brown pilot realizes that a stronger punch is one thing that his team must acquire before it can become a real pennant contender, and sees a chance for a big gain in that direction if Cobb can impart some of his store of batting knowledge to a few of the players who are expected to hold down regular positions in the St. Louis lineup. Ty's job will be to find out and correct whatever it was that caused such men as Ralph Kress and Fred Schulte to fall as low as .273 and .286 last year after starting off like swatters of the .350 type.

MOST baseball followers would conclude that the early success of Kress and Schulte was due to the fact that the opposing pitchers were not yet at their best, and that the slump of the pair later resulted from the discovery of some defect in their batting styles by the same enemy hurlers.

But Howley believes that the hitting of those two and of other members of his outfit can be improved if they are given the proper sort of coaching; that they require only a little tutoring along the right lines to enable them to become consistent hitters of the .300 variety. And if anyone can bring about that transformation, he opines, Cobb is just the man.

JUST what measure of success, if any, will reward Ty's efforts remains to be seen, but meanwhile Howley's plan is certain to cause considerable discussion in baseball circles. It revives the old question as to whether hitters must be born or can be developed.

Unlike Howley, most diamond men, at least those of the old school, lean to the belief that if a player isn't a natural hitter all the coaching in the world cannot make him one. There are certain defects that are curable, and often a batsman improves when these are pointed out to him and he is induced to make a change or two in his stance or his swing, but for the most part, as Fred Clarke used to say, "You can teach them how to field, but they've got to know for themselves how to hit."

Charley Hyatt.

PITT'S basketball team has the leading individual scorer of the Eastern intercollegiate floor ranks in Charley Hyatt. The crack Panther forward went to the head of the class when he turned in six field goals and five one-pointers out of five attempts from the foul line in Tuesday night's game against Waynesburg. The 17 points thus registered gave Hyatt a total of 98 for the season to date, and enabled him to wrest first place in the East scoring table from Collins, who has made 85 for St. John's, of Brooklyn. Hyatt has made 40 field goals and has scored 18 points from fouls. Schaff, of Penn, is in third place with 77, followed by Wineapple, of Providence, with 70; Kelleher, of St. Francis, with 65; Gregory, of Columbia, with 60, and Baker, of Pitt and, Conroy of New York University, with 58 each.

AMATEUR FIGHT STARTS IN BIG TEN

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—(AP)—What is expected to precipitate a war between the National Amateur Athletic Union and colleges and universities over control of amateur sports broke out yesterday when Northwestern University announced it would henceforth schedule athletic meets with teams not subject to A. A. U. control.

The controversy between the A. A. U. and Northwestern was caused when the former organization refused to sanction a swimming meet between Northwestern and the Chicago Athletic Association because the Purple team competed in meets unauthorized by the A. A. U. last summer. The meet, scheduled for last night, was promptly called off by the C. A. A.

Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson, director of athletics at Northwestern, countered by issuing a statement, which breaks off relations with the A. A. U. The statement read:

GENERAL BREAK LIKELY

"The men who have been disqualified by the A. A. U. competed in amateur swimming meets last summer with our permission. These were amateur meets, no admission was charged and all who competed were certified amateurs by some reputable and responsible organization.

"The A. A. U. has not charged that the men violated any amateur laws. Their only offense in the eyes of the A. A. U. is that they competed in meets not controlled by the A. A. U. Northwestern University does not acknowledge that the A. A. U. has supreme control over swimming and other sports, and in the future we will schedule our meets with colleges, universities and such clubs as are not subject to A. A. U. control."

Wilson hinted he would take up the matter with Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics for the Big Ten and that other members of the conference and other colleges in the Middle West may dissolve relationships with the A. A. U.

A. A. U. METHODS SCORED

Maj. Griffith has been a bitter opponent of A. A. U. methods, contending the organization was trying to "dominate all college sports."

Avery Brundage, head of the Central A. A. U., said that while he regretted Wilson's statement that a governing body for amateur sports was necessary for its growth and respect.

"We are for anybody that boosts amateur sports," Brundage said, "but we do think they should all come under nationally accepted rules and regulations as to amateur standing."

TEX AT REST, GARDEN AGAIN IS ARENA

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—With a last big crowd to bid him farewell, Tex Rickard has gone to his rest in Woodlawn Cemetery. For three hours yesterday a long line of mourners, drawn from every walk of life, passed through Madison Square Garden to pay their final tribute to the promoter and 10,000 of them remained in the black draped arena for the simple funeral services.

Another crowd lined the street outside the building that stands as a monument to the man who could conceive and conduct sports on so great a scale, yet be a friend to the least of the preliminary fighters who appeared in it waiting for the funeral procession to pass.

Today the black and purple draperies have been taken down, and Madison Square Garden has been changed again into the huge sports arena Rickard built while his friends and associates prepare to pay him a lasting tribute by doing as they believe he would have wished—carrying on with the plans he made before his death and along the way he showed them.

PITLER PILOT AT ELMIRA

ELMIRA, N. Y., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Jake Pitler, former member of the Triple Cities baseball club of the New York - Pennsylvania League, has been named manager of the Elmira Colonels in the same league.

Pitler succeeds John T. Sheehan of Chicago, who was recently signed by the Atlanta, Ga., club in the Southern Association. Pitler will hold down a regular infield position, it was said.

Pitcher Guy Bush Has First Workout

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—The "Mississippi Mudcat," Guy Bush, just can't wait for the stentorian command, "play ball."

Bush, a youngster who throws fast ones for the Cubs, dropped his winter sales kit yesterday, strolled into the supply office at Wrigley Field, donned a suit and started to practice.

Dr. H. C. Carlson, Pitt basketball coach, will speak over KDKA, via the University of Pittsburgh studio, at 6.30 this evening on "international Games."

PURCHASE PRICE "CUT" AIM OF STEVE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

STEVE SWETONIC, Native Son, today is a qualified member of the Pirates, but before the star pitcher signs a contract he probably will insist that the Indianapolis owners pay him a part of the purchase money, Swetonic intimated as much this morning in a talk with the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The Pittsburgh youth last night was purchased from the Hoosiers in return for Outfielder Clyde Barnhart, a pitcher to be named later, and a sum of money. The amount of cash involved was not divulged but inasmuch as Swetonic was sought by other major league teams it is probable that the Pittsburgh owners had to put forth a big amount to swing the deal.

James A. Perry, president of the Indianapolis club, came to Pittsburgh yesterday to negotiate the Swetonic deal with the Pittsburgh officials. As soon as Steve had been notified of the transaction, he went to Oakland to consult with the Pirate owners and to confer with Owner Perry, presumably with the intention of getting something out of the purchase money. But Perry left before Steve arrived and the pitcher's financial end of the sale, so far as Indianapolis is concerned, will have to wait until he consults with Perry.

HOOSIERS LOST MONEY

In view of the fact that the Hoosiers are reported to have lost money last season, Steve may find it hard to collect from his former owners. Indianapolis won the American Association pennant and followed through by defeating the Rochester club in the International Class A. A. series, but the big city of Indiana did not support the club generously; in fact a shortage was reported even after the series with Rochester had been completed.

Swetonic, on the other hand, probably feels that it was no fault

Steve Swetonic, new Pirate pitcher, who has just been obtained from the Indianapolis Club of the American Association, is a Pittsburgh product. He first gained fame, with his brothers, Andy, Jim and Joe, in Ambridge, and later played for Allegheny High School, the University of Pittsburgh, Bellevue in the County League, teams in West Virginia and Eastern Ohio and Mahanoy City. Now he's up in the big show in his home town, an honor accorded few players. Brother Jim had a try-out with the Pirates a few years ago.

Dempsey to Make Statement Today

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(INS.)—Well into the afternoon hours of this day, Jack Dempsey is scheduled to issue his famous "I will" or "I won't" statement concerning the matter of his return to boxing. In brief, he has promised to give his answer to the question that has beset and confounded all boxing since Tex Rickard's untimely death last Sunday.

SLIM YOUTH

To look at the slim figure of Steve Swetonic one hardly would expect him to enact an iron man role on the diamond, yet he did just that little thing in the little world series last fall, when he won three games for Indianapolis against Rochester of the International League.

SEVEN GIANTS SIGNED

My Pal, TEX RICKARD

His Word Only Contract

By JACK DEMPSEY.
(Former Heavyweight Champion of the World.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Tex Rickard did millions of dollars worth of business with a solid handshake and his word as the only contract.

He was trusted alike by friend and foe. Whenever he made a statement and sealed it with a handclasp, it was definite and final.

In two years he paid me $1,650,000 and not a scratch of paper was signed between us. It is typical of the business dealings of this great promoter.

Scores of men who passed before the bier in Madison Square Garden had the same experience with this greatest showman of all time.

Jack Dempsey.

Rickard's business methods were considered unsystematic by efficiency experts, but he drove a hard bargain. He would argue and fence for hours before agreeing to articles. But once he agreed it was final and whether Rickard personally won, lost or broke even, he paid off as per the agreement.

If you left it to Rickard, you would receive more than if you signed contracts.

I first met him in Goldfield, after he had jumped to fame as the promoter of the historic Gans-Nelson fight.

I was just a boy and had been fighting off and on. Naturally, I was attracted to him because of the huge purse he had offered for that contest. His was an impressive personality then as he ruled in friendly fashion over the leading amusement center and recreational mecca of old Reno.

I don't believe I made any impression on him at the time, but I am sure that meeting was a permanent fixture in my memory.

It was many years later when Rickard and I met again.

I had just defeated Fred Fulton and was considered the logical contender for the heavyweight championship of the world then held by Jess Willard.

It was in December, 1919, and we assembled in the Claridge Hotel in New York City, to discuss arrangements for a championship fight. At that time Rickard was tremendously impressed with Willard's size. He felt that I might be too frail a competitor for the giant champion.

Scribes Decide Purse

"HERE'S the big fellow," was the introduction with which I was presented to Rickard on that occasion.

He paused a moment, and stepped back to take in my full size. "Gosh, he is a big boy," declared Tex, as he shook hands with me, adding, "....much bigger than I thought."

Then he got down to the business of discussing articles for the contemplated championship fight.

"How much money do you think you ought to have?" Rickard asked pointedly.

"How much are you giving the champion?" we countered.

"One hundred thousand dollars," he said frankly.

"Well, then Dempsey is worth that," declared one of my associates.

"Not to me," fenced Rickard.

"Then we'll fight for nothing," I said. Tex would not permit that. A long, violent, disorganized conference followed. Then out of the confusion one of the men asked for silence and addressed the gathering.

"There are a number of newspapermen here," he said.

"They have heard both sides of this situation. Let them each write on a piece of paper the amount of money they think Dempsey should have to meet the champion."

There was a pause.

"That suit you, Dempsey?" we were asked. It did. "And you, Tex?" He agreed.

There were 13 newspapermen in the room. Each of them wrote a figure on a slip, folded it and tossed it into a hat. The figures on the slips were totaled and divided.

"The figure is 27,500," the spokesman announced.

And that is the unusual way in which my end of the fight which brought me the world heavyweight championship was decided.

It is typical of Tex, the "squarest shooter" of them all.

How Tex Got Jeffries-Johnson Fight

By TAD, Famous Cartoonist and Sports Writer.

IN 1909 the world of sport was very much excited over the great Jeffries-Johnson match which was to be fought to a finish for the heavyweight championship of the world.

It could not be fought in New York, as boxing was against the law there at that time. The match must be fought some place in the West; it didn't matter much where, for it was sure to attract an immense crowd and a big gate.

The biggest promoters in the country came to New York. There were Tom McCarey, of Los Angeles; Jib Coffroth, of San Francisco; Tex Rickard, of Nevada, and a number of others. There was a meeting of principals and promoters at the old Albany Hotel on Broadway and next day sealed bids were to be opened at Hoboken in New Jersey.

Not one of the promoters let out a peep. We had no idea which had the inside track, but each one felt confident.

At Hoboken when the bids were opened the offer of Tex Rickard and Jack Gleason of $101,000 was accepted.

The other promoters went their way without a squawk.

We learned a bit later that Gleason had "muscled in" on Rickard. He told Tex that he had Jeff's signature sewed up and that Jeff had to fight under his banner. Tex also was told that Gleason had a big political drag in San Francisco (where it was planned to hold the go). All Tex had to do was to get Johnson, and Gleason, by being declared a partner, would do the rest.

Tex took him in on a 50-50 basis and they got the match.

Tex in the meantime had bought Johnson's wife a fur coat and slipped Jack $2,500 for signing up before the bids were opened.

We understand that Sam Berger, who was Gleason's friend, got a chunk himself for getting Jeff to stick his moniker onto the parchment.

Coffroth was double-crossed by a friend.

The next year, in July, the big fight came off and it was a tremendous success. The arena was crowded, the fight was a dandy and the moving pictures, which were cut three ways, were grand.

Johnson sold his rights for $50,000, that money being held by Fred Meyerstein, a San Francisco banker. He is the man, by the way who bet Clarence Berry, of Louisiana, $35,000 against $50,000 on Johnson. Well, you might know that Rickard and Gleason cut in on $50,000 or more as their bit.

Coffroth Double-crossed

THE day after the fight, this writer was standing in the lobby of the Goldman Hotel in Reno, Tex, who had a small office on the ground floor of the hotel, came out, and, spotting the writer, said: "Say, I want you to look at something—come in here."

Tex was all smiles. The chairs being set and a new set of cigars lighted, he reached into a drawer and pulled out a roll of certified checks held together with a stout rubber band.

"Here," piped Tex as he smiled. "Take a look at this. Here's the profits from that fight," and he peeled off a dozen or so of the checks. They were for $10,000, then some for $5,000 and so on. "This fellow Gleason won't have to work again for the rest of his life. Half of this pile is his and there's near $200,000 there."

He smiled like a kid with a toy. He always was very enthusiastic. Six months later, a very close friend of Jim Coffroth told us a story. He said that a man who was trusted by Coffroth had made a proposition to him (Coffroth) to lay off bidding on the big fight and by doing so would earn himself 25 per cent of the profits. Coffroth put in a small bid, which was one-half of what he wanted to bid. He kept his word, but the friend trimmed him of the promised 25 per cent. Meeting Coffroth some time

HARPSTER HOME

HOWARD HARPSTER, captain and all-American quarterback of Carnegie Tech, arrived back home this morning from his trip to California as a member of the all-East football team and will leave tonight for his home in Akron, where he will be feted by the chamber of commerce tomorrow.

EVEN AFTER 99 ROUNDS

LAKE WALES, FLA., JAN. 10.—(AP)—Ninety-nine rounds together in the ring and all even is the record of Billy Long, Philadelphia, and Al Trout, Cleveland, Negro middleweights, after their 10-round draw here last night. They recently fought 19 rounds to a double knockout in Tampa.

O'DOWD, MARTIN MATCHED FOR GARDEN BOUT

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

THE "natural" match of the local boxing season has been made. It will bring together Midget Mike O'Dowd, of Louisville, and Andy Martin, of Boston, bantamweight stars, both of whom recently have shown to excellent advantage in the Motor Square ring, the former defeating Jackie Rodgers and the latter outclassing Johnny Datto. They will clash in the main event of a show in the Garden ring on Monday night, February 4, the only date open for a boxing show there between now and April 1.

Terry Lisco, lightweight, formerly of the North Side, and now of Louisville, a stablemate of O'Dowd, will meet the best opponent available in the semi-final.

ADELMAN VS. MAYBERRY

The fur is expected to fly in the windup battle at McKeesport tonight, when Davey Adelman, of Philadelphia, and Howard Mayberry, of Donora, finally clash over the 10-round route in the third effort to get them together, influenza knocking out the first two attempts. Adelman arrived yesterday with his manager, Sammy Hahn, and worked out in Flynn's gymnasium.

Phil Seelig, of McKeesport, meets Young Guido, of Sharon, in the semi-final, and Luther Lash, of New Kensington, boxes John Brucker, of Pittsburgh, and Jack McCarthy, of the North Side, meets Johnny Brown, of Lawrenceville, in the preliminaries.

Jackie Rodgers will meet either Luis Carpentier or the winner of tonight's Adelman-Mayberry bout in the windup of the first show in the Moose Temple, Penn avenue, which likely will be staged Friday night of next week.

Johnny Mason, middleweight of Scranton, who is under the management of Johnny Crecley, former local featherweight, will box Teddy Esterbrook, of Niles, O., in the main bout of the show in the Jolly Bowl at New Castle next Monday night. Mason has been making a fine record for himself around Cincinnati. He packs a knockout wallop. U. S. Carpenter, of New Kensington, and Chester Smallwood, of Akron, will box the semi-final; Johnny Vivio, of Homewood, will battle Larry Mader, of Cleveland, and there will be two four-round bouts, in one of which Tom Harris, of Homewood, meets Tommy Ward, of the North Side.

MORAN NOW MANAGER

Mike Moran, former local bantamweight, now is managing Tommy Walker, heavyweight champion of the One Hundred and Seventy-sixth Field Artillery, and would like to get him started against any of the big fellows. Walker is 6 feet 3 inches tall and scales between 175 and 180 pounds.

A letter awaits Mike Harding, manager, at this office.

A team of Detroit amateur boxers will meet a local aggregation at the P. A. A. Saturday, January 26, in the second inter-city show of the season here.

Five local amateur boxers will leave Sunday night for Boston, where they will compete in an inter-city show in the Hub's new Madison Square Garden, Monday night. The team who will make the trip are: Pete D'Allessandro, Joe Orsini, Dan McCabe, George Chambers and Frank Novak.

Kid Cassey, of Buffalo, has been signed as Dominick Profio's opponent in a 6-round bout at Erie tomorrow night. Jack McCarthy, Profio's stablemate, will meet Joe Correlli, of Erie, on the same card.

AUTO RACING RULES ARE CHANGED

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Sweeping revisions governing the conditions of the famous Indianapolis 500-mile auto race have been announced by the contest board of the American Automobile Association effective in 1930. The principal change provides that all cars must be two-seaters.

Technical changes in the requirements for cars entering the Indianapolis race will open the field wide to manufacturers again, after a period in which their production has been monopolized by a few makers.

RACE TO BE SLOWER

It will mean slowing down the race, officials pointed out, but Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, president of the Indianapolis Speedway Association, expressed the opinion development of two-seater racers with speed up to 120 miles per hour will take place in a few years.

The contest board's ruling is that all cars entered must measure not less than 31 inches across the seat. They also must have independently operating sets of brakes, one of four-wheel character.

The official name of the Indianapolis race is to be changed to the "Grand Prize of America and a permanent challenge cup will be put up for the winner.

RECORD RULE CHANGED

Under a new ruling, effective this year, and affecting such straightaway speed events as those of Daytona Beach, cars need not be equipped with a reverse gear.

Drivers seeking credit for new records for any distance between one and 10 miles will have to beat the existing record by at least two miles an hour under a resolution the board will present before the Sportive Commission Internationale at a meeting in Paris in March.

This move is the outgrowth of the successful try for a new mark by Ray Keech at Daytona Beach, Fla., April 22, 1928. Keech topped the record held by Malcolm Campbell of England, only by five one hundredths of a second. Keech was clocked at 207.552 miles an hour.

Pennsy Ring Comish Lists Suspensions

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 10.—(AP)—The State Athletic Commission yesterday announced suspension of the following fighters:

George Godfrey, Leiperville, indefinite and $1,000 fine for fouling Al Walker in bout at Philadelphia, January 7.

Al Walker, Florida, indefinite, for unsatisfactory services in Godfrey bout.

George Peck, Pittsburgh, indefinite, pending adjustment of contract with manager.

Harry Taylor, Johnstown, indefinite, pending adjustment of contract with manager.

The commission announced that Harry Lesley, of Harrisburg, will not be granted a promoter's license for 1929.

later, this writer asked the famous promoter if the story of the promised cut was on the level or just a dream.

"Every word of it is true," replied Sunny Jim.

"Blank (not the real name) came to me a month before the bids were opened for the big fight and said: 'Jim, I have the inside wire on the big show and can let you in for a one-half interest if you will put up $50,000 cash. Jeff has given me his word that he will fight for no one but the man I dictate. I can give you a better proposition,' he said to me, continued Coffroth, and that is this. If you will stay out of the bidding so that Rickard gets the fight, I'll see that you are cut in for 25 per cent of the profits and you won't have to put up a cent.' Of course, the latter proposition hit me just right (smiled Sunny Jim) and, trusting my pal as I would my mother, I agreed. We shook hands on it and I haven't seen him since."

Coffroth did not get one cent. Rickard knew nothing of the secret arrangement, but went ahead slipping bonuses here and there just as if Coffroth was still in the bidding and a dangerous rival. Had Coffroth been given an even break and not double-crossed, the chances are that he would have staged the big go, but Rickard's luck was with him and his first great big adventure was the one that made him.

TRI-STATE LOOP CAGE RACE OPENS

By JESS CARVER.

THE first Tri-State Conference game of the season, featuring Geneva and Thiel at Beaver Falls, is on the books for tonight. Clean up the supper dishes early and take it in.

Ken Loeffler.

The contest will be the first collegiate encounter of the year for the Lutherans and the third for Geneva. Thiel has been bumped off in a preliminary start and the Covenanters have dropped two pre-season games and one college affair. Carnegie Tech put the kibosh on Ken Loeffler's Covenanters here Tuesday night.

There is a prize of some sort to be gained in tonight's game, the laurel wreath being the honor of leading the conference for a whole day and splitting the leadership with either Westminster or Duquesne for the remainder of the week. All one of the clubs has to do is to win, and as one of 'em is a 1,000-to-1 bet to do so, things look to be cut and dried. Silly, isn't it?

PITT, DUKES, TECH DRILL

Pitt and Tech and the Dukes, local favorites, are putting in their final drills in preparation for important tussles tomorrow evening. The Panthers and Tartans will hook up in the first of their annual three-game series for the alleged city title.

The Dukes are up against their first big test of the year in the champion Westminster basketeers. Westminster looks to be a more powerful team than last year, and with the added advantage of having the Dukes on their (Westminster's) own floor, may sink Capt. Rosenberg and his adherents with little or no fuss.

W. P. I. A. L. ON PAN

The W. P. I. A. L. is still being well panned for its action in booting the decision on the Tom Slaughter case last Saturday. I talked with several district coaches out in the Stadium after the Pitt-Waynesburg game, and they sadly shook their heads and cast their eyes upward when the affair was mentioned.

I have heard that Coach Earl Loucks, of Greensburg High, was ready to protest Slaughter if he appeared in Scottdale's lineup. This I do not believe. Loucks always has been a good sport, and it is difficult to imagine a man of his caliber protesting a boy like Slaughter. In fact, unless the violation of ineligibility was out and out shameful, I don't think Earl would protest any ball player.

FROTH

Old Man Fin gained a decision over John Holohan, of Duquesne U. ... John has been confined to his bed since he finished counting the gate receipts after the Duke-Muskie game here Saturday night ... Please omit flowers ... The West Penn referees look fine in their new coat sweaters ... Hardhat Snyder wears his derby with his ... and looks like Bozo Snyder ... Bull Brown says he is beginning to feel that urge ... "Three and you are out" ... Have been invited to a musicale at Mr. Carl Katz's on the Hill ... Herman Schmidt will play "You Made Me What I Am Today" on the zither.

Local Golfers Beaten at Pinehurst

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Parker Whittemore, of Brookline, Mass., advanced to the semi-finals of he annual Pinehurst mid-January golf tournament yesterday when he downed Fred Wolstenholme, Philadelphia, 8 and 7.

R. E. Hewitt Swope, Philadelphia, had a stiff battle with J. B. Blackburn, Pittsburgh. Swope won, 2 and 1. J. D. Chapman, Greenwich, Conn., defeated William O'Brien, Detroit, 6 and 5, while Norman Maxwell, Philadelphia, downed R. J. Breed, Boston, 7 and 6.

Lawrence Barr, of Pittsburgh, lost his match in the fourth division to M. E. Stover, also of Pittsburgh, by 6 and 4.

West Penn Senior Cup Game Saturday

The final round of the West Penn Senior cup will be played at Pitt Stadium next Saturday. The finalists are Heidelberg and McKeesport National Tube. There will be a preliminary game for the final of the Cameroc cup. This will start at 1 p. m. The senior final being scheduled for 2:45 p. m.

There is a chance that Armstrong Patterson, president of the United States Football Association, will attend the game.

SWETONIC

of his, that the club did not make money. He was regarded by some as the best pitcher in the Association, his record being 20 victories as against eight defeats.

The Yankees were hot on his trail at one time during the season, but the Yanks wanted Steve for immediate delivery when the club was in its slump. The Hoosiers realized that Steve was a big factor in their pennant hopes and they refused to part with the Pittsburgher.

The Swetonic deal, so far as it concerned his advance to the Pirates, has been hanging for some time. The Hoosier management, it appears, was holding out for players with whom to reconstruct its team, but the officials of both clubs may not have expected such a reaction on the part of the pitcher. However, it is likely that they did anticipate such a move by Swetonic as it is the custom for athletes to ask for a share of the purchase price. There is nothing in the provisions of baseball to cover such cases so the player acts to protect himself.

The Pittsburgh owners should not be left holding the bag as Swetonic deserves to get the proper kind of treatment from the club that sold him. It is altogether likely that this matter will be adjusted before the time for departure to spring training.

Steve is the youngest of the four Swetonic brothers of diamond lore—Joe, Jim, Andy and Steve in the order named. There are two more brothers and three sisters, besides the father and mother, in this fine family.

The new Pirate was a star in his high school days at Allegheny High and later he was the ace of the University of Pittsburgh staff, the while he gained experience on the sandlots of the Pittsburgh district.

ALLEGHENY HIGH STAR

Steve is aged 25, he having a stature of 5 feet, 11 inches and weighing 165. He is a righthander of the intelligent type. Teammates and rival players pronounce him a resourceful pitcher with good control.

Brother Jim had a tryout with the Pirates about eight years ago. Jim was a crack infielder of the semi-pro district and still plays with the fast clubs. Joe, who has been ill for some time, was a high-class shortstop. Andy is a second-baseman who played in the New England League last season.

Clyde Barnhart's departure from Pittsburgh will be a source of deep regret to thousands of admirers of the Pennsylvania Dutchman. Barney's punch at the plate coupled with his quiet mannerisms made him a big favorite with countless fans.

Barnhart joined the Pirates in 1920 as a free agent. Scout Bill Hinchman saw Pooch playing in Williamsport and secured him for the Bucco. Barney was farmed out to Birmingham in the same year but after a big season with the Barons he was recalled and the following year he became a Pirate regular.

In his long career with the Pirates, Barney well proved a reliable player and hitter. He rose to his brightest deeds in 1925 when the Pirates won the pennant and world series. Pooch played in 142 games and batted .325, besides driving in something like 120 runs.

GOLDENSONS WIN

Goldensons defeated Loendi basketeers, 45 to 30, on the South Side Market House floor. The lineup:

Goldensons—45.		Loendi—30.
C. Klimzing	F	W. Harris
O. Klimzing	F	Moore
Ketchell	C	Allen
Seigel	G	Betts
McGuirk	G	Young

Substitutes—Goldenson: McVicar; Loendi: W. Harris, Johnston. Field goals—C. Klimzing 5, O. Klimzing 2, Ketchell, Seigel 4, McGuirk, Moore 2, Allen 2, Betts, Young, McVicar 2, W. Harris 2, Johnston. Fouls—Goldenson, 14 out of 19; Loendi, 11 out of 16. Referee—Carroll.

PIRATE ICEMEN MEET COUGARS TONIGHT

DETROIT, Jan. 10.—The Pittsburgh Pirates and the Detroit Cougars, rivals in a bitter fight for a play-off berth last season, are to renew their feud here tonight. The Pittsburghers, finishing with a long string of victories, kept the locals out of the world series last year, and the Cougars are eager to get revenge. They downed Cleghorn's skaters by 3-1 and 3-0 scores in previous meetings this season, and they are favored to triumph again tonight.

A Detroit triumph, however, is far from a certainty. Until the last 10 days, when the Cougars had only the Chicago Hawks for opposition, the locals appeared to be in something of a slump, losing to Toronto and Les Canadiens in successive engagements. Since that time the Cougars have handed the Hawks three running defeats, but it remains to be seen whether they can stand up under the more stern opposition which the speedy Pittsburghers are expected to present.

GAMES TONIGHT.

Pittsburgh at Detroit.
Toronto at N. Y. Americans.
Montreal at Chicago.
Boston at Canadiens.
N. Y. Rangers at Ottawa.

Both the clubs are well supplied with victory incentive. The Cougars in second place, are eager to overtake the New York Rangers and gain the American Group lead, and the Pirates, in fourth place, are just as eager to pass the Boston Bruins and clamber into a play-off berth. The probable lineup:

DETROIT		PITTSBURGH
Dolson	G	Miller
Noble	R. D	McKinnon
Brydge	L. D	Smith
Lewis	C	Frederickson
Hay	R. W	Darragh
Cooper	L. W	Milks

Detroit spares: Traub, Nerberts, Connors. Brophy; Pittsburgh spares: Drury, White, Colton, McCurry, McCaffery, Holway.

POSTPONED GAME SET

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Officials of the National Hockey League have decided that the game between the New York Rangers and Montreal Canadiens, postponed last Tuesday, will be played off February 9.

Fight Results

At San Francisco—Fred (Dummy) Mahan knocked out (technical) Johnny Priston, 2 rounds.

At Durham, N. C.—Young Strib. ling knocked out Tommy Stone, 2 rounds.

At Anderson, Ind.—Vincent Hambright defeated Louis La Velle, 10 rounds.

At Boston—Joe Monte defeated George La Rocco, 10 rounds; Andy Lawrence knocked out Ruby Stein, 8 rounds; Chick Suggs defeated Harry Doyle, 6 rounds.

At Orlando, Fla.—Urbano Solera and Kid Osborne drew, 10 rounds.

SWIMMERS TO MEET

The Pittsburgh Athletic Association swimming team and Carnegie Tech's aquatic stars will contest for the championship of the Oakland district in a swimming meet to be staged Saturday night of next week, in the P. A. A. pool.

BUCKEYES SEEK ANDY KERR, IS REPORT

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 9.—Rumor here has it that Andy Kerr, football coach at Washington and Jefferson College, and formerly Pop Warner's right hand man at Pitt and Stanford, may succeed Dr. John W. Wilce at Ohio State next season.

Kerr stopped off here for an interview on his way back home a few days ago from California, where he coached the all-East team in its 20-0 victory over the all-West team, December 29.

Whoever is named to coach the Buckeyes through their stiff schedlue next fall will have the assistance of from seven to 10 aides, including freshman coaches, and the use of one of the most modern athletic plants in the country.

W. & J. CONTRACT UP

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 10. With the return yesterday of Andy Kerr, some definite announcement regarding the athletic coaching situation at Washington and Jefferson is expected soon. Kerr's contract with the Presidents expires with the end of the college year and if he is to be retained, a new instrument must be signed before the next football season arrives.

RAUHS OPPOSE GOLDENSONS

By JULIUS LEVIN

Action galore is promised the followers of the Allegheny County League tonight when Enoch Rauh Club meets the Goldensons, its time honored rival, in the only contest on the league program.

The Rauhs, having defeated the South Siders on the latter's home floor earlier in the season, believe they can duplicate the feat at Columbus Temple tonight, while the Goldensons are determined to turn the tables on the Hill district favorites.

Both teams have been showing a big improvement with each game and as a result their respective followers are looking for an interesting tussle tonight. The Lou Gordon Juniors will appear in the preliminary game at 8 o'clock.

Six of the contenders in the Pittsburgh & Ohio Valley League swing into action tonight, marking the first contests of the week in that popular circuit. The South Siders Mangans, making a strong comeback after getting off to a poor start, meet the Greenfield Club on the Stowe High School floor; the Morrys of Braddock invade Rusin Hall, Homestead, to engage the crack M. J. Conleys, while Immaculate Heart opposes the McKeesport Alumni Club at McKeesport. Greenfield, defeated by the Mangans earlier in the season, is bent on getting revenge tonight. The McKees Rocks passers have been strengthened considerably and will present their best lineup against the South Siders.

The Duquesne Black Hawks want games with boys' teams. Call Walnut 1645 and ask for Bill.

Accuser Now Accused In Hub Bribe Case

BOSTON, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—The accuser was the accused in this city's Sunday baseball bribery scandal today.

Dan Carroll, manager of boxers and a truckman, testified before the finance commission yesterday that the charge that Councilman William G. Lynch sought a bribe for his vote in the Council's ratification of the law permitting Sunday sports was invented by Emil E. Fuchs, president of the Boston National League Baseball Club, in order to "shade down" Charles F. Adams, vice president of the club, for $100,000.

GIVES HIS VERSION

Carroll was called by the finance commission to give his version of what occurred when he and Lynch called on Fuchs on the night when, Fuchs alleges, Lynch asked for the $5,000 bribes for himself and 12 other Councilmen. Carroll denied that bribes had been mentioned. He said Fuchs threatened Lynch with political defeat if he opposed the Sunday bill.

Carroll quoted Fuchs as saying: "We had hard luck since I came here—I had to go to and now my stock in the Braves is in hock down at the Atlantic National."

Joseph P. Walsh asked if Carroll thought it was Judge Fuchs' purpose in making the bribery charges "to hold up Adams because Fuchs was broke," and Carroll answered "yes." Adams is a wealthy chain grocery store owner and president of the Boston Bruins, member of the National Hockey League and as well as vice president of the Braves.

COUNCILMAN HEARD

The commission also heard Councilman Robert E. Wilson, Jr., who Adams has identified as the man he thought had called him on the telephone to say that the 13 councilmen would hold up action on the sports ratification until the $65,000 had been paid.

Wilson made a sweeping denial of the charges and characterized Fuchs and Adams as "unprincipled," "money-mad" and "a pair of unscrupulous fortune-seekers." He called Adams "a despicable liar who is a blight to the name he gets by on."

Rodgers Sets Record In 'Angeles Open

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Ninety amateur and professional golfers, survivors of a great army of more than 300 that swarmed over six courses in this section from dawn until dark, yesterday successfully scaled the 36-hole qualifying barrier of the $10,000 Los Angeles Open.

Few, if any, of the outstanding candidates failed to pass this first test. Those who were successful will join forces tomorrow morning, with 40 players who were exempt from qualification, teeing off at the Riviera Country Club course, near Santa Monica, Cal., in the 72-hole drive of a tournament proper.

At the head of the successful forces was Dan Williams, professional of Shackamaxon, N. J., who bested old man par by one stroke in his two trips over the Fox Hills Country Club course. Williams turned in a 72 for his morning round, and came back later in the day to burn up the layout in 69, for an aggregate of 141.

One stroke behind the youthful Easterner came two western players, Johnny Rodgers, of Denver, Colo., formerly of Pittsburgh, and John Juner, of Portland, Ore., both of whom played over the Sunset Fields course for a total of 142. Rodgers, whom Walter Hagen—peer of the professionals—described as the longest driver in the realm of golf, set a new course record for the Sunset Fields layout on his first jaunt around, stroking a 69. He took a 73 in the afternoon. Junor played consistently, traversing the course each time in 71.

The Easterners who qualified and their scores:

Dan Williams, Shackamaxon, N. J.	72-69—141

BAD BANK LOAN RULE BEFORE HIGH COURT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—A question of considerable importance to all banks, national and state, reached the Supreme Court yesterday in a case from Idaho, asking the highest tribunal to determine when banks can escape federal taxes on worthless and uncollectable loans.

The case was filed by Leslie J. Aker, of Boise, in behalf of the commissioner of finance of that state, in charge of settling the affairs of the Citizens State Bank of Buhl, while the question of taxation was brought up in connection with the case in a petition signed by Atty. Gen. Stephen, of Idaho, and Charles Evans Hughes.

In the present case, the bank was asserted to have made worthless loans to insolvent borrowers without obtaining any security "under circumstances involving misapplication of the bank's funds and constituting constructive embezzlement."

The petition protested that the Federal courts had held that such worthless loans could not be charged off in the tax returns as losses.

Stating that there is great confusion and conflict on the question, the Supreme Court was asked in the petition to lay down a rule which would enable the banks to know when they may deduct worthless loans in paying their federal taxes.

The Idaho case seeks to recover from the government about $2,000 paid in taxes on such loans and interest amounting to about $10,000.

Banker, Just Before Death, Tells What's Worth While.

—By B. C. FORBES—

YOU never can tell. In the last week of the year, after talking with a financier long influential in Wall street and advertised in a score of corporations, I write the following, but it cannot find time to appear in print, he was dead.

"The other day I met a financier whose name had been familiar for many years. He has been an active figure practically all his long life. He avowed that he had put unusual zest in living ideal for his circumstances. Although he was long ago wealthy enough to retire, he remained in daily harness until not long ago. He then turned over the running of his business to the organization he had trained, which includes a promising son. But he has continued in a consultative capacity and still appears very frequently, not to say regularly, at his office, but does not bother about ordinary matters. He has also retained his directorships.

"'I have always found business fascinating,' he remarked. 'Instead of withdrawing from it entirely, I find satisfaction in still keeping in touch. Were I to withdraw from everything, I soon would not be speaking the same language as the many friends I have made in business. My course lets me have all the leisure I desire, and at the same time I need never lack things to do that interest me—especially in the way of trying to help out in putting a wealthish concern strongly on its feet. By keeping up most of my contacts, I keep my mind from rusting and am in a position to join—intelligently, I hope—in the conversation of my business friends. In any case, the plan I follow is yielding me as much happiness as I have enjoyed at any stage of my career.'"

The financier was J. Horace Harding, who died last Friday.

FOLLOWING our talk we walked along the street and some of the things Mr. Harding then said now take on peculiar significance—at least they make me wonder whether he had some premonition that his end was near, notwithstanding that his health then was, he declared, better than it had been in a long time.

"Looking back, I now find that I derived more satisfaction from having taken a hand in restoring to health sickly companies than in anything else," he remarked. "A man can derive real joy from the thought that he has done something to save, or keep down, losses by a great many stockholders and to keep an enterprise from going to the wall, throwing many breadwinners out of employment.

"Doing a constructive job is what appeals to me most. I now find myself much more interested in doing that than in doing anything else—than in just making some more money, for example."

I NEXT quizzed him about his feat fameus in financial annals of raising many millions of capital for the New Haven Railroad at a time when its mortgage bonds were selling at such a serious discount that neither investors nor banking houses like J. P. Morgan & Co., or Kuhn, Loeb & Co., would entertain any suggestion that more capital could be raised. Mr. Harding recounted how he personally became a bond salesman and how he induced important interests to subscribe for large blocks of the unique security he then devised. Among those he persuaded to put up $250,000 to $1,000,000 or more were Morgan & Co., C. A. Coffin of General Electric, Judge Gary of the Steel Corporation, Westinghouse, Charles M. Schwab, of Bethlehem Steel, Jacob H. Schiff, of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

Thanks largely to Mr. Harding's single-handed efforts, the direly-needed money was raised. And now the New Haven Railroad is solidly back on its feet.

MR. HARDING'S death, after only a few days' illness, recalls forcefully to my mind instances where other men of wealth and influence reached a stage when they derived more genuine satisfaction from the helpful things they had done than from any or all of their purely money-making exploits. The trouble is, however, that in a tragically large number of cases the worthwhileness of doing unselfish things is not recognized until very late, not to say too late, in life. This brief recital may influence a few still engrossed in the heat of the financial and business fray to indulge in a little mental stock-taking, with results beneficial to others and ultimately consoling to themselves.

Happily, there are an increasing number of powerful business men who take time to lend a helping hand, by their talents and by their money, as they go along. In reading the newly-published life of Jacob H. Schiff one is impressed by the fact that practically from the outset of his successful career he gave up much time and money to helping worthy individuals, institutions and causes. And as he grew older he increased his benefactions far beyond the Biblical tithe of his income, with great happiness to himself.

JULIUS ROSENWALD expressed a profound truth when he declared that the only pleasure that never palls is that which comes from doing things for others. That was exactly J. Horace Harding's final experience.

Stocks Dash Up — Fuel Issues Quiet

STOCKS DASH UP AFTER SINKING

NEW YORK, Jan 10.—(AP.)—Easier credit conditions and favorable trade news, including an unexpectedly large increase of 303,713 tons in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation last month, provided the groundwork for another brisk advance in prices in today's stock market. Renewal of selling pressure against some leading industrials caused a temporary sinking spell around midday, but fresh buying support was quickly supplied, and a long list of issues advanced 3 to 10½ points above yesterday's final quotations.

Maintenance of the Bank of England's discount rate at 4½ per cent allayed fears of any immediate increase in the New York Federal Reserve Bank rediscount charge, as Wall street has been led to believe that a higher London rate would precede any advance here. Call money renewed at 6 per cent for the first time since mid-November, and the financial district looked for a large reduction in brokers' loans after the close of the market.

Allied Chemical came back into the speculative spotlight by soaring 10½ points to a new high record at 259. American Machine and Foundry, National Bellas Hess and Radio (old stock) all sold 9 points higher and Wright Aeronautical, Mathieson Alkali, Ingersoll Rand, F. G. Shattuck, Johns Manville and Stromberg Carburetor sold 6 to 7 points higher, the last named touching a new top.

Among the many other issues which sold at their best prices in years, if not for all time, were Electric Auto-Lite, American Steel Foundries, Commonwealth Power, Otis Elevator, Continental Baking A and B, Real Silk Hosiery, Worthington Pump B, Stewart-Warner Speedometer and Underwood Elliott Fisher, the last named responding to the announcement of the acquisition of the Neidich Process Co., manufacturers of typewriter supplies.

SECURITIES SALESMEN

AN ESTABLISHED investment firm desires to add to its staff two salesmen to sell bonds and selected preferred and common stocks in the Pittsburgh district. Compensation in the form of drawing account and commissions. Applicants should state age, education, business experience and compensation expected. Replies, which will be held in confidence, should be addressed to E-275, in care of this newspaper. Our salesmen have been advised of this advertisement.

A Spirit of Service That is Now Tradition

MORE than one hundred years ago, when Pittsburgh had only two bridges over its rivers, Nathaniel Holmes established his banking office. Founded with the ideal of rendering a friendly financial service, that one office has grown into the organization of J. H. Holmes & Company.

Pittsburgh's two bridges have increased to twenty-three; and with the growth of the city and the growth of its industries, J. H. Holmes & Company so retained the old spirit of friendly service that it is now a tradition, handed down to this generation by business men and corporations to whom such service was rendered.

If you would like to receive our "Market Review" booklet, telephone Court 0811 and we will send it to you each month.

What's on the Air

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

NORMAN ROCKWELL, noted character illustrator, and Marie Sundelius, Swedish-American prima donna, will be heard from Pittsburgh stations tonight.

Mr. Rockwell will be featured on the Lehn and Fink Serenade over KDKA at 8 o'clock while Marie Sundelius will sing an aria from Bizet's "Carmen" over WJAS at 8:30 during the Sonora Hour.

Arthur C. Stott, tenor, will be the guest soloist on the Kemble and Mills program at 7:30 p. m. KDKA. A program of old Italian compositions will be offered by Milady's Musicians at 9 o'clock. The March and Procession of Bacchus from "Sylvia" and a special arrangement of Kreisler's "Love's Joy" will be highlights on the Maxwell Hour at 9:30 o'clock.

Pat Barnes' "Golden Wedding Anniversary" will be given at 10:30 p. m. by the electrical recording process.

PIANO RECITAL.

Tierney and McCarthy will be featured on Forhan's Song Shop at 8 o'clock over WCAE. A tenor solo, Schubert's "Serenade," and "Waters of Minnetonka" will be offered by the Selberling Singers. "Maybe This is Love" and a violin solo, "Gypsy Rondo," will be given on the Halsey Stuart program at 10 p. m. A delightful piano recital has been arranged by Gertrude Mohr for 7 o'clock.

Due to last minute changes, the WJAS program is subject to a few upsets. The program as announced last night will present the United Light Opera Company at 10 o'clock either in the "Pearl Fishers" or special selections. The program of the Columbians, scheduled for 9 o'clock, may be changed somewhat due to an original arrangement for an hour's concert.

Jeanette Fischel, violinist, and Ray Magram, accompanist, will present classical selections over WJAS at 8:15 o'clock. Miss Fischel's playing has won for her the praise of very good critics.

Waldteufel's "Starry Night," a waltz, will be played during the Slumber Music broadcast through WJZ, WRC at 11 o'clock. The March from "Sylvia" will be the opening number. The concert will close with Nevin's "Lullaby."

The Mid-week Hymn Sing from WEAF at 7 o'clock will be international in character. Twelve nations will be represented by the selections.

8:00 P. M.—Lehn & Fink Serenade.
NORMAN ROCKWELL.
Norman Rockwell, famous character illustrator, will laud the beauty of plain women in a declaration of faith in feminine charm when he makes his first bow to the radio world tonight.
Famous for his drawings of wrinkled old men and tramps, freckle-faced boys and waggly-tailed dogs, the well-known artist declares that classic feminine beauty lacks character, and that the beauty rising from sivarity, glowing health and careful toilette is more artistic.
In addition to Mr. Rockwell, the Serenade will present a musical offering featuring Jack Shilkret's novelty orchestra, instrumental soloists and a male quartet.

10:30 P. M.—Weather reports. Maytag electrically-recorded program: "The Golden Wedding Anniversary," by Pat Barnes.
SYNOPSIS.
Mr. and Mrs. Marshall are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary in a small country community. Friends and neighbors are in for the occasion, and with music and dancing the evening is passing very pleasantly.
Mrs. Marshall, however, is very unhappy because there has been no message from their only daughter, Alice, who has achieved some fame as a singer and is pursuing a musical career in a distant city. Mr. Marshall resents her apparent neglect, especially since it is depriving their mother. Always before, Alice has remembered the anniversaries.
Suddenly someone arrives in a taxicab and it proves to be Alice, who has come home to pay honor to her parents on their fiftieth anniversary. She meets the old friends again and is especially glad to see Billie Hart, an old school friend, who in years gone had played accompaniments on the flute. He plays again as she sings, and the evening wears away happily.
The catty remarks of a gossipy busybody lend humor to the program.
Billie Hart lingers after the others leave and obtains Alice's permission to call the following day, then the little family of three are alone in their "Home Sweet Home."

Obituary

The Rev. Dr. Edward H. Ward

The Rev. Dr. Edward Henry Ward, 80, retired Episcopal clergyman, died yesterday in Ensley, Ala., according to word received here. Dr. Ward at one time served as senior clergyman of the Pittsburgh Diocese of the Episcopal Church. For 21 years he was rector of St. Peter's Church, Forbes street, Oakland.

He was born in Virginia and came to Pittsburgh from Lexington, Ky. Following his retirement in 1917 he returned to Lexington and recently was elected honorary canon of the Lexington cathedral. He was visiting relatives in Ensley when stricken with influenza which caused his death. The body will be brought to Pittsburgh for burial and funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in St. Peter's church.

When Dr. Ward came to St. Peter's church, it was located in Grant street on the site of the present Frick building. When Henry Clay Frick acquired the property the church was moved piecemeal to its present location. Dr. Ward leaves his wife, Mrs. Somers Ward, and a son, Edward Henry Ward, Jr., of Ensley.

Julius L. Clyman.

Julius L. Clyman, for 35 years connected with the circulation departments of Pittsburgh newspapers, died yesterday in his home, 574 Dawson avenue, Bellevue. He began his career as a newsboy and for many years was a distributor in the circulation department of the Chronicle Telegraph. Later he was associated with the Pittsburgh Press and in 1917 organized the North Boroughs Ice Company in Bellevue and embarked in other business enterprises. He was a director of the Citizens Trust Company, of Bellevue. He was a member of the Church of the Assumption. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Katherine Clyman, a daughter, Miss Margaret Clyman, and his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Clyman.

John H. Snyder

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon for John H. Snyder, auditor of the West Penn Power Company, who died Tuesday in his home, 3527 Laird street, North Side. The services will be conducted in the Second Presbyterian Church and burial will be in Unionidale Cemetery. Mr. Snyder was born in Baltimore and came here 10 years ago. He was treasurer of the board of deacons of the Second Church at the time of his death. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Bessie Snyder; a son and two daughters.

Mrs. C. A. Smith

Mrs. Annie B. Smith, 61, wife of C. A. Smith, died yesterday in the Sewickley Valley Hospital. She was a past department commander of the auxiliary of the United Spanish War Veterans and a past president of the Sarah White auxiliary of the organization. She also was a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution and of the Veterans of Foreign Wars auxiliary. She leaves a son and a daughter.

Thomas H Thompson

Thomas H. Thompson, 72, died yesterday in his home in Westford, Crawford county. Until recently he was connected with the Ocean Accidental Indemnity Company. He was a member of the Genesee Falls Lodge, F. and A. M. and the Episcopal Church of the Advent. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Mary Thompson and two sons.

Emil C. Danner

Emil Carl Danner, 43, a local electrical engineer, died yesterday in his home, 9 Forbes Terrace. He was connected with the engineering department of the United States Glass Company. Mr. Danner was a graduate of Carnegie Institute of Technology. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Blanch Redington Danner; a son, a daughter, his parents and two brothers.

Mrs. Alice E. Hood.

Mrs. Alice E. Hood, 77, widow of Oliver P. Hood, died yesterday in her home in the Ruskin apartments. Mrs. Hood was born at Columbus, Ind., October 16, 1851, and spent her early life at Vincennes, Ind. She was a member of the First Church of Christ Scientist. She leaves many friends.

Mrs. J. W. Bryan

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 10.—Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson Bryan, 69, wife of J. W. Bryan, is dead here. She was born in McDonald, a daughter of William and Matilda Johnson, descendants of early settlers of that district. Her early life was spent in Pittsburgh and Johnstown. Three children survive, Mrs. W. E. Courson, Jr., Washington; R. J. Bryan, McKeesport, and L. M. Bryan, Asheville, N. C.

In any real estate transaction the most important detail is the title insurance. If property owner could be made to realize this positive fact, title insurance would accompany every deed, and it should. It secures the holder permanently against losses resulting from title defects which are liable to develop at any time.

BUGS BAER Says

HOW about a name for the Question Mark?

They named it the Question Mark because they didn't know what it would do.

Arthur "Bugs" Baer wrestle with.

But now it's gone and done it.

The Flying Whoozms or the Interrogation Point are not names for history to Little school children should be considered in this affair as they are smothered in question marks.

Those five men, who spanned a week way up on the vapory mezzanine, are going to look fine wearing medals engraved thusly:

For????
In line of ????
Donated by a Grateful but????
Government.

These boys have joined the Eagle Club. And they have done it without question marks, asterisks or dipthongs.

They did use some punctuation when they held the world in parenthesis for six days and laid a barrage of ditto marks under the records of Lindbergh and the other cloud inspectors.

Maj. Carl Spatz at least deserves to have a bottle of champagne cracked over his head.

Capt. Eaker and the two Loots rate recognition otherwise than the doubtful privilege of having a big question mark on their records.

When somebody was elected to climb overboard and go for a fashionable promenade on the cat-walk, did you notice it was a sergeant? Question mark.

The cat-walk is a three-inch boardwalk on the outside of the plane. A nice place to learn how to meow.

It's a nice sensation to hang on the outside of a plane by fingernails that refuse to grow.

But the sergeant did his dizzy detail very calmly and sergeantly. And when he climbed back into the boat he didn't even get sore when his superior officers asked where he had been all the time.

The five flying hermits broke all records for planes, Zeppelins, flag-pole sitters, and steeplejacks.

They also grew the first aerial beards in history. We do not ask Congress to talk over the recognition of these five birds for that would be merely starting another endurance contest.

THE BUNGLE FAMILY — Disappointed

YES, JO, I'LL ADMIT I'VE NOTICED A CHANGE IN PEGGY SINCE SHE CAME HOME. HER COLOR IS BETTER. SHE'S BRIGHTER AND HAS MORE PEP.
PEP! HEAVENLY DAYS IS THAT WHAT YOU CALL THE WAY SHE ROLLS HER EYES, SINGS SILLY SONGS LIKE ONE ROCKING CHAIR IS ENOUGH FOR TWO, AND SUCH ABSURD AND LOW, YESSIR! LOW TUNES! PEP? MY STARS!
OH WELL THERE'S NO HARM IN A YOUNG PERSON BEING ON THEIR TOES, STEPPING ALONG WITH THE CROWD.
GEORGE BUNGLE, ARE YOU TRYING TO CONVINCE ME YOU'RE NOT WORRIED ABOUT PEGGY? OH HOW I WISH I HAD ONE OF THOSE EASY-GOING DISPOSITIONS. I SUPPOSE YOU THINK A MOTHER SHOULDN'T HAVE THE LEAST CONTROL OF HER OWN DAUGHTER? OH DON'T BE AFRAID TO SAY IT. I KNOW THAT'S JUST WHAT YOU MEAN
LISTEN JO. TIMES CHANGE. YOUNG PEOPLE HAVE THEIR OWN IDEAS. DON'T WORRY, PEGGY WILL NEVER LOSE HER HEAD. SHE'S A REAL BUNGLE THROUGH AND THROUGH!
SHE'S CERTAINLY GOT A LOT OF REAL BUNGLE IDEAS IN HER NEW ATTITUDE TOWARD ME. IF I GO MUCH AS LOOK AT HER SHE SHAKES HER HEAD AND GIVES ME A LOOK THAT SAYS JUST AS PLAINLY AS DAY, OH MIND YOUR OWN BUSINESS, PLEASE
WELL THE FIRST GOOD CHANCE I GET IN THE NEXT FEW DAYS OR SO I'LL SPEAK TO HER ABOUT ALL THIS STUFF YOU MENTIONED. I'LL FIND OUT WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT.
YOU CERTAINLY TOLD THE TRUTH WHEN YOU ADMITTED THAT LATELY SHE'S BEEN A REAL BUNGLE. I SAW THAT IN HER TOO BUT I JUST DIDN'T HAVE THE COURAGE TO ADMIT IT WHAT A SHOCK! A FEW YEARS AGO WHEN SHE WAS SO SWEET AND GENTLE AND BRIGHT I THOUGHT SURE SHED CONTINUE ON LIKE MY PEOPLE ALL HER LIFE.

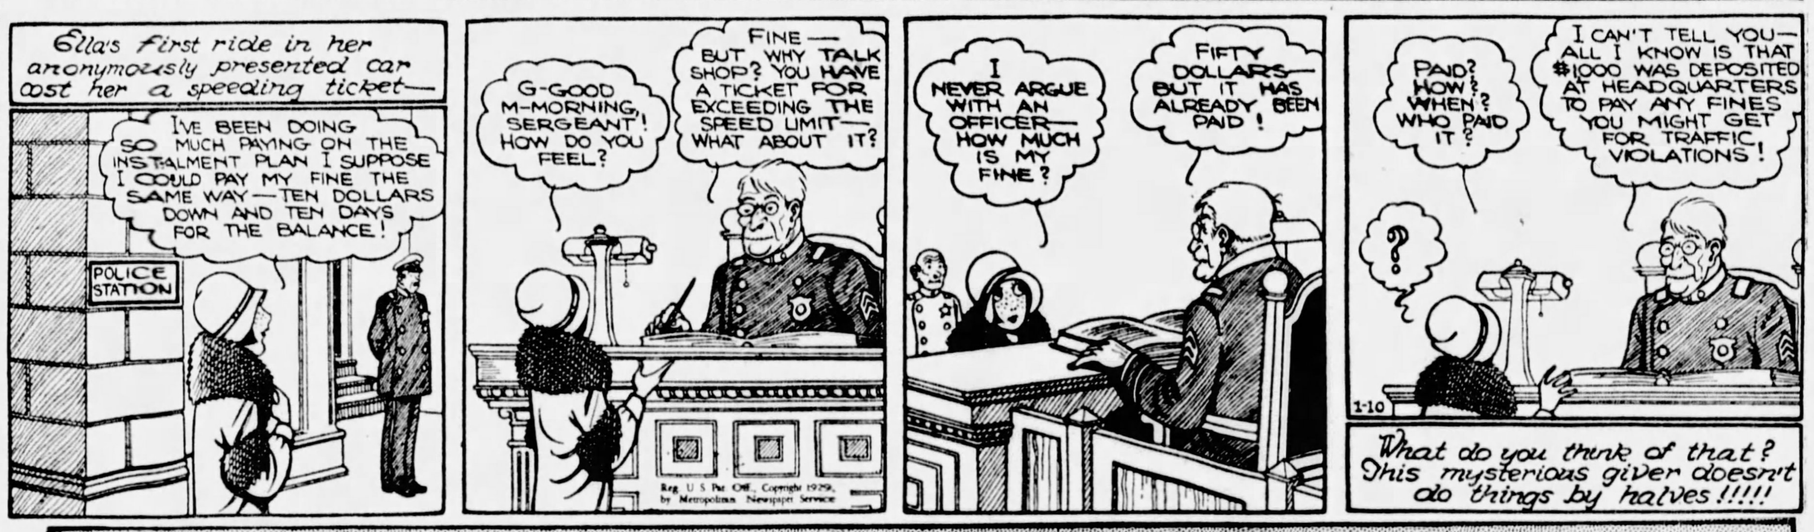
ELLA CINDERS — Her Speeding Account



Ella's first ride in her anonymously presented car cost her a speeding ticket—
I'VE BEEN DOING SO MUCH PAYING ON THE INSTALMENT PLAN I SUPPOSE I COULD PAY MY FINE THE SAME WAY—TEN DOLLARS DOWN AND TEN DAYS FOR THE BALANCE!
POLICE STATION
G-GOOD M-MORNING, SERGEANT! HOW DO YOU FEEL?
FINE— BUT WHY TALK SHOP? YOU HAVE A TICKET FOR EXCEEDING THE SPEED LIMIT— WHAT ABOUT IT?
I NEVER ARGUE WITH AN OFFICER— HOW MUCH IS MY FINE?
FIFTY DOLLARS— BUT IT HAS ALREADY BEEN PAID!
PAID? HOW? WHEN? WHO PAID IT?
I CAN'T TELL YOU— ALL I KNOW IS THAT $1000 WAS DEPOSITED AT HEADQUARTERS TO PAY ANY FINES YOU MIGHT GET FOR TRAFFIC VIOLATIONS!

Judge holds motorists are not to blame if children run in front of them on scooters.

Motorists have enough trouble chasing pedestrians without having to add scooters to the list.

SHORT STORY

(Stockton Journal)

A stranger called at the Moberly Hotel and told the proprietor that he was broke and hungry. The proprietor ordered a good meal for the man. When he arose from the table a $20 bill dropped from his handkerchief. A waiter picked it up and handed it to the proprietor, who was mad and took out 75 cents for the meal, returning $19.25 to the stranger. Later the proprietor discovered the bill was counterfeit.

Yes, and the same procedure is the only way you can shut some women up.

WHO THREW THE PARTY FOR THE WIDOW'S HUSBAND?

There Is a Solution for This Sort of Thing—Try and Find It!

Busy scene in our Mystery Department, where thousands of answers are indexed and filed daily.

IF ANYONE has already solved case No. 36-N 30823 please wire immediately. This will save us the trouble of going on with the mystery.

Well, it seems that there was—but before going into that again, we should mention that there is a Capital Prize offered for the correct solution of 36-N 30823. A Shetland Pony! And Uncle Balsome—the Mystery Editor—would like the Little Readers especially to write and tell him whether they prefer a Boy Pony or a Girl Pony. And if there is anyone who has a Shetland Pony and would like to dispose of it—Shetland Ponies after all get to be a bother—we should be very glad to take the Shetland Pony off his hands.

And now—

Confidence in Future Of Pittsburgh District Based on Sound Reasons

Important reasons for strengthening confidence in the future of Pittsburgh have appeared during the last few days. Among these are the announcements of the county's extensive improvement program, of the city's preparation to build three and a half miles of walls along the wharves of the downtown district and North Side, of the entrance of Sears, Roebuck & Co. into the already vast mercantile trade of this city, and other things.

The Sears, Roebuck & Co. store is significant of the faith outsiders have in the stability of Pittsburgh and its advantages as a trading center. We who live here, and have had our optimistic belief in our city justified through the fortunate outcome of the many enterprises in which we have invested our own capital, know that we have a commanding position commercially. It is not difficult for us to back our faith, having the knowledge we do. But when strangers come in ready to invest $3,000,000 their act is even greater evidence of the importance in which Pittsburgh is held than is our own.

Further, this concern has so much faith in Pittsburgh that it is satisfied to accept a location far outside of the Golden Triangle, in East Liberty. The coming of Sears, Roebuck & Co. is bound to help all lines of business as a result of the stimulation to the flow of trade from all directions in the territory surrounding Pittsburgh. It will help realty also.

If outside interests have such faith in Pittsburgh our own should thereby be confirmed. Pittsburgh is in a transitory period in which many associations of our early growing days are vanishing and newer and greater things are taking their place. New skyscrapers, new hotels, new theaters, new bridges, new boulevards, new schools and new enterprises all attest to the vast extent of the transformation taking place.

They bid us to be ready for the consummation of great projected river improvements, including flood control, canalization and wharf extension. They bid us to look at the future with confidence strong and great hopes justified.

Something New From Unions

Russian Workmen Give Airplanes to Their Government

ONE OF 21 AIRPLANES GIVEN TO RUSSIA BY LABORING MEN.

This airplane, big, powerful, built for SPEED AND FIGHTING, is presented to Russia's fighting air fleet by Russian RAILWAY WORKERS.

Russian lettering on the side of the ship means that the plane is named the "Co-operator."

Twenty other planes have been given to Russia by different groups of Russian workers.

This is something new. In this country radicals sometimes oppose national defense, saying "We should all be brothers and not fight each other," which is a mild but, unfortunately, NOT harmless form of lunacy.

Russian workers are intelligent, they know that when fighting comes it is the workingmen that MUST do the fighting, the killing and bear the loss that comes afterwards.

Therefore they intend that their nation, RUSSIA, shall be in a position to defend herself when the time comes, and at their own expense they build and give to the government high grade fighting airships.

When bankers from New York called on Abraham Lincoln demanding a warship be kept constantly in New York harbor, "because of the vast sums of money on deposit in our city," Lincoln replied good-naturedly, "If I had as much money as you say YOU have, I would build a warship at my own expense to protect my money."

Russian workingmen are building fighting ships at THEIR expense to protect THEIR country.

And that is a REMARKABLY GOOD SIGN FOR RUSSIA.

In the days of czars and grand dukes, busy squandering and stealing public money, the Russian people felt that the government didn't belong to them.

That is why the Japanese beat Russia so easily.

But anybody fighting Russia today wouldn't fight drunken grand dukes and feeble czars, but would fight THE RUSSIAN PEOPLE, the type of man you see in this picture. And if you think they are easy to beat, you don't know the Russians. Ask the European nations that tried to force Russia into submission under Lenin. They could not do it.

THE NEEDED BOOST

(Copyright, 1929.)

WHEN the American shipper and business man directs that American ships be used whenever possible to carry American goods abroad, then, and not before, will the American merchant marine stand an equal chance with foreign shipping interests to pluck its rightful share of shipping profits. Without that needed boost from American shippers, as is made clear in today's picture-editorial, the United States merchant marine can only take what falls from the hands of its competitors.

Tales That Are Told

Candid

IT WAS a sad day in the Pipson household. The housemaid had given notice, making the third girl in two months who had declined to stay. Mrs. Pipson, almost in tears, was talking the matter over with the cook.

"What the girls of today can be thinking of, I'm sure I don't know!" she said. "Always changing from one place to another; never satisfied! Leaving to better herself, she told me! Such nonsense! How does she think she is going to get a better place than this?"

The cook looked sympathetic.

"That's what I tell 'em all, ma'am. 'Goin' to better yourself, are you?' I says to 'em. 'And 'ow do you know that?' I says. 'And what,' I says, 'do you know about the place you're a-goin' to? Not a thing! Of course, you may be better off, but you may just as likely be goin' from bad to worse!' That's what I tells 'em all. Out of the frying-pan into the fire, I calls it. But it don't make no difference."

When They Worked

AN American mining engineer was spending a few days in Wales, and, having become friendly with a local miner, asked the latter to show him round.

The American was unimpressed and inclined to sneer at most of the things he saw.

"Say," he remarked, "we've mines back home so deep that it takes half an hour to go down and half an hour to come up."

"Well, said the miner, "that mine there is deeper; it takes half a day to go down and the same to come up."

"Ridiculous!" said the other. "When is the work done?"

"Work!" answered his guide. "Oh, the night shift does that."

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

THE hunters that have been up North came back with some great hunting stories. They must of sat around in the camps a long time making them up. They tell about one guy that was out in the woods in New Brunswick, and he came back waving his shotgun and calling his pardner to listen to a good adventure yarn. "A bear chased me!" he says. "He chased me a mile! Finally he got me in a corner of a rock, and I turned around and blazed away at him with both barrels at once!"

"But listen, Joe, your shotgun has only one barrel!"

"Oh, that don't matter! In the emergency I forgot all about that, and I let him have both barrels right between the eyes!"

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

IT'S such a smarty age. So many clever people doing remarkable things—

Pretty hard for the chap without any particular talent.

Maybe you don't know how hard it is. I do. I get their letters—their pitiful expressions of hopeless inferiority.

We've made them feel inferior—we others who "get somewhere in life"—we Talented Guys.

Yet all the while, the greatest talent lies within their reach. They can, if they will, command talent which will open all doors and all hearts to them.

It is a greater gift than the ability to sing or write, draw or act—

It is more potent than business capacity and more welcome than scientific ability—

Yet it may be developed by the poorest, simplest man—

IT IS THE TALENT OF FRIENDLINESS.

Just being kind to people—that is all it implies.

Not the sort of kindness that slowly smothers people or tries to run their lives—

But the kindness that is the generous, understanding grip of a comrade.

That does not judge people—

Or worry lest they be unworthy—

Or run up bills against them for favors rendered—

Or even try to understand them—

But accepts them as they are and gives them what they need—

That's true friendliness—the rarest and most beautiful faculty on earth.

That gives people something much greater than the service of genius. People can buy art for themselves and accumulate power, but there's one thing which may not be bought with money nor accumulated through energy, and that's friendliness. And that is the one thing which we need more than all others, for it nourishes the very roots of our life. And the man or woman who can give true friendliness renders a greater service than the most talented artist.

Don't be discouraged if you're not clever with your head—or skillful with your hand—

BE CLEVER WITH YOUR HEART.

And though you may not receive great rewards in money or applause for your gift, if you really give yourself, in all sincerity, you will receive something that is worth much more than money or applause—

Men and women will let you see their naked need—

They will show you, without shame, their fears and their tears—

They will even uncover their shame and cling to you in their bitter remorse.

And they will love you.

No talent on earth can give you a reward as great as that.

WORLD'S BIOGRAPHY

By Garrett P. Serviss

WHEN you know the name of a thing its interest for you is increased and this increase of interest may result in your finding out that the thing has unexpected usefulness for you. I have just been reading of the employment of signboards by the Geological Society of Ardmore in Oklahoma to tell travelers something about the geology of the neighborhood, and particularly of the Arbuckle Mountains, which are said to be a whole object lesson in geology. Dr. Charles N. Gould says that with the exception of glacial and volcanic phenomena, almost the entire gamut of geology may be observed in these mountains.

This Oklahoma scheme resembles the plan, used in some parks of attaching their names to specimens of different species and varieties of trees and plants. It is an excellent method of popular instruction in natural history. To speak of trees alone, there are no end of people who really need to be told that "this is an elm," "this is a white oak," "this is a hickory," "this is a sugar maple," "this is a soft maple," "this is a beech," "this is a birch," "this is an aspen," "this is a magnolia," "this is a pine," "this is a hemlock," "this is a cedar," "this is an arbor vitae," "this is a tulip tree," "this is a sycamore," "this is a horse chestnut," etc. And they not only need to be told, but they ought to be told. When you come upon a tree with whose name you are familiar, you really seem to be meeting a friend. But trees that are nameless to you are only trees—a mere class of indiscriminate natural objects.

It is exactly so in geology. You read of granite, sandstone, limestone, basalt, serpentine, gneiss, slate, lava, eruptive rocks, fossiliferous rocks and sedimentary rocks—there is a whole great science back of these names, and depending upon their essential differences, yet they may all be for you only so many stones. The Oklahoma plan, if widely imitated, would go far to fill this gap in popular knowledge. It is good to look at specimens of natural objects in a museum, but far better to see them where they exist in their natural places in the landscapes.

The really intelligent man goes to school every day. All outdoors as well as all indoors forms his schoolhouse. But he needs many substitutes for text-books and teachers.

Some years ago I suggested the desirability of combining object lessons of this sort with public libraries and popular observatories scattered in enterprising towns all over the country. There should be a small astronomical telescope at every public library, together with a collection of the characteristic minerals, rocks, fossils, etc., of the neighborhood, and all remarkable natural outcrops of geological formations should be marked, and as it were, annotated with scientific information of a popular, but strictly accurate character.

One of the greatest virtues of auto touring has yet to be developed. It is the opportunity which the long reach and rapid movement of the auto affords for obtaining not only a birdseye view of the geology and physiography of the country, but likewise by no means insignficant acquaintance with the details of natural science. We cover battlefields with monuments marking the incidents of some bloody struggle of men with their fellow men, but we leave entirely unmarked, and for the greater part unnoticed, hundreds of places (often lying alongside the most traveled highways) where nature has plainly stamped her story of the mighty throes whereby this world was brought out of chaos, and has left vestiges of the origin and development of all the living creatures that now swarm upon the planet earth, making it a notable speck in the universe.

Bible Passages

God's Works

(Psalm 111.)

PRAISE ye the Lord. I will praise the Lord with my whole heart, in the assembly of the upright, and in the congregation.

The works of the Lord are great, sought out of all them that have pleasure therein.

His work is honorable and glorious: and his righteousness endureth for ever.

He hath made his wonderful works to be remembered: the Lord is gracious and full of compassion.

He hath given meat unto them that fear him: he will ever be mindful of his covenant.

He hath shewed his people the power of his works, that he may give them the heritage of the heathen.

The works of his hands are verity and judgment; all his commandments are sure.

They stand fast for ever and ever, and are done in truth and uprightness.

He sent redemption unto his people: he hath commanded his covenant for ever: holy and reverend is his name.

The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom: a good understanding have all they that do his commandments: his praise endureth for ever.

The Rhyming Optimist

Poinsettia

GREEN leaves, red petals flaunted
So proudly in the sun,
By chilling winds undaunted
When rose's reign is done!

Although it would be treason
To name you queen of flowers,
You rule the winter season
In leafless garden bowers.

A spirit gay and flaming
Incarnadines your bloom;
So vital, it is claiming
Escape from winter's doom.

Poinsettia, bravely greeting
With bloom the days unkind,
When all frail things, retreating
Would flee the cruel wind,

When gardens would be cheerless,
Stripped bare of song and flower,
Your beauty, proud and fearless,
Gives them this crimson dower!

Isn't It So?

All men are born free and some are equal to anything.

Tapeline of Biography

By Herbert Kaufman

THE confessions of St. Augustine and Jerry McAuley alike show how the worst of starts may change to the best of ends.

No man's career may be accurately estimated before death has closed his books for final audit.

Until then opinion must withhold decisive verdicts and grant reasonable benefit of doubt.

Philanthropy more than once has worn the mask of the miser, as witness the deceptive lives of Thomas Guy, Stephen Girard, Johns Hopkins and Russell Sage, the leading skinflints as well as the greatest benefactors of their respective times.

Lots of folk play the game that way, caring nothing for the grandstand's applause and waiting for the last inning to bunch their scores.

There's sound stuff left in plenty of flawed material.

And there are plenty of flaws hiding under popularity's polish and veneer. To which fact, various governors, bankers, Sunday school superintendents and other hypocrites taking morality cures in federal sanitariums, offer vivid testimony.

The law doesn't detect all double-crossers, but biography eventually discovers them. To forbid post-mortem tapelines upon sneaks, grafters and foreflushers would tend to pass maudlin miscalculation and tear-retouched portraits on to posterity.

And neither vultures in borrowed plumage nor asses in lions' skins are entitled to parade their disguises through history.

The price of place is criticism, which is nothing more than the verification of merit.

When we line the halls of fame with apocryphal monuments and portraiture; when we hide beneath lickspittle art and Pecksniffian memoirs the actual likenesses and accurate account of recreant, selfish lives, we simply encourage the false tribune in his opportunism and assure the Pharisee that his secret soul shall never be revealed.

The saying, "De mortuis nil nisi bonum" (meaning, we shall speak only well of the departed) wasn't inspired by rogues and snides.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—About 10,000 manuscripts of plays are dumped weekly onto the desks of New York theatrical producers. This does not include the large number sent literary agents, the professional play readers and manuscript doctors.

The great majority are hopeless, amateurish efforts and come from all corners of the world. Many encompass the futile dreams of servant girls, farm hands, lumber jacks and lonely seamen. Thousands of mothers try playwrighting in the hope of educating their children. It is not fiction that almost everybody tries to write a play.

The largest number of manuscripts come from southern states but California has a huge number, especially among those who have retired and wish to relieve the monotony of leisure. There is no calling offering greater discouragement especially for the unskilled.

The first play by an amateur has been achieved but the ratio is about one in five million. An understanding of stage technique is now almost an absolute necessity. The best plays have always lately come from those associated in some fashion with the theater.

Nearly every producer has an expert play reader. One firm employs nine. Manuscripts are received by them and carefully read before going to the producer. Only those likely to interest him in more than a casual way are presented. Ninety-nine out of a hundred submitted he never sees.

There is no doubt thousands of play ideas submitted by the amateur have been plagiarized, but unless his play has been carefully copyrighted he has no chance of reprisal of any sort. Schools of dramaturgy have turned out a few successes but the number is extremely small. Experience counts most.

But once the writer of a play has a nibble for his effort, the rest is comparatively easy. Every producer is at his heels. There is some sort of mysterious communication along the Rialto about such matters. The news spreads like wildfire.

Innumerable playwrights have made fortunes and lost them as quickly trying to produce their own plays. A good play belies the old theory, too many cooks spoil the broth. As a rule the best plays are those that have received the professional touch of many hands. Belasco, incidentally, is said to receive more manuscripts than any other producer.

There is one block in the Forties, between Fifth and Sixth avenues, that boasts of 37 speakeasies. Most are in old brown front houses and to the casual passerby are as quaintly and peacefully mid-Victorian as their architecture. The windows are hung with white curtains and the reception room resembles the old time front parlor with its napping window cat and blazing chandelier. But in the hidden recesses are perfectly equipped bars going full blast.

New York offers extremely strange jobs. Recently a comely young girl employed in a department store departed on a trip around the world with all expenses paid as the companion of an elderly lady. There was no salary, but an agreement was drawn up whereby the young lady was to receive the sum of $5,000 deposited in a bank, at the completion of the journey, provided she shunned all male companionship on the trip.

OH, THESE WOMEN

By Leola Allard

A NEW YORK woman has made $200,000 in two years on the market. Not by gambling, but by wise investments. In gratitude for her success she says she has established a bread line in one of the city's needy spots, and has invested $20,000 in it.

She is not a whoopee maker.

There is a woman fortune teller in New York who predicts dire things ahead for her clients, and then calls them up to see if these things happen. If they don't she is very angry. She wants what she predicts to happen no matter how disasterous.

A pleasant little party! And she has made the lives of several women I knew perfectly miserable with her system. She calls her clients "my people."

That's a new way to work "a racket." In Chicago, fortune tellers give you glowing accounts of an immediate future for which you have always longed.

The New York woman is a regular Red Riding Hood's wolf. Someone should predict for her what should happen to her and then follow it up in the proper quarters.

The next time you have a feeling that you are going to visit a fortune teller, go out and spend the money for toy balloons. It will be easier to see how silly that was.

The articles on what women should wear for aviation are interesting, but somehow to the uninitiated, the most important question that comes to the mind of the average woman is, do they strap you in tight and place a parachute in your hand?

A woman in Yonkers got a warrant for her husband's arrest, charging desertion. They made up before the officer arrived and wasn't she mad when he insisted upon taking the party of the second part to jail! She followed and begged the judge to let her darling go.

You try to figure it out.

It is surprising how few women who adopt children bring them back again, to the orphanage or wherever they got them. Sick or well, bad or good, they keep them and love them. That's the history of adoptions, with very rare exceptions.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

"A GIRL cannot be reasonably sociable, even, with the older man in the same office with her without finding them mushy or presuming."

This is a stenographer's complaint who works in a department where there are several men employed.

Too many men who have daughters as old as girls working in the office with them believe themselves to be attractive to the young women.

If a girl is pleasant or chatty, occasionally they think her interested.

Few girls, unless it be the gold-digger type, have any interest in men old enough to be their fathers.

There are always plenty of young fellows whom a good-looking girl attracts.

The old fellow who considers himself attractive to young girls is an egotistical sort whom the girls consider a joke.

They deliberately say and do things to make him think that they are personally interested, just in order to have some fun at his expense with the other employes.

Old fellows who become interested in young girls, and who are susceptible to their smiles are a source of much amusement.
